Pre-Dawn Mishap In Fog Threatens Marin Beaches

By MARY LEYDECKER

Two large oil tankers collided today in dense fog and darkness under Golden Gate Bridge, spilling hundreds of thousands of gallons of oil into Marin County waters.

There was no injury in the 1:45 a.m. crash.

By late morning the heavy, gooey, tar-like substance had floated into the Sausalito Yacht Harbor and had gone beyond Angel Island.

It was described as flowing in long strips in a heavy current.

The collision, the Coast Guard said, occurred when the Oregon Standard, outbound for British Columbia with 4.6 million gallons of bunker fuel aboard, was rammed on the port side by her incoming sister ship, the Arizona Standard. The Arizona's bow pierced the other ship to a depth of 40 feet.

About 500,000 gallons of the thick fuel had leaked out of the Oregon Standard's ruptured tanks and the total may reach 1.9 million gallons, according to the Coast Guard.

The two ships, both owned by Standard Oil Co., hung together after the collision, drifted east on the Bay and then anchored a half-mile west of Angel Island.

In spite of the heavy damage, the Coast Guard said there was no danger of either tanker sinking, and the Arizona Standard went under her own steam to Richmond later in the morning.

The Oregon Standard was hit just forward of the bridge, according to the Coast Guard, at an angle of 100 degrees, knocking a huge hole in the side. Damage to the Arizona Standard was confined to the bow, which was crumpled.

Coast Guard cutters and a hovercraft sped to the scene, and other ships surrounded the leaking tanker with booms to keep the thick fuel from spreading, by acting as floating enclosures.

Although fog prevented early morning skimming, by 11 a.m. boats were starting to remove oil. In Sausalito about seven oil tanker trucks began vacuuming the brown, slimy looking oil from the shore, and northbound traffic was blocked on downtown Bridgeway because the the tankers.

Tankers were also being sent as far south as Fort Baker.

Ducks and seagulls with their feathers plastered with the oil were huddled on floating debris and on the shorelines. The Sausalito Fire Department was attempting to rescue the little creatures.

Angry and upset people lined the Sausalito shoreline today, taking pictures and commenting on the disaster. Sausalito's bayside restaurants were closed because the tanker trucks blocked traffic and prevented parking.

The collision "certainly indicates the need for much tighter regulations of oil-bearing vehicles in San Francisco Bay," Sausalito Councilman Stephen A. Fraser said.

Key Battle For Pass In Cambodia

SAIGON (UPI) — Cambodian and South Vietnamese troops with heavy support from U.S. Army helicopter gunships entered the Pich Nil Pass on Highway 4 today and were heavily engaged in hand to hand combat with Communist troops on its mountainous slopes, the Cambodian High Command reported.

Although no U.S. ground troops were reported in action in Cambodia the United States has greatly increased its involvement there.

Pich Nil Pass is 60 miles southwest of Phnom Penh on the 138-mile long Highway 4 linking Phnom Penh with the deep water port of Kompong Som. A South Vietnamese tank force was driving northward from Kompong Som and a Cambodian and South Vietnamese unit was driving south.

The Cambodian command said the southern task force had reached the isolated outpost of Kompong Seila, just below the pass, and was battling to link up with the northern task force only 12½ miles away. The command said the northern force had entered the pass and was fighting to dislodge Communist troops from its slopes.

The U.S. Army Cobra helicopters were operating from a U.S. Navy amphibious transport ship (LPD) cruising in the Gulf of Thailand off Cambodia — the first known example of such Army-Navy cooperation. In addition, a U.S. Navy helicopter carrier (LPH) of 18,300 tons was operating nearby in support of the LPD. The LPH carries 32 choppers.

While South Vietnamese and Cambodians battled to reopen Route 4 and restore Cambodia's gasoline and oil supplies, a heavily guarded South Vietnamese convoy arrived in Phnom Penh Sunday night with fuel — plus cognac, beer, cigarettes and Citroen cars. UPI field dispatches said it had full U.S. air support during the trip up the Mekong River.

UPI front dispatches said the U.S. Army Cobras were working three at a time in support of the ground forces and that the airwaves crac-

Thick Fog Keeps Traffic At Crawl

The thickest fog of the wet season enveloped Marin and Southern Sonoma early today, aggravating the usual Monday morning commuter crawl and closing the Marin County airport north of Novato.

Despite the backup of commuter traffic to San Rafael, no accident was reported by the California Highway Patrol.

Predawn drivers reported visibility along Highway 101 was down to 20 feet, and the traffic crush on the Golden Gate Bridge did not ease until after 9 a.m.

Hamilton Air Force Base operations continued, but under instrument flight rules. Gnoss Field was socked in, and was expected to remain closed until early this afternoon.

The fog was blamed for contributing to a collision between two oil tankers near the Golden Gate Bridge, spilling thousands of gallons of oil into the bay.

San Francisco, Oakland, San Jose, Sacramento and Stockton airports all were closed during the night by the fog. San Francisco airport resumed limited operations at 8:55 a.m. as conditions improved slightly.

The National Weather Service predicted that night and morning fog would occur again tomorrow in the Bay Area, delta and northern San Joaquin Valley and parts of the Salinas Valley. Rain was expected to spread southward to the Bay Area sometime tomorrow, clearing out the fog.

In the north coast area, the Smith River was reported dropping after cresting yesterday about one foot above flood stage near Crescent City. The Klamath and Eel rivers, which crested above warning stages but below flood stages, also were receding.

Highway 101 was closed for a time north of Willits in Mendocino County by high water, was reported passable but wet.

Outlook On Mideast - Peace Talks Better

By U.P. International

United Nations Secretary General Thant said today he and U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring were cautiously optimistic about the outcome of the Middle East peace talks. And a dispatch from Cairo said prospects were brighter for extension of the cease-fire which expires Feb. 5.

But in Tel Aviv Israel accused Egypt of sending four Sukhoi 7 jets across the cease-fire line again today in another violation of the cease-fire.

Thant told a news conference in New York that the Jarring talks were in such a delicate stage he believed it would be "not helpful — even be damaging to his tireless efforts to promote agreement — to make a substantive statement."

"I am still cautiously optimistic about the outcome of these discussions and this cautious optimism is shared by Ambassador Jarring," he said.

In so many words Thant said the Big Four should keep its noses out of the Mideast peace efforts at this time because of the delicate nature of the Jarring mission. He did so by stating:

"There is some merit in the statement of some governments that for the moment the four permanent members of the Security Council should not be too active in arriving at a consensus or agreement on principles or guidelines for the consideration of the Security Council."

Thant said it was his personal opinion that any active participation in any U.N. peace force by the two superpowers —the United States and the Soviet Union —"will create more problems than the problems they set out to solve."

He said he did "not see any difficulty" about the use of French and British forces but "I have personal doubts" about the wisdom of using American and Russian forces now. By 1980 or 1990, Thant said, the use of both — and even China — might be desirable.

The Big Four ambassadors to the U.N. were meeting this afternoon to discuss the situation.

McGOVERN IN RUNNING FOR PRESIDENT

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota announced his presidential candidacy today with a call for a "second American revolution" and an ironclad pledge to withdraw every American soldier from Vietnam.

Charging President Nixon with deepening "the sense of depression and despair in our land," McGovern predicted the next president would be a Democrat and offered himself as "uniquely qualified" to lead the nation in these times.

McGovern also said his nomination in 1972 "offers the best chance of heading off a fourth party movement by Democrats still fuming with impatience over the mistakes of past leadership."

New York Policemen Picket At Courthouse

NEW YORK (UPI)—About 500 of New York City's striking patrolmen demonstrated outside the State Supreme Courthouse today as the city sought an injunction directing them to end their 4-day-old wildcat walkout.

"Goodbye, Lindsay, hate to see you go," the demonstrators sang as they marched with military precision behind barricades manned by the plainclothesmen and officers who have replaced them on their beats.

Inside the courthouse, city officials asked Justice Irving H. Saypol to issue an injunction against the strike by an estimated 25,000 of the city's 27,400 patrolmen. The walkout began Thursday to demand an immediate pay raise to maintain their pay ratio with sergeants who received a raise earlier.

A quarter of the 3,200-man Transit Police, who patrol subways and buses, also walked out Sunday in support of regular police and some members of the 1,550-man Housing Authority police force joined them today.

The president of the Housing Authority Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, Joseph Balzano, said at least 80 patrolmen in Brooklyn had left their posts and predicted the action, which the union did not sanction, would spread.

In addition, the nation's largest city was beset by a strike early today of Teamsters who handle deliveries of fresh fruit and vegetables to wholesalers and a weeklong walkout of telephone repairmen and installers.

Ecuador Seizes 8 Tuna Boats

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Four American tunaboats were seized Monday by Ecuador, bringing to eight the number seized within the past week, the American Tunaboat Association said.

The vessels were picked up by a former United States destroyer and several patrol boats while former United States warplanes flew overhead, Ed Silva, vice president of the association, said.

Seized Monday were the San Diego-based Antonina C and Ocean Queen and the Puerto Rico-based Cape Cod and Captain Vincent Gann.

The world's largest tunaboat, The Apollo, was seized Sunday and was expected to be released after paying a fine estimated in excess of $100,000. The Anna Marie and Bold Venture were seized Friday and released Sunday after paying fines of $52,000 and $49,000 respectively, Silva said. The San Diego-based Lexington was seized last Tuesday and released Saturday after paying $34,160 in fines.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Trial Today

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Clay L. Shaw, acquitted of conspiring to assassinate President John F. Kennedy was to go on trial today for allegedly committing perjury during his trial.

The Louisiana Supreme Court refused last week to order a delay in the trial until it rules on a defense motion to drop the charges.

District Attorney Jim Garrison, whose investigation of the assassination attracted worldwide attention, claims Shaw lied when he denied knowing David Ferrie and Lee Harvey Oswald, both named by Garrison as coconspirators in an alleged plot to murder Kennedy.

Leaves Harvard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Presidential adviser Dr. Henry A. Kissinger has resigned from the Harvard University faculty to remain at the White House.

Kissinger, 47, said Saturday he was giving up his tenure as professor of government and director of the Harvard International Seminar. He left the job in January, 1969, to join President Nixon's staff.

In a letter to Kissinger, Nixon expressed his "deep personal appreciation" of Kissinger's decision.

Computer Cars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first attempts to run computer driven cars on automated highways may be made in the United States by the end of the 1970s, according to Douglas A. Toms, director of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

"I think we will have either magnetic or radio beam or metallic strips or something that you can zero-in on and your solid state computer system in your car would have the ability . . . not only to slow it down, but speed it up . . ." Toms said.

The result would be that "you can then divert your attention from driving the car. It will just run itself."

Back To Jobs

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago teachers returned to their classrooms today after voting Sunday to accept a new two-year contract making them the highest paid big-city teachers in the nation.

The vote was 7,126 in favor of accepting the new contract and 1,243 against it, ending a four-day work stoppage which gave the city's 577,000 public school children an unscheduled vacation.

The two-year pact, negotiated with the help of Mayor Richard J. Daley, is a $67 million settlement. It was the best possible package we could get," said John E. Desmond, Chicago Teachers Union President.

Muskie Back

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie says he wants to "take some time to digest" impressions from a two-week trip to the Middle East, the Soviet Union and Western Europe designed to improve his foreign affairs knowledge for an expected bid for the presidency.

The Maine Democrat completed the tour Sunday, here flying from Bonn, West Germany, where he talked for an hour with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt. He described Brandt's policy of forging closer ties with Communist bloc nations as "positive, forthcoming and creative."

Muskie said the policy involved risks but added "an enlightened willingness to take risks can do nothing but to serve our best interests."

Unity Prayer

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Roman Catholic church and several other Christian communions today began a week of prayer for Christian Unity.

Christian congregations around the world joined in ecumenical services, while churchgoers were urged by their priests and ministers to pray individually for the ecumenical cause.

Swiss Envoy Never Felt Abductors Would Kill Him

Better than a medieval dungeon, but it was a miserable 40 days for kidnapped Swiss Ambassador Giovanni Enrico Bucher.

"I wasn't too keen on television," Bucher told friends after his release. Leftist guerrillas let him go Saturday after the Brazilian government freed 70 political prisoners as ransom.

Bucher, according to his intimates, never felt that the abductors would kill him. His fear was that he would "become another Gomide case."

Brazilian Consul Aloyisio Dias Gomide has been in the captivity of Tupamaro guerrillas in Montevideo since July 31. Bucher, who suffered from claustrophobia, said, "I do not know how long I could last."

Bucher was quoted as remarking to one diplomat, "I was never really scared until they started cleaning their machine guns in my room." Bucher gave some advice to diplomats:

"If you really want security you should have two machine guns, one in the front and one in the back seat of the car. If not, it is better to have nothing at all. One man with a revolver can not do anything. My case proved that."

Bucher's lone bodyguard, federal agent Helio de Carvalho Araujo, was shot to death defending Bucher during the kidnap Dec. 7. He never had a chance to fire a shot.

In his press conference, Bucher said his kidnappers always wore masks.

He described the kidnappers to friends as "mostly young people, intellectuals or semi-intellectuals. Most were well educated."

DENVER TRAGEDY — Bodies of five children — ranging in age from 3 months to 9 years old — lie on the front lawn of a Denver home as firemen attempt to control the house blaze in the background. The children were among 28 who perished in blazes across the United States and Canada yesterday.

28 Persons Perish In Rash Of Blazes

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Twenty-eight persons, all but two of them children, died Sunday in a rash of fires in the United States and Canada.

Blazes in Toronto and in Lawrence, Mass., each killed a young mother and six children. Five children died in a Denver fire and five more children died in a burning house in Livingston Manor, N.Y. Two young girls died in a Detroit fire.

Two sisters died late Sunday in a house fire in Seattle. The victims were Sheila Hebert, 8, and her sister Jeanette, 7. Their parents and two other of their children escaped.

The Toronto fire, in an aging, three-story frame house, did not seem serious when seen from the street. Dead in the fire were Mrs. Rose Duchamp, 20; her children, Tracy, 15 months, and Robin, 3; two visitors, Georgina Sykes, 13, and her sister, Maureen, 11; and Daniel Arsenault, 7, and his sister, Diana, 8, who lived downstairs.

Two men who climbed out a second-story window in their underclothing and a woman were injured. One of the men was in critical condition.

In Lawrence, Mass., a "wall of flames" trapped Mrs. Sandra Yaun, 21, and six children in a wooden tenement where they had lived less than a month.

Mrs. Laurie Begley, 21, mother of three of the dead children, escaped the blaze. She was spotted by two passing policemen as she stood in the street shrieking:

"My kids are in there, my kids are in there! Oh, God, please somebody help! My kids are in there!"

Her children, Tracy, 4; Larry Jr., 15 months; and Carrie, 6 weeks; and Mrs. Yaun's children, Christine, 4; Barbara, 3; and Kim, 3 months, died.

Five children, ranging in age from 3 months to 9 years, were killed when flames shot through their two-story Denver home. A fireman said the house "was almost completely engulfed in flames when we got there."

The children's father was next door when the fire started.

Five children died on the second floor of their frame home in semirural Livingston Manor, N.Y. One teenager, Patricia Beardsley, 15, survived by leaping from the burning building.

State police said the children's parents are separated and their father was away from home when the fire began.

Christina Sevilla, 4, and her sister, Theresa, 2, died in a fire Sunday in the West Side Detroit flat. Their partially blind father, Frank, 23, was rescued by neighbors.

Song To Head Election Group

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Sen. Alfred H. Song has been named chairman of a committee of Senate Democrats to seek out legislative candidates for the 1972 election.

Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally of Los Angeles, chairman of the upper house Democratic caucus, announced formation of the committee Saturday. Sen. George N. Zenovich of Fresno was named vice chairman.

Other members were Sens. Randolph Collier of Yreka, Joseph M. Kennick of Long Beach, George Moscone of San Francisco and Dymally.

Purpose of the campaign team will be to compete against the Republican Cal-Plan, said Song, of Monterey Park.

Stress In Priesthood Pointed Up

A study conducted of the Catholic clergy revealed during the weekend that the priests felt they were under much greater stress than their Protestant colleagues. Only 12 per cent of about 5,000 Prostestant ministers questioned said their problems caused severe enough stress to make them consider quitting.

The survey of parish priests, conducted by John P. Koval, a sociologist at the University of Notre Dame here, showed the "generation gap" between Roman Catholic clergymen under 45 and those over 50 were so wide "they really constitute two different churches."

More than 40 per cent of the young priests polled in the nationwide survey felt so much strain they said they would consider quitting, Koval said. He said overall, in the survey, including both younger and older priests, one in four would consider leaving because of stress.

Koval said the crisis was the greatest for priests under 30 and very grave for priests under 45.

The sociologist said his study of the Catholic clergy — when compared with a study of Protestant clergymen by Dr. Edgar Mills of the National Council of Churches — showed that priests thought they suffered from greater stress than Protestant pastors.

There was little evidence in the Protestant survey of a generation gap between age groups in the clergy.

A "lack of leadership from men in authority," was listed by Koval as the most severe source of stress on Catholic priests.

He said that was followed by the "slow pace of change after the Second Ecumenical Council, disappointment in the church's stand on social and moral issues, work frustration and a feeling there was a lack of support from fellow clergy."

Particularly strong regarding those stresses was a split between younger and older priests, Koval said. He said about 80 per cent of the priests under 30 considered a lack of leadership as a source of severe stress, while only 10 per cent of those over 50 felt that way.

'Spies' Compiled 18,000 Dossiers

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United States Army intelligence compiled dossiers on some 18,000 civilians ranging in political orientation from the Black Panthers to the John Birch Society, the New York Times said today.

The intelligence operation, the article said, ran from the summer of 1967 through the fall of 1969 and was particularly focused on the activities of radicals, black militants and Vietnam War dissenters.

The Times said the military had received much of its data from police and FBI sources but that it also secured its own information by using intelligence agents who posed as newsmen or members of organizations under scrutiny "or merely as interested bystanders."

Last month the question of alleged army surveillance created a stir on the Senate floor when Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said the military had placed well-known political figures in Illinois under surveillance.

Among the figures mentioned by Ervin at the time were Adlai Stevenson III, senator-elect from Illinois and former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner, now a federal judge.

The Times said the operation, which was ordered ended last year, used about 1,000 agents to collect "political and personal information on obscure persons, as well as the prominent, on advocates of violent protest and participants in legitimate activity, on the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the John Birch Society, on the Black Panthers and the Ku Klux Klan, on the Students for a Democrat Society and the daughters of the American Revolution."

According to the Times, the operation, called Continental United States Intelligence, or Conus Intel, "was but one part of a vast, interlocking intelligence exchange that Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, and probably President Nixon, knew was in operation, although they may not have been aware of all of its details."

"There was no conspiracy, as far as could be discerned, by the military to subvert political liberties," the article added.

The paper quoted what it described as a "critical former agent" as saying 'these were not malevolent men.' "Rather, he said, they were well-intentioned men carrying out what they considered to be legitimate orders from political authorities."

The article also cited a statement on this point by the Army's general counsel, Robert E. Jordan, which said:

"I honestly believe we drifted into this area without quite realizing what we were getting into and because no one else was around to do the job. . .I'm convinced that no one intended to spy on individuals or control civilian life in any way. But I also believe that some of the things begun, if expanded, sure as hell posed a real risk."

Another Rate Drop

NEW YORK (UPI)—Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. today reduced its prime interest rate on big business loans another quarter point to 6 per cent.

Morgan Guaranty was among the commercial banks that Friday cut their prime rates to 6 1-4 per cent from 6 1-2 per cent. Friday's round was led by First National City Bank of New York. Other prime rate cuts made this year were led by Chase Manhattan Bank and Chemical Bank of New York.

If Morgan Guaranty's move is followed by other banks, it will be the sixth cut since November. The downtrend reflects lessening demand for business loans coupled with the Federal Reserve's generally expansionary credit policy that has reduced open market interest rates substantially.

World Record In Kite Flying

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI)—A Los Angeles kite enthusiast who designed his own entry in a kite flying contest conducted on Benjamin Franklin's Birthday has set the world's record for keeping his kite in the air.

Don Gellert, his son, and three Vanderbilt University seniors took turns at the controls of Gellert's double-stringed "sunbird" kite for a record of 37 hours and 18 minutes this weekend. The old record —37 hours flat—was set in Nantucket, Mass., in 1957, according to record-keeper Will Yolen of the International Kite Flyers Association.

Hostage Foils Kidnap

BENNETTSVILLE, S.C. (UPI) — Two black gunmen who set out on a bizarre plot to kidnap "all the rich people" of this tiny tobacco town were in police custody today, foiled when one of their hostages opened up on them in "an old-fashioned shoot-out."

One of the suspects, Charles L. Scales, 22, of Charlotte, N.C., was wounded in the shoot-out. The other, Grover L. Bennett, 23, also of Charlotte, escaped but surrendered Sunday night to authorities at Columbia, 85 miles southwest of Bennettsville after eluding a 150-man posse.

IN VAN

Police said the attempt to round up hostages in a van and hold them for ransom dissolved when one of the intended victims, former State Rep. Jaimie F. Lee, a gun enthusiast, grabbed a pistol and shot Scales. In the ensuing shoot-out, Mrs. Frances Lindsay, wife of State Sen. John Lindsay, was wounded in the neck, shoulder and leg. She was reported in serious condition today.

"They told me, 'We're going to get all the rich people, every damned one of them and then they're going to have to deal with us'," Wayne Chavis, the first hostage taken, told police.

Authorities discounted any political overtones to the kidnap attempt despite its involvement of Lee and Mrs. Lindsay.

"I don't think legislators were particularly involved," said Sheriff Jack Weatherly. "I think it was the rich people they were planning to hold for ransom."

"KEEPING CHECK"

He said, however, that he was "keeping a check" on other legislators in the area since it was the second recent incident affecting the families of members of the South Carolina General Assembly. The 13-year-old daughter of State Rep. James Cuttino was killed by an abductor at Sumter a month ago while on her way to school.

J. P. Strom, chief of the State Law Enforcement Division, said further investigation was needed before he could establish a firm motive for the abductions Saturday night.

"Ransom was definitely involved in it," he said.

Radar Lights Again Found Irritating

A second phase campaign to dim about 12 high intensity security lights at the Mount Tamalpais radar installation has started in Ross Valley.

The first campaign, waged through much of last year by Mill Valley resident Jeffory S. Morshead, ended in November when the U.S. Air Force modified five of what residents considered the most offensive lights so that they no longer shone down into Mill Valley.

Morshead and other Mill Valley residents were satisfied, but now a Fairfax resident, who says that Mill Valley's meat is Ross Valley's poison, wants the Air Force to take similar steps to dim a dozen of the irritating beacons visible from the Fairfax-San Anselmo area.

Robert E. Van Norman, whose home at 52 Crest Road looks out on Mount Tamalpais, said the lights make the peak "look like a wedding cake."

"The Air Force relocated some of the lights so that they didn't bother Mill Valley, but in doing so they made it so the lights shine more on the Fairfax side," he said. The lights can be seen from as far away as Vallejo, he added.

A member of the Marin County Conservation Committee of the Sierra Club, Van Norman complained to William Lukens the chairman, and then found himself appointed to spearhead a campaign to get the lights altered or dimmed.

"My name was printed in the Sierra Club newsletter," he said, "and the next thing I knew I was getting dozens of calls from people who didn't like the lights either."

An industrial designer with experience in lighting, Van Norman said much can be done through the use of louvers and shielding to make the lights less offensive to Ross Valley.

Maj. William R.Edwards, commander of the radar unit, said today that permission for further work must come from the Aerospace Command at Colorado Springs, Colo., and officials there are "aware of the continued concern of the citizens about this matter."

He pointed out that two modification projects costing a total of about $3,000, have been completed. He said he knows of no plans for further work.

Delegates Announced

State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-Mill Valley, has named four Marin County residents as delegates to the Republican State Central Committee convention in Sacramento Jan. 31.

They are Leland H. Jordan of San Rafael, Behr's campaign manager; Mrs. William H. Spencer of Mill Valley, also active in Behr's campaign; Sally Matthes, former Belvedere city councilman, and Edwin Thomas of San Rafael, an assistant cabinet secretary to Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Behr also appointed two delegates each from Napa and Solano counties, representing the remainder of the Fourth Senatorial District.

Center Security Due Discussion

A discussion of security measures at the Civic Center will be one of several topics to be tackled by the Marin County Board of Supervisors tomorrow at the Civic Center.

At 10:30 a.m. supervisors will hear pros and cons on the present security measures, and whether they should be relaxed.

Marin Council for Civic Affairs has sent a letter to the supervisors calling for use of "good sense to eliminate the indignity of body search." The letter asks reopening of the Administration Building to nighttime public use, while locking up the Hall of Justice except during court hours.

In the afternoon, Sleepy Hollow residents are expected to show up in force to protest the proposed formation of the Sleepy Hollow Community Services District. The new district would take over the duties of the present Sleepy Hollow Fire Protection District and also provide other service such as recreation.

This will be followed by a public hearing on the proposed rezoning of South and West Novato and a hearing on a woodworking shop which the county superintendent of schools wants to build at the Marin County Farm in Lucas Valley.

The Novato rezoning covers a vast area stretching from Mount Burdell in the north to the top of Big Rock Ridge to the south. It includes Bowman Canyon, Stafford Lake area, Wild Horse Valley and Indian Valley.

The rezoning calls for residential zoning with 10,000 square foot lots in the area north of Mill Road, and 20,000 square feet at the entrance to Wild Horse Valley. All the rest will go to one-acre minimum lots.

Scholarships Are Awarded

Reed School District Teachers Association has awarded two $400 scholarships to college students who were students in the Reed district.

The recipients were Richard Barton and Howard Lazar, both at San Francisco State College. Barton graduated from Reed School in 1959 and is working toward a master's degree with plans to teach.

Joyce Wilson, Reed teachers' scholarship committee chairman, said the scholarships were financed by membership dues and sales of a cookbook.

Mill Valley Added To Transit Discussion List

The Golden Gate Bridge District board has added a Mill Valley hearing to its series of Marin County meetings to explain the district's transit plans.

The session will be at 8 p.m. Jan. 28 in the council chambers at Mill Valley City Hall. It replaces one originally set for last Dec. 28.

Cancellation of that Christmas-season hearing drew considerable criticism from Mill Valley School District trustees and other residents of the city.

The Mill Valley hearing will follow a similar session set for the Central School in Sausalito, at 8 p.m. Friday. On Feb. 3, the bridge district will hold its final discussion in San Rafael City Hall to hear from local governments and civic organizations throughout the northern counties.

Fishermen Urge Danish Sanctions

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)— American fishermen asked the federal government this weekend to use economic sanctions against Denmark to "protect the Atlantic salmon from extinction by Danish high sea fishing fleets."

The executive board of the National Federation of Fishermen called on the government to ban importation of Danish food products. The federation also urged American consumers to boycott food imports from Denmark until fishing for salmon on the high seas is halted.

Mill Valley Plans To Curb Communes Due Council

An amendment to Mill Valley's zoning ordinance that would bar communes from certain residential areas will be considered when the city council meets at 8 p.m. today at city hall.

Proposed by Councilman Robert H. Andresen, the amendment would define a family as any number of related individuals, but no more than five persons not related by blood, marriage or adoption.

The ordinance is similar to one considered by the Marin County Board of Supervisors in November but rejected as unnecessary, discriminatory and possibly unconstitutional.

The definition, if adopted, would be applied to the zoning ordinance wherever the term "family" is used. The ordinance already bars all but single families from R-1 (single family residential) zones, but does not define family.

The city's position in considering the ordinance is strengthened by a recent ruling in U.S. District Court in San Francisco, where a judge upheld the constitutionality of a similar Palo Alto ordinance.

In other business, the council will hear a progress report on efforts to make an informal youth hostel at the Methodist Church of Mill Valley conform to city code. The council Jan. 4 told the church to seek a city permit for the "crash pad" there.

Also on the agenda is consideration of a lease on the city-owned Lytton Square bus depot and a tentative subdivision map for a 68-unit condominium project at Sycamore Avenue and La Goma Street.

County Workers To Install Slate

Robert Nelson, senior inspector in the county agricultural commissioner's office, will be installed as president of the Marin County Employees Association at a dinner meeting at 7:15 p.m. Jan. 23 in the Marin Valley Mobile Country Club, Novato.

Other new officers to be seated will be Frances Bahl, vice president; Leona Meysembourg, secretary, and Gene V. Vasco, treasurer.

Marin Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire will be master of ceremonies. Retired Supervisor William A. Gnoss will present gold cards to members who retired in 1970.

Gag Rule Question In Angela Remarks

Two Marin judges today declined to comment as to whether the chief attorney for Angela Y. Davis violated a court "gag rule" by remarks he made at a press conference Saturday.

Both Judges E. Warren McGuire, who issued the court rule, and Joseph G. Wilson, said they did not wish to discuss a matter that might come before the court later.

Miss Davis's attorney, Howard Moore Jr., a black lawyer from Atlanta, Ga., who has been involved in many civil rights cases, told newsmen that the case against the Communist leader, was a "vicious political frameup."

He described as "wholly lawful and innocent" the actions attributed to Miss Davis in the 143-page transcript of the Marin County Grand Jury which led to the indictment of Miss Davis on charges of murder, kidnapping and conspiracy.

Moore met with reporters in the San Francisco office of Allan Brotsky, another of Miss Davis's attorneys, and a third lawyer, Dennis J. Roberts was also present.

Moore also said he plans to initiate adversary proceedings, either in the form of a motion or law suit, to investigate charges by a San Quentin death row inmate that Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales had asked him to ask Ruchell Magee, to give evidence against Miss Davis.

Magee is accused along with Miss Davis of the crimes committed Aug. 7 during a shoot-out at the Hall of Justice in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three others were killed.

Judge McGuire has already said charges made both by Magee and convict Leo Estrada Robles were false.

Man Found Dead At His Home

A 57-year-old Corte Madera man, afflicted for years with a chronic pancreas ailment, was found dead Saturday in the bedroom of his home, apparently from a self-inflicted gun shot wound in the head.

According to Corte Madera police, Joseph William Nagy of 5 Council Crest Drive was discovered by his wife, Faye, at about 8:20 p.m. slumped in bed. A 22-caliber pistol was found near the body, officers said.

Mrs. Nagy told police her husband, operator of a San Francisco car rental agency, had remained in bed most of the day getting up to eat dinner at about 6:30 p.m., then returning to bed.

At about 7:30 p.m., Mrs. Nagy said she left home to walk the family dog and returned to find her husband slumped in bed. She said he had been ill with a painful pancreas disease for about 10 years and had appeared depressed during the day.

A native of Ohio, Nagy lived in California for 20 years and in Marin for 11.

Funeral arrangements were pending at Halsted and Co. Mortuary, San Francisco.

OIL

keep the fuel from spreading. Raccoon Straits was closed to navigation while Coast Guard crews attempted to assess the damage.

Although Coast Guard officials discounted the possibility of fire, a fire boat stood by. The heavy bunker fuel spilling was not likely to ignite easily, officials said.

A Standard Oil Co. spokesman said both vessels were loaded, the Oregon Standard with 110,000 barrels of fuel and the Arizona Standard with the same amount of crude oil.

Officials of the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control board said they had a boat on the scene and that a clean-up order to Standard Oil had been issued.

The officials described the bunker fuel as a heavy oil which turns into a tar-like substance on contact with cold water. For this reason, the oil should be somewhat easier to clean up than a lighter substance, they said.

Boat owners at the Sausalito Yacht Harbor said they could pick up the tar-like substance by the handfull as the gooey stuff collected on the boats in the harbor.

Water control officials said they had ordered hay and straw to soak up the oil and that additional booms have been flown up from Los Angeles, although heavy fog might prevent their landing.

Oil-Soaked Birds: Don't Wash With Detergents

The Marin County Humane Society warned persons who rescue oil-soaked birds not to try to wash the creatures at home.

The society shelter in Ignacio is prepared to clean up birds and urges they be brought there.

Sausalito firemen were among those today rescuing ducks and seagulls and taking them to the shelter.

Stolen Guns Suspect Is Arrested

A man suspected of taking three guns from an acquaintance was arrested at 12:45 p.m. Saturday after a foot chase through San Rafael streets, police reported.

Edward Donald Anthony, 28, of 804 Fourth Street, San Rafael, was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of burglary, possession of stolen property and possession of firearms. Novato police added two bookings of burglary and one of car theft. Anthony was held in lieu of $2,500 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court this afternoon.

Roger Leon Barnes, owner of Lloyd's Barber shop at 819 Fourth Street, told police that he had the guns in his apartment behind the barber shop. He said that Anthony wanted to borrow a revolver, but was refused.

Police, called by Barnes when he discovered the guns missing, sighted Anthony running down an alley to Lincoln Avenue. Police chased him to Lincoln Avenue and caught him there between Third and Fourth Streets. Police reported they found a revolver in Anthony's belt thought to be Barnes' belt. They also found two rifles in Anthony's apartment, identified as Barnes'. Value of the three guns was $320.

kled with English-speaking radio operators calling in coordinates and were answered by airborne Cambodian interpreters or French in heavily accented English.

The dispatches said hand-to-hand fighting broke out when the government troops began their ascent of Pich Nil Mountain at 4 p.m. toward the Communist held summer palace of deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk. The pass extends for six miles through the mountains.

In Saigon, the U.S. High Command admitted for the first time that helicopters and fixed wing planes were in operation in Cambodia. It denied there were any ground combat troops involved but said there were communications and logistic assistance.

The escalating role of U.S. military support for operations in Cambodia apparently began when Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, deputy U.S. commander in Vietnam, visited Phnom Penh last week.

DON F. RODACK
Killed in crash

OBITUARIES

Don F. Rodack Killed

Funeral for Don F. Rodack of Occidental, a resident of Mill Valley until 1968, will be Wednesday at 11 a.m. at the Eggen and Lance Mortuary, 1540 Mendocino Avenue, Santa Rosa.

Rodack, 19, was killed Friday in an auto accident near Orland, Glenn County.

Rodack, although he moved to Sonoma County prior to his senior year, graduated in 1969 from Tamalpais High School where he was on the track and football teams.

He won the Alonzo Stagg award as most inspirational player on the football squad and the Mill Valley Record Award as most valuable player.

Rdack was also president of the Interact Club and a member of the marching band.

Last year, he attended Santa Rosa Junior College and was captain of the football team. He was named to the all-conference team and the Western States Junior College All-American team.

He had planned to attend Idaho State College in Pocatello, Ida., in the fall.

His father, Frederick Rodack of Occidental is a social studies teacher at Novato High School. His mother is director of nursing at St. Lukes Hospital in San Francisco.

Rodack is to be buried at Sebastopol Cemetery. Recitation of the Rosary will be tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Eggen and Lance Mortuary.

said an exchange of working papers between the Arabs and Israelis had brightened prospects for yet another extension in the cease-fire. The sources said the discussions involving Jarring had reached a "substantive stage."

But the Egyptian sources said the initial positions as outlined in the papers still left the two sides far apart on the important issues such as Israeli occupation of Arab terroritories and the question of Palestinian refugees.

The sources said one possibility was the Egypt would agree to a cease-fire extension of only one month rather than three months to impress on the world Cairo's willingness to continue talking peace but without letting the talks drag on inconclusively for too long.

These subjects were up for discussion today in the second and last strategy conference in Cairo between Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny. In the background were repeated Soviet pledges to maintain Egypt's military might.

In New York, Egyptian Ambassador Mohammed H. el-Zayyat announced he was meeting today with U. N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring to discuss Egypt's replies to Israel's recent peace plan. There were growing indications Egypt would ask for a Security Council meeting before the current cease-fire expires Feb. 5.

The Sadat-Podgorny talks wind up the Soviet president's six-day visit during which he pledged to keep Egypt strong.

CARLTON ZIMMER

Private funeral was held today in San Rafael for Carlton F. Zimmer, a Terra Linda artist who taught art to prisoners on Alcatraz. He died Saturday after a short illness at the age of 70.

Zimmer, who went to Alcatraz Island every Saturday morning by boat, taught art at the prison with only a limited amount of equipment allotted the prisoners the year before it was closed. After many years, he still received cards from the prisoners he taught.

A native of Minnesota, Zimmer received his art training at the Minneapolis School of Fine Arts. In 1925, he went to San Francisco as director of the H. S. Crocker Co. Inc., a printing firm in San Francisco. Later, he was employed as the art director of the international advertising agency of Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborne of San Francisco. He remained with the agency until 1960 when he retired.

Zimmer exhibited his art at the De Young Museum in San Francisco. He has paintings now on exhibit at the Terra Linda Gallery.

A member of the Society of Western Artists and the Terra Linda Artists Association, Zimmer resided in Terra Linda for the last 18 months at 930 Lea Drive with his wife Elizabeth. They were married 34 years.

He is survived by a sister, Margo Zimmer of Minneapolis.

Inurnment will be at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

Court Test For Job Vs. Religion

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court agreed today to rule this term whether a federal antidiscrimination law bars the firing of a worker who refuses to work on Sundays because of religious beliefs.

The case involves Robert K. Dewey, a member of the Reformed Church of America, who was fired as a die worker in 1966 by the Reynolds Metals Co. plant at Wyoming, Mich., because he refused to work overtime on Sundays or find a coworker to substitute for him.

The Court, which has begun spreading its announcements and decisions over several days of the week rather than handing down all of them on Mondays, also:

—Let stand a U.S. appeals court decision that permits nonhandlers as well as handlers of commodities to challenge Agriculture Department marketing orders for such things as tomatoes and milk directly in federal courts.

—Agreed to decide whether a married woman in states with community property laws is personally liable for a share of income taxes if she later renounces her community property rights. The case involves a Louisiana woman but the outcome would affect community property laws in Arizona, California, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas and Washington.

The Court will hear oral arguments on the religious scruple case later this term and then hand down a written decision.

Last year, the U.S. District Court in Western Michigan agreed with a 1966 finding of the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission (EEOC) and ordered Dewey reinstated in his old job with more than $7,200 in back pay.

District Judge Noel P. Fox said because Dewey had been forced "to choose between his religion and his job," he was the victim of religious discrimination.

In his decision, Fox cited the case of a woman member of the Jehovah's Witnesses who, the Supreme Court had ruled, could not be denied unemployment compensation after she was fired for refusing to work on Saturdays.

But in a 2-1 split decision, the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals overturned Fox's decision.

The appeals court said Reynolds did not discriminate against Dewey because its contract with the United Auto Workers "provided a fair and equitable method of distributing the heavy workload among the employes without discriminating against any of them."

For a time, Dewey found a co-worker to take his place when he was assigned to Sunday shifts, but later he refused to do so. After being discharged, an arbitration appeal was rejected and he appealed to the EEOC. It sided with him but was unable to win over his employer and advised him to go to court.

Airlines Continue CAB Fight

MIAMI (UPI) —Northwest and Northeast Airlines continued their fight today against the Civil Aeronautics Board's decision to delay permission to operate a Miami-to-Los Angeles flight if the two airlines merge.

The two firms Friday petitioned the CAB to reconsider the condition to its approval of merger plans.

The route had been awarded to Northeast, but the board said when it approved merger plans it could have to reconsider when Northwest takes over operation of both firms.

Northwest's management has hinted since the CAB decision was made that it would do some more thinking about the merger plans if the CAB does not grant the route.

The board did not say specifically Northwest could not have the route and said the airline "will have full opportunity to justify its retention."

The CAB said Northwest made its firm decision to merge with struggling Northeast just six days after the lucrative route was granted.

South African Office Bombed

GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI)— A motorcyclist threw a gasoline bomb through a window of the South African Airlines office in Glasgow's city center early today, police said.

No one was hurt in the explosion and damage to the office was slight, a police spokesman said. The motorcyclist escaped.

Top Secret Island Awaits Nerve Gas

HONOLULU (UPI) —No new facilities are being constructed at tiny Johnston Island for the arrival from Okinawa of the first 150 tons of deadly nerve gas, an Army spokesman says.

An officer for the U.S. Army Pacific Command in Hawaii noted Sunday that the steel artillery shells containing the gas will be stored in existing earth-covered bunkers.

Johnston Island, a top-secret military outpost which is 3,000 feet long and 600 feet wide, was picked for storing 13,000 tons of gas after residents of Oregon, Alaska and the Island of Guam protested when they learned their lands were being considered.

Although Hawaiians, 800 miles away, have made some protests there are none from Johnston Island where the only residents are a few military personnel and civilian government employes.

Johnston Island, jammed with top-secret equipment, was the site in 1962 of high-altitude nuclear tests. A treaty was signed the next year banning nuclear explosions in the atmosphere but the testing equipment has been maintained.

Until last week Air Micronesia, a subsidiary of Continental Airlines, landed a plane there twice a week for refueling. Military orders stopped that and the plane now refuels at Midway Island, adding three hours and 15 minutes to its Micronesian flights.

In ordering the discontinuance, the Army said it acted on the U.S. surgeon general's advice concerning health and safety for civilian flights.

The gas is en route by ship on a 4,000-mile trip that is expected to end Jan. 22 or Jan. 23.

Teamster Strike Hits New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ninety-five per cent of the city's supply of fresh and frozen fruit and vegetables was tied up today by a truckers' strike against produce wholesalers.

City authorities estimated the supply of fresh fruit and vegetables would last for only one day. A spokesman said the situation was a "crisis to consumers."

The strike began Sunday night when the negotiating team of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Local 202, rejected a "final offer" from produce wholesalers. The union represents 1,500 deliverymen, warehousemen and truck drivers who now earn $141.60 per week and work an average of 10 hours' overtime. The union asked a $50 raise over three years and the wholesalers reportedly offered $40.90.

Bike Path Assurance Is Given

The Marin County Board of Supervisors has assured the Bay Conservation and Development Commission that its proposal for a Richardson Bay fill project would be used only for a bicycle-pedestrian path and never for a railroad.

The county holds a three-year lease — at $1,000 per year — from the Northwestern Pacific Railroad for right-of-way between Sausalito and Mill Valley for the path. The county has asked BCDC for permission to fill a portion of the right-of-way six feet wide and 450 feet long, for the trail. On Jan. 7 BCDC delayed approval of the permit on grounds that the lease might be cancelled, and the fill put to use by the railroad.

At the request of Supervisor Michael Wornum of Mill Valley, the board wrote Chairman Melvin B. Lane of BCDC to point out that should the county lose the bike path lease, it would revive its former condemnation suit for the right-of-way, to preserve the land for trail use.

Fourteen candidates have become president of the United States with a popular vote less than 50 per cent of the total vote cast.

Fuel Hitch Solved; Critical Apollo Test

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The launch crew surmounted a fueling hitch and pumped thousands of gallons of frigid propellants into the Apollo 14 rocket today in a critical countdown trial for the Jan. 31 start of the fourth moon landing mission.

The beginning of the long fueling operation was delayed more than two hours by difficulty with an oxygen loading device in the Saturn 5 rocket's third stage. But the trouble was bypassed and the fueling started at 9:15 a.m. EST.

The week-long countdown test was scheduled to stop just short of engine ignition at 3:23 p.m., but there was a chance the fueling problem would delay the simulated blastoff.

Because of the risks involved with a fully fueled Saturn 5 rocket, astronauts Alan B. Shepard, Stuart A. Roosa and Edgar D. Mitchell did not participate in today's exercise. They will run through an abbreviated countdown Tuesday after the rocket's propellants have been drained.

The astronauts, living in isolation here in an attempt to keep healthy, passed four-hour physical examinations Saturday and were pronounced "perfectly normal" with no medical problems.

They gradually are slowing the pace of training for the ambitious nine-day mission. They relaxed in their quarters Sunday and watched the Superbowl game on television.

The countdown rehearsal, known to engineers as the Countdown Demonstration Test CDDT, began last Tuesday and proceeded through the weekend without a hitch. It was designed to check the major systems in the Apollo 14 rocket and spacecraft and to make certain they mesh smoothly with ground supporting equipment.

Apollo 14 must be launched by 7:12 p.m. EST Jan. 31 or the mission will be delayed until March 1. The lone launch opportunity this month was caused by the fact that the astronauts have only one moon landing site and sun-lighting conditions there permit only one landing a month.

The plan is for Shepard and Mitchell to land in a valley on the geologically interesting FRA Mauro formation at 4:17 a.m. EST Feb. 5 while Roosa remains in lunar orbit. After two moonwalks, Shepard and Mitchell will take off from the moon Feb. 6 and the three are due to splash down in the South Pacific at 4:01 p.m. EST Feb. 9.

GENTLE WITH THOSE OLD BONES

The bones are at least 50,000 years old, and they make up a nearly intact California Grey Whale discovered near San Pedro. Members of local college communities lift a part of the skeleton in an operation to uncover the bones, wrap them in plaster and send them to San Fernando Valley State College for study.

'SAFE HAZARD'

Quake Warning By Experts

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Moderate earthquakes, such as jolted Santa Rosa in 1969, could have caused $25 million in property damage if they had struck San Francisco or Los Angeles, three experts have decided in a report for the federal government.

And it would come as "no surprise" if a major quake collapsed one or two modern, reinforced, concrete, high-rise buildings, they added in a report made public Sunday.

Those making the report to the U.S. Commerce Department were Karl Steinbrugge, a structural engineer, and William K. Cloud and Nina Scott, U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey seismologists.

Their damage survey in Santa Rosa—where quakes of 5.6 and 5.7 magnitudes on the Richter scale struck on Oct. 1, 1969—suggested to the trio that building codes have not kept pace with the fashions of architecture.

In saying it would be no surprise if modern, high-rise concrete structures collapsed in a major quake, they predicted that could happen even if present building codes were complied with.

A designer, they said, may "follow the letter of the law as expressed in the building code, but ... inadvertently design a collapse-hazard structure which is legally safe," they said.

In discussing the magnitude of quakes, the three experts referred to the Richter scale which measures the amount of energy released and operates on a logarithmic basis, so that a magnitude of two is 10 times greater than a magnitude of one.

There is no top on the scale and the San Francisco earthquake of 1906 registered at 8.25.

The Santa Rosa quakes seriously damaged 74 buildings, including Sonoma County's four-year-old concrete Social Services Building. The two-story structure had cracked supporting columns and walls when the jolts ended.

Moon Robot Drives Back To Mothership

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union's rolling moon robot today drove back to its Luna 17 mothership to complete "one of the planned experiments" of its moon exploration, Tass said.

The Soviet news agency did not specify why the eight-wheeled vehicle made its way back to the landing stage or what it will do next. The Luna 17 ship, carrying the Lunokhod machine piggyback, landed Nov. 17 in the moon's Sea of Rains.

"The apparatus turned in its tracks about half a kilometer from the landing area,'' Tass said. "For some time the old track showed clearly on the television screen and the controllers of the Lunokhod used it for guidance."

The agency called it an historic feat:

"For the first time in the history of cosmonautics there was a solution to a practical navigational problem: The return of the self-propelled apparatus to a preplanned point at a preplanned time on the surface of a different celestial body."

The Soviets already have announced that the robot is not designed to remount its landing module and return to earth. It will stay on the moon indefinitely.

Tass said the Lunokhod controllers used shadows of stones and carter walls in navigating the machine back to its starting point.

"By observing the shadows on the television screen, it was possible to determine the position of the sun,'' Tass said.

The agency said the machine zigzagged among stones and craters until it finally climbed down into the crater where the landing module waited.

The Soviets have said in the past that Lunokhod is a prototype for a whole family of future space explorers, including machines that will rove the distant surfaces of Mars and Jupiter.

Antioch's Drawbridge Reopening

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Antioch drawbridge, closed since Sept. 4 when it was struck by a freighter and jammed in the "up" position, was to reopen to traffic today.

The state Division of Highways reported that repairs have been completed a month ahead of schedule and that the span over the San Joaquin River was raised and lowered several times in a final test.

A ferry service was used while repairs were under way.

State Public Works Director James A. Moe said repairs cost $1.1 million and the ferry service cost $300,000.

The owners of the freighter, SS Washington Bear, were insured by the state for repair costs.

But Pacific Far East Line, Inc., owner of the vessel, sued the state for $7.5 million. The line claimed the ship was under control of a California-licensed pilot at the time of the crash.

The Washington Bear was headed downstream from Stockton to San Francisco when it hit the bridge's south tower. The bridgetender was stranded several hours in the tower and had to be rescued by firemen.

More San Diego Verdicts Due

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Decisions were expected this week in two more of the nine cases involving public officials and a businessman accused of bribery and conspiracy in the approval three years ago of increased city cab fare rates.

Final arguments began in the trial of former Assemblyman Tom Hom, who was a member of the 1967 city council which approved the fare hikes.

He is charged with accepting $4,000 in bribes from former San Diego Yellow Cab Co., President Charles Pratt to vote for the fare increases. He also is charged with conspiracy to violate election laws.

Bomb Found By Allende Home

VALPARAISO, Chile (UPI) — A bomb found near the summer presidential palace at nearby Vina del Mar was the work of reactionaries plotting to disrupt the Marxist government of President Salvador Allende, an official said Sunday.

The bomb, made up of four sticks of dynamite, was found by a gardener Saturday in a flower pot 20 yards from the palace where Allende was staying. It did not explode.

Interior Minister Jose Toha said "reactionary sectors" have shown their "seditious character" by "direct acts aimed at obstructing the work of the government and Chile's economic independence and social progress."

Singer Married

CALDWELL, N.J. (UPI) — Singer Connie Francis, 32, was married here Saturday to Izzy Marion, operator of hair styling salons in Lake Tahoe and Las Vegas, Nev.

FAMILIES FLEE

Oregon Rivers Flood Roads

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Heavy snows, followed by warm heavy rains, caused all rivers and streams in Southwestern Oregon to remain bankfull or over their banks last night.

Families in the low-lying areas of the Umpqua River were leaving their homes as the river continued to rise.

More rain was forecast for Oregon today, but it was expected to taper off into showers by tomorrow.

The Oregon Highway Department reported Sunday night 14 highways and secondary roads had been closed due to high water or mud slides.

There were no reports of any injuries in any of the slides but it was reported a semi-truck was caught in a slide on Interstate 5 north of Grants Pass and was blocking one lane of traffic in the southbound lanes.

Storm warnings had been changed to small craft warnings on the Oregon coast as high winds which have been battering the area for the past two days subsided.

The Chehalis River in Southwestern Washington was expected to reach 2.5 feet above flood stage at Centralia about 4 a.m. today. The National Weather Service said the river might rise to as much as four feet over flood stage by tomorrow.

Unless rainfall is heavier than expected in the next few days, other Western Washington rivers are expected to remain within their banks.

At least two highways in Eastern Washington are closed because of water over the roads and another has a weight limit for trucks and heavy vehicles.

Cayuse Pass in the Cascades has been closed by several large slides and maintenance crews have not been able to attempt to clear them due to the threat of further slides because of warm temperatures and rain or wet snowfall.

But the National Weather Service says there is a "strong indication" that another disturbance is developing about 500 miles off the south Oregon coast. It could bring increasing winds to all Washington waters during the night.

Calley Test For Combat Stress Shows Curbed Decision Ability

However, Dr. Albert A. La Verne testified Calley was under a combat stress which impaired his judgment and visual-motor performance and his ability to make complex decisions.

Witnesses at the murder court-martial, now in its 29th day, have testified that the infantry platoon Calley led that day encountered no combat and no return fire in its search-and-destroy sweep of the Vietnamese subhamlet in which Calley is accused of point-blank slaughter of 102 civilians.

La Verne, senior psychiatrist at New York University's Bellevue Medical Center, was called by the defense in an inquiry with the six-officer court panel absent to determine whether it has the right to produce psychiatric testimony to the jury.

His testimony as to Calley's sanity came on cross-examination by Capt. Aubrey M. Daniel III, the chief prosecutor. He had testified under examination by defense counsel George W. Latimer that he ran a series of tests on Calley in an environment in which 20 per cent of the oxygen was removed from a cubicle in which Calley sat and a considerable amount of tobacco smoke added to the air.

This atmosphere, he said, would produce an anoxia situation that would leave the body and mind "the same as in prolonged combat situations" with the heart pumping an increased respiration and pulse rate.

Remaining for an hour in the little room, which had only 75 cubic feet of air, Calley showed a "mild impairment of judgment and visual ability, could only perform simple decisions and actions."

"When it came to complex decisions, he just couldn't do it," La Verne said.

He told Daniel, however, that "combat stress" is common to all soldiers and that "this is not a mental illness—this is normal behavior."

"Calley was suffering no mental illness at that time?" Daniel asked.

"No mental illness," La Verne replied. "He was absolutely sane, suffering no character or behavioral disorder."

"What is your opinion of his capacity to form an intent to kill?" Daniel asked.

"Nothing impaired his intent," La Verne said. "He was a perfectly normal American soldier as far as that is concerned."

"You have any evidence that Calley was sitting in the little room on the morning of March 16, 1968?"

"Of course not."

"Then how can you know that this was the same kind of stress he was under on the day of the operation?" Daniel asked.

"I couldn't possibly," La Verne replied. "I can only say that under stress he suffers from impairment of judgment and visual-motor performance and showed a deviation in which he could not carry out complex decisions."

La Verne said he had made extensive research into the influence of marijuana on the human brain and had specifically examined 120 American soldier marijuana users who had returned from Vietnam. The type of marijuana found in Vietnam, he said, is two to 18 times more potent than the American domestic type.

Latimer indicated the defense would try to show that Calley, who was not a marijuana user, could have suffered from having been in a room or tent where marijuana smoke filled the air.

La Verne said that marijuana can remain in the body and brain up to two or three weeks with effects that include illusions, distortion of vision and imbalance in the ability to perform.

Asked by Latimer if marijuana could affect a person's understanding of orders, La Verne replied:

"It can influence capacity for cognition . . .it will impair an individual's capacity to interpret an order—he might understand the order but just go through the motions."

He said marijuana "is not a mind-expander—it is a mind-distorter" and that "the Vietnam variety is the most potent known in the world."

He cited an incident in which an American officer who had smoked marijuana thought the grass in front of him was Viet Cong and ordered his men to fire into it and another incident in which an American soldier on marijuana killed his buddy in the belief the buddy was Ho Chi Minh.

Of the Vietnam returnees he studied, the doctor said, "over 35 per cent had at least moderately impaired brain function, headaches and visual defects, and one said he felt like a zombie."

The testimony by La Verne was designed to partially answer the question of whether Calley will have to go before an Army sanity board for psychiatric examinations.

The defense contends there was confusion and therefore stress in the issuance of orders, though previous testimony said there was no combat for Calley's platoon.

The defense has produced a string of witnesses who said Calley's company commander, Capt. Ernest L. Medina, told his men in a briefing to destroy everything in the hamlet. Calley's defense is that he was doing his duty in obeying Medina's orders in a legal act of war.

Chrysler, UAW Resume Pact Talks

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. and the United Auto Workers, working under threat of a 10 a.m. Tuesday strike deadline, resumed negotiations today on a new contract to cover 120,000 workers.

The bargainers met for 13 hours Saturday and 15 hours Sunday in their attempt to avert another economically crippling auto industry strike. Only a few differences kept them from final agreement, sources said.

It appeared that today's negotiations could extend into a marathon session which could continue until just before the strike deadline.

Despite a news blackout, negotiators for the company and union appeared eager to work out the differences on a new three-year agreement to avert the walkout by Chrysler workers in the United States and Canada.

"It's easier to start a strike than to stop one," said one UAW spokesman. The issues of retroactive pay, wage increases for salaried workers and local plant agreements appeared to be holding up final settlement.

But the differences were not considered insurmountable.

The UAW is seeking back pay for Chrysler workers effective last Nov. 2, the same date agreed to by Ford Motor Co. when it signed a new agreement with the union. Chrysler proposed that the increases become effective on the first pay period following ratification of a new contract.

Chrysler and the UAW had settled differences at only 66 of 171 local bargaining units covering production, office, clerical and engineering workers.

If a strike began, it would not end until all local agreements were reached in addition to a new national contract. This was the case at GM where plants without local agreements did not resume production when the 67-day national strike was ended.

Ring Of Thieves Cuts Water Off

DETROIT (UPI)—Gerald J. Remus, general manager of the Detroit Metro Water Department, says 17 water meters have been stolen since Dec. 30 from homes or apartment buildings.

A ring of "most reprehensible thieves," apparently posing as department workers is responsible, says Remus.

Removal of the meters shuts off water service in the buildings affected. Some victims have wound up with flooded basements.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House says there is still nothing official to announce about the rumored engagement of Tricia Nixon and Edward Finch Cox.

Oil Deal Rejected By France

PARIS (UPI)—France has told Algeria it is not interested in a special oil deal that would break up the common front of Western nations against oil producing countries, French officials said today.

The disclosure came as Algerian Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika failed to arrive in Paris at 1:30 p.m. as expected for the scheduled opening this afternoon of a new critical round of oil negotiations with the French.

Algerian embassy and French government officials who waited for Bouteflika at Orly Airport said they now expected him to arrive late tonight, apparently because of last-minute consultations in Algiers.

The French officials said French embassies in Algiers and in other oil exporting capitals had affirmed France's solidarity with the 13 major international oil companies in their test of strength with the 10-nation organization of oil exporting countries (OPEC) over royalties and oil taxes.

The Franco-Algerian talks, which may be put off until Tuesday, are viewed by the two sides as an acid test of the future relationship between the Western countries and OPEC nations when and if the global bargaining starts.

Saturday night, the leading oil firms offered OPEC a global deal calling for a five-year truce under which oil companies would pay regular tax increases pegged to the rate of world inflation.

Bouteflika, before emplaning for Paris, pronounced the 1965 Franco-Algerian oil agreement "a failure." A few hours earlier Bouteflika's colleague, Petroleum Minister Belaid Abdesealam, signed a joint communique with Libyan Vice President Abdessalam Jelloud, pledging the two countries to stand firm against the Western companies and rejecting the oil companies' proposals.

Bouteflika, in an interview with the government-controlled newspaper El Moujahid, also said the Algerian-Libyan front was unshakeable in the current confrontation.

Weekend Violence Worries Americans

MOSCOW (UPI) — Anti-American violence flared briefly over the weekend, destroying hopes the worst was over in the Soviet retaliation campaign.

Vandals damaged two U.S.-owned automobiles and strongarm men threatened to beat up an American newsman in the street Saturday. No further incidents were reported today.

The incidents interrupted a five-day lull in a scare campaign against Americans that produced acts of harassment every day from Jan. 6 to Jan. 11. The campaign followed a Soviet statement that the safety of Americans in Moscow was jeopardized by the acts of militant Zionists against Soviet officials in the United States.

In the earlier period, vandals damaged five American-owned cars in parking places with hammers and knives and groups of Russians threatened U.S. citizens in the streets.

The abrupt halt in reports of intimidation roughly coincided with stepped-up law enforcement measures to protect Russians in the United States. As the days went by without trouble, Americans in Moscow began to relax and travel freely about the town again.

Saturday morning this confidence began to crumble when Walter Nelson, an official of Pan American World Airways' Moscow office, found the windshield of his car had been smashed by hammer blows. Nelson's car was parked at the entrance of one of Moscow's biggest tourist hotels, the Ukraine, in a lot guarded by a policeman.

Late Saturday afternoon, vandals smashed windows and headlights of a car belonging to a United Press International correspondent outside the door of the main supermarket run by the Soviets for foreigners. Five men taunted the UPI man in view of his wife and 2-year-old son as he surveyed the damage, shouting "How do you like it?" and "Why don't you stop molesting our people in America?"

Just before midnight Saturday, Newsweek magazine correspondent Jay Axelbank told colleagues he had been surrounded by four Russian men as he walked on heavily-trafficked Kutuzovsky Prospect in front of Moscow's biggest foreign apartment complexes.

"One man grabbed my arm and said "I ought to beat him up right here.' " Axelbank said, adding that he was given his chance to escape by a friendly drunk who staggered up and told him to "Get going."

Council To Eye New Police Chief

The Belvedere City Council will hold a closed meeting 8 p.m. today at city hall to discuss hiring of a new police chief.

Meeting openly with the city planning commission at 8:45 p.m., the council will discuss the city's application for a 701 Planning Program grant and will consider a commission recommendation that the San Francisco planning firm of Livingston and Blayney be hired to prepare a general plan for Belvedere.

In a general council meeting scheduled to start at 10 p.m., Mayor Edwin J. Drechsel will call for volunteers to serve on a citizens committee to study merger of police forces in Belvedere and Tiburon.

Art Exhibit At Novato House

Art work depicting Novato scenes and essays about Novato will be displayed at an open house at the newly decorated Community House from 4 to 6 p.m. Jan. 24, according to Bea Carpenter, chairman of the redecoration committee.

There will be art work and essays by local students as well as paintings by members of the Novato Art Guild and North Bay Artists.

Persons or organizations contributing $15 or more by Jan. 30 to the redecoration project will be named on a permanent scroll to be displayed at the entrance of city hall, Mrs. Carpenter said.

Nakayoshi Club Seats Officers

Harry Yahata of Terra Linda was installed Saturday as president of the Marin Nakayoshi Club, a Japanese cultural and social society.

Battle Of The Environment: Is It Now Or Never?

By Roscoe and Geoffrey Drummond

WASHINGTON — We are at war with ourselves, destroying what we cannot live without — our environment.

That is the heart of the environmental crisis.

We must either live in harmony with nature or nature will strike back harder than it is already doing.

Nature won't lose. We will.

IT IS NOT too late to reverse the trend. But it will be before long if we don't begin soon to do more — and do it better.

The President's Council on Environmental Quality is urging 71 major actions to arrest the perilous pollution of our air, water and earth.

No evidence points to their being done soon.

Congress talks about meeting crucial domestic problems — but devotes most of its time to arguing about the war already ending in Vietnam.

The nation's governors say that the big initiative must come from the federal government, and Washington says the primary responsibility is with the states. No adequate actions come from either.

Nixon sought a modest beginning from Congress last February to expand waste disposal plants to cut pollution. This hasn't even come out of a congressional committee yet.

WHY THIS DELAY when every day wasted brings the nation nearer to confrontation with disaster?

We'll tell you why.

One day a stagnant pool of pollution was hanging in the sky all the way from New York to Atlanta and so low you could almost touch it. A friend stopped by our office. She looked out the window, pointed her finger imperiously and said: "They say it's smog. I just don't believe it."

THERE'S ANOTHER reason. It comes from the doomsdayers. Some of them preach that it's too late already, that nothing will save the planet from man-made catastrophe.

Other doomsdayers argue vehemently that the only way to begin is to throw away entirely our competive economy, suppress capitalism and eliminate our nation states. They never say what is to be put in place of what's to be thrown away.

They're both wrong — both the ho-hum and the doomsday approach.

IF THE TRUTH is not to be found at these two extremes, what then is the size and urgency of the environmental crisis?

We believe the answer is right here:

Nothing is more important than for man to stop despoiling his planet and start rescuing it.

It can be done.

We reject thedoomslayers — but they will be right if we don't get moving faster.

WE ARE CONFIDENT we are not exaggerating the magnitude of the environmental crisis. There is plenty of supporting evidence.

In his message to Congress with the first annual report of the Council on Environmental Quality, President Nixon says bluntly: "We face the prospect of ecological disaster."

And why? Because, as the President does not hesitate to affirm, "our very survival" is now "directly related to and affected by the environment in which we live."

Those are the key works in measuring the size and urgency of the crisis: "disaster" and "survival."

But Nixon rightly says that this "prospect can be avoided."

WHEN MUST the United States, hopefully in company with other industrial countries, begin the massive measures needed to reverse the tide?

On that point the President couldn't be more explicit. His answer: "IT IS LITERALLY NOW OR NEVER."

An equally somber verdict was delivered to the American Society of Newspaper Editors by the environmental panelists who addressed its annual convention:

"This environmental crisis is the toughest problem in the world today — more explosive than the bomb, more lasting than the war, more decisive than race."

IT IS LATER than we think. We are so late because for so many centuries man ignored his dangerous and reckless poisoning and eroding nature of its capacity to sustain him.

It was our bland and heedless assumption that the waters and the atmosphere which surround us and the earth on which we stand were a limitless and willing receptacle for our mounting waste and that we could seize their resources and their energy and give nothing in return.

Now nature is furiously fighting back. It is rejecting our wastes, returning the polluted water, and giving back the killer smog.

As that honest and perceptive comic strip character, Pogo, so rightly says: "We met the enemy and he is us."

Fulltime Referee Evidences Growth Of Juvenile Court

It seems almost unbelievable that in two and one-half years, a Marin County juvenile court case overflow could grow from a halftime job to a fulltime job. But that is what has happened.

In June, 1968, Jack L. Blaine and James D. Adams became volunteer referees to handle the overflow of cases from juvenile court, which Judge Samuel W. Gardiner found it impossible to schedule during the one day each week allotted by Marin Superior Court to juvenile matters. Each worked about 10 hours a week.

THE INTRODUCTION of volunteer juvenile court referees in 1967 and the creation of a fulltime referee job early in 1971 both arise from the same causes: an increase in juvenile crime and an increase in the time required to dispose of juvenile cases.

The first is tied primarily to the growth of the drug problem. An increasing percentage of juvenile court cases, Blaine pointed out, arise from the use of drugs and from thefts connected with drug use — primarily to finance the user's habit.

The second results from U.S. Supreme Court decisions that juveniles are entitled to the same court rights as adults. Whereas it used to be a rarity for an attorney to appear for a juvenile, now it is routine. And while this may assure the boys and girls greater attention to their rights, it also takes up more court time.

EMPLOYMENT OF BLAINE, a San Rafael attorney long interested in the problems of juveniles, as fulltime referee to hear such cases constitutes recognition that the juvenile court has changed from a sort of superior court stepchild to a status comparable to the adult courts.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson will continue to devote one day each week to the juvenile calendar, as did his predecessor, Judge Gardiner. Thus, the juvenile division has grown in less than three years from one day to six days per week of court time — one day for Judge Wilson and five for referee Blaine.

The inevitable next step, if the growth continues, appears to be creation of a separate department of superior court devoting its entire time to juvenile cases.

A few years ago, such an idea would have seemed riciculous in Marin. But no longer.

Shriver Shifts To State Where Party Needs Him

By ERNEST SON

WASHINGTON — R. Sargent Shriver Jr. was island-hopping through the Antilles when the news broke that he was considering a move to New York. When the news broke last spring that he was considering a move to Maryland he was party-hopping as ambassador in Paris.

That is where the resemblance between the two situations ends. For if learning by your mistakes helps make a good politician, then Shriver's political ambitions were helped in the long run by what happened nine months ago in Maryland.

Not that he wasn't a politician as head of the Peace Corps, head of the Antipoverty Program or envoy to France. But what you learn in such administrative, lobbuying and diplomatic jobs is not necessarily what you need to enter elective politics on your own behalf.

THAT LESSON sank into Shriver after he came back from Paris to explore rather conspiciously his chances of replacing Marvin Mandel as governor of Maryland. It seemed to many Maryland Democrats to be an arrogant expedition.

He had been born in the state, true, but that was about the extent of his qualifications to be governor there. He had never voted there, although he maintained a residence in the Maryland suburbs of Washington while serving in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations. He had never held party or public office there. In short, he appeared a carpetbagger.

Worse, from the pols' point of view, was that he was considering running against an incumbent Democrat who was doing very well, thank you, and had no intention of retiring. Maryland Democrats were not exactly crying out for a volunteer savior from abroad.

Mandell was publicly polite to him but privately tied up every Democratic organization that mattered, so tightly that Shriver could not even get his big toe in the door. The ambassador thus turned his attention elsewhere and after some elbowing with Lawrence O'Brien of the Democratic National Committee he took on the assignment of running "congressional leadership for the future" to provide speakers and raise funds for embattled Democratic candidates during the fall.

IT WAS THERE that he paid his political dues. The organization turned out to be mostly a one-man show. Shriver personally was responsible for most of the 126 speeches that helped raise $550,000 for 86 candidates in 29 states during the campaign. He traveled some 40,000 miles in the process.

With that background, party leaders are much more willing to wish him good luck if he decides to move to New York than they were earlier in Maryland. In New York itself, Shriver appeared on behalf of five congressional candidates, plus Richard Ottinger, the candidate for the Senate, and Arthur Goldberg, who tried to become governor. He can hardly be blamed for the fact that of those seven candidates only two incumbent congressmen won.

UNLIKE THE DEMOCRATS in Maryland, those in New York are indeed crying out for a savior. If he does not materialize in the person of John Lindsay, the Republican mayor, he might very well turn up as Sarge Shriver, of Westminster and Rockville, Md., Chicago, Ill., Paris, France, and, incidentally, for a few years after the war, New York, N.Y.

The state proved hospitable to a genuine Kennedy as carpetbagger when Robert ran for senator there in 1964. How a brother-in-law member of the clan will do is for Shriver to find out.

As for electoral opportunities, there is no statewide office up before 1974 when the redoubtable Jacob Javits' Senate term ends and Nelson Rockefeller will complete his fourth gubernatorial term. But there is the matter of the presidential election in 1972, and that involves choosing two nationwide Democratic candidates.

To pair Edward Kennedy and Shriver on the same ticket would be too much of a family thing, but in potential combination with most of the other aspiring presidential nominees Shriver in New York would have a geographical and factional attractiveness that could not be ignored.

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

Marin Voice On Bridge Board Reduced To Mere Whisper

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Marin County's limited voice in the Golden Gate Bridge District has been virtually choked off by the new president of the district board, Lowell Edington of Napa County.

Marin has only three of the 18 seats on the board of directors, an outdated inheritance from the days when San Francisco grabbed half of the seats as its price for getting the six-county district started.

Marin, however, has compensated for some of this disadvantage by getting two seats on the transportation committee. Committee recommendations generally prevail when brought before the full board for ratification, thus a strong voice on this key committee gave Marin a fighting chance to get its views across.

EDINGTON SHUFFLED committees around to drop director Dean N. Meyer of Mill Valley. Meyer is the only commuter on the bridge board, and this is the only committee dealing directly with commuter matters.

Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum was retained as chairman of the transportation committee, but because chairmen cannot initiate motions, he is relatively powerless without a second Marinite to help him move the ball toward Marin's goals.

Even worse, Edington replaced Meyer with L. E. Castner of Sonoma County, who has an almost unblemished record of voting "no" whenever a board decision is needed on transit proposals.

Wornum promptly objected when Edington managed his committee selections, but Edington managed to avoid giving him a direct answer.

THE COMMITTEE previously had eight regular members, three from San Francisco, two from Marin and three from the northern coalition of Napa, Sonoma, Mendocino and Del Norte counties. The board president, who serves ex-officio on all committees, then was from San Francisco.

Edington trimmed the number of regular members to six, with three from San Francisco, one from Marin, and two from the northern counties. With Edington's ex-officio membership, the northern counties held onto their three votes — with Marin and San Francisco each losing one vote.

The result of Edington's committee shuffle was to multiply Marin's disadvantage at having a disproportionately small voice on the full board. It also showed again how precarious Marin's position is between San Francisco and the northern counties.

Marin happens to be the prime user of the bridge, but you'd never guess it from the way the county gets pushed around by district politics. Thanks to the legislature, the bridge board has been reformed in the past few years — but we'd feel far more comfortable if Marin's toes did not get crunched so casually.

DEMOCRATS ARE prominent on the staff of Marin's new Republican senator, Peter H. Behr, but the newest addition may help reverse the political complexion of his staff. She is Marilee Monagan, daughter of Assembly Republican Leader Bob Monagan of Tracy.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Boundary Shift Unfair To Voters

The shifting of the Sixth Congressional District northward to include the balance of Marin County not previously usurped is hardly fair to the voters of that area. They have indicated their choice of representatives at the pools last November. Their choice was the Honorable Don H. Clausen. Clausen has demonstrated his ability as a capable, efficient congressman, conversant with the voters and aware of their problems. He is suburban oriented.

The possibility of having him replaced by one whom we had no choice in selection leaves us cold. We are at the mercy of the whim of the state legislature. While we recognize Representative Mailliard as an experienced and capable representative we also know, having observed his workings from close range since his take over of Southern Marin, that his thinking and actions are urban flavored as one would expect from his originally coming from a San Francisco electorate.

For those of you who also feel that Don Clausen is virtually irreplaceable, contact your state senators and assemblymen by phone, letter or wire, but contact them now and often.

Planner Distressed Over Editorial

The Independent-Journal editorial of Jan. 5, accused a planning department in Marin County of dealing contemptuously with the citizen-taxpayers, and of losing touch with what the community wants. The editorial was written so vaguely that any and all of the various planning departments in Marin County could have been the target.

These accusations naturally concern me . . . General accusations of this kind are of no help to anybody. They only create ill feelings. Sorry, but I consider this irresponsible journalism.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

Higher Federal Spending Encourages More Strikes

It didn't surprise many people to learn that strike activity last year was the highest in 11 years. According to the Labor Department, total man-days of idleness in 1970 were 62 million, compared with 42.9 million in the previous year.

Congress should get the message. The department, in a model of understatement, said that last year's high level of strikes "appears to be associated" with inflationary pressures. Those pressures, of course, derive in no small part from the high level of federal spending, which Congress talks a lot about curbing but almost always ends up increasing.

The lawmakers, moreover, have seemed in no hurry to discourage the unions' excessive exploitation of the price situation. When something like a national rail strike erupts the legislators deal with it on a one-shot basis, pushing the problem under the rug for a few more weeks. This sort of chaos is costly for the workers, the companies, and the economy generally.

Any realistic effort to restore balance to labor-management relations has so far been blocked by firm union opposition, and labor's influence with the legislators still is potent. The 1970 experience, however, suggest that someone should get moving soon — if the nation doesn't intend to go for broke.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

'Conservative Budget Approach' Yields Hatful Of Rabbits

You can't blame the public for wondering where all this money is coming from all of a sudden.

During budget sessions last summer, the hard-nosed county supervisors kept harping on the lack of funds, paring $1,000 here and $2,000 there.

Then we're hit with the shootout and bomb explosion, and the county comes up with $300,000 for security.

Last week, supervisors committed another $250,000 for the auditorium and surrounding landscaping, $10,000 for a juvenile court referee, and $70,000 to complete an unfinished courtroom — total about $330,000.

And each time, County Administrator Alan Bruce and Auditor-Controller Mike Mitchell come up with the funds like pulling rabbits out of a hat.

THE ANSWER to this seeming puzzle is the extremely conservative approach adopted by the fiscal experts during budget time and at tax setting last September.

This fiscal year, for the first time, they added a budget item called "special medical care", and stuck it under the Medi-Cal budget.

In addition to $813,000 for Medi-Cal, they inserted $756,000 for this "special medical care."

Looking back, this turned out to be "padding." But at the time, the state was tinkering with Medi-Cal financing, and the county wasn't sure what additional financial load the state might impose in health and welfare costs. The county administrator and the auditor weren't taking any chances, so they sneaked the $756,000 into the budget, not under reserve for contingencies but under the Medi-Cal budget No. 511.

The "reserve for contingencies" showed a scant $50,000.

WHILE IT'S TRUE that health and welfare costs were uncertain last summer, it's difficult to believe that the fiscal experts would be off by $756,000 on that one budget item alone, Medi-Cal. They'd call it "the conservative approach" — being overly cautious. But we suspect that at least a part of that $756,000 was conscious padding that could be sprung in mid-year to "re-budget" for such items as the auditorium completion and landscaping.

Let's hope they don't go overboard on what they euphemistically call "the conservative approach." Otherwise, when the county is really in a bind and funds are down to the last penny, a smug public will lean back and say: "Aw come now, fellas! Instead of crying wolf, get Alan Bruce to pull another rabbit from the hat."

TWO SAN RAFAEL chefs, who took the Civic Center cafeteria contract away from Manning's, apparently are trying to meet Manning's prices.

They've assured county employees that the $1.20 to $1.45 hot entree prices were package luncheons that included salad, bread and butter, and that ala carte prices would be more like $1 for the hot lunch alone.

Furthermore, the chefs plan to meet with county employees every three months or so, and to try to keep their patrons satisfied with quality food and reasonable prices.

At least, you couldn't beat their price for coffee today. Coffee was free for today's grand opening.

San Rafael Council To Discuss Salaries

The San Rafael City Council will discuss proposed new salaries for elected city officials at its regular meeting at 8:30 p.m. today in the council chambers at City Hall.

City mgr. James H. McCown explained yesterday that the posts of city clerk, treasurer and attorney will be up for election April 2 State law requires that any ordinances changing their salaries must be enacted before the election.

The positions' salaries cannot be changed in midterm, he said. The last changes were in 1967, when the police chief post also was elective.

McCown said he may ask the council to postpone final action on the elective salaries to permit more study of the workload for the city attorney.

Two hearings are also on the Monday agenda. The major one, scheduled for 8:30 p.m., is on proposals to form the East San Rafael Assessment District for major storm drainage work. The owners of the Smith Brothers Ranch also have requested a public hearing on exclusion of the property from agricultural preserve status.

The Amazon River is about 12 times bigger than the Mississippi River and has a mouth more than 200 miles wide.

WASHINGTON WINDOW

Catalog Shows Immensity Of Washington Giveaways

WASHINGTON (UPI) —"The Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance" is a book that can give taxpayers the screaming meemies.

Published by the White House Office of Management and Budget, this massive compendium describes the different loan and grant programs under which federal money is ladled out to states, cities, institutions and individuals.

The latest edition, just out, lists about 1,200 separate and distinct programs of federal aid, administered by 141 different departments, offices, agencies, boards and bureaus.

THAT MANY of these federal programs probably overlap, duplicate and even contradict each other, administration officials readily concede. The trouble is, there are so many of them, and new ones are added so rapidly, no one in the government really knows which ones are redundant. Some veteran officials of the Office of Management and Budget estimate privately upwards of $10 billion a year is being wasted on federal programs that could be eliminated with no great harm to the public interest.

President Nixon took office with a commendable determination to weed out some of the more egregious boondoggles. But he has discovered, as did many presidents before him, that this is easier said than done. In fact, his record to date has been enough to discourage the stoutest-hearted economizer. During the six months since the last updating of the catalog, 18 programs have been eliminated—but 33 new ones have been added.

IN HIS STATE of the Union message to Congress next week, Nixon will propose a radically different approach to the whole problem of channeling federal funds into areas where they are needed to deal with urgent social and economic problems.

He will recommend what he calls "revenue sharing" on a major scale. Basically, this is a system under which the federal government would distribute large blocks of money to states and cities, without telling them exactly how they must spend it. In other words, the enormously efficient taxing structure of the federal government would be used to raise the money that states and cities desperately need.

This is a noble idea that can serve two good purposes. First, it can save states and cities from bankruptcy, which is an imminent peril to more than a few of them right now. Second, it can restore decision-making powers, hitherto centralized in Washington, to those levels of government which are closest to the people.

THE HITCH is that revenue-sharing, on a scale large enough to do any real good, will be economically feasible only if accompanied by a sharp cutback in the specific-category aid programs that have proliferated in the past 25 years.

Cutting "The Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance" in half is by no means an excessive goal. It will take pruning of that magnitude to turn revenue-sharing into anything more than a hollow slogan.

The question is whether the President and Congress have the political fortitude to make such slashes in programs that have built up highly vocal special interest constituencies.

It won't be easy to do. But nothing less will put a stop to the ridiculous spectacle of the U.S. government leaving great needs unmet while frittering away billions on a vast variety of pet projects which persistent congressmen have managed over the years to embed in the federal budget.

Dole Sees Agnew As Best Running Mate Now For Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew "right now" is the best running mate for President Nixon next year, according to new Republican National Chairman Robert J. Dole.

The Kansas senator, chosen for the chairmanship Friday by a Washington meeting of the GOP National Committee, said Sunday Agnew was the current choice for "practical" reasons.

Dole conceded some GOP leaders would like to see Agnew removed from the ticket. But he said he felt the vice president had done "a tremendous job" of fund raising for the party and had been an effective advocate for the administration's policies.

"Being very practical, I would say right now" that Agnew is the best vice presidential candidate in 1972, Dole said. He said he did not see any challenge within the party to Agnew's renomination.

Dole, regarded as a conservative, said he anticipated no trouble in working with liberals and moderates in the party. He said some liberal and moderate senators viewed him as "a bridge to the White House" who could present their views to Nixon.

The Kansas senator would not say who he would vote for if Sen. Howard H. Baker of Tennessee challenges Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania for the Senate Republican leader's post. Dole said he could not commit himself because Baker had not formally declared his candidacy.

Dole, 47, replaced Maryland congressman Rogers C. B. Morton as national chairman. Morton will become interior secretary.

Dole began his term as chairman by pledging he would defend policies of the Nixon administration and promote unity in the Republican party.

Humphrey Hits Soviets For Actions In Mideast

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen.-elect Hubert H. Humphrey said Sunday the Soviet Union was imposing its imperialism in the Middle East and that the United States must make it clear that it will never permit the destruction of Israel.

The Minnesota Democrat told the Jewish National Fund the Soviets have decided to foster and exploit current Arab-Israel instability.

"By so doing, the Soviet Union hopes to see Arab nations drawn gradually and firmly into the Communist orbit. They plan the sacrifice of legitimate Arab nationalism to further their own imperialism. Where Catherine the Great left off, Brezhnev now resumes," the former vice president said.

The U.S. cannot weaken its commitment to Israel, he said, but must "if anything, be more supportive" and not weaken in any regard. "This commitment must again be declared clearly by the national administration."

Humphrey suggested flexibility by Israel on the border problem as one ingredient of a Middle East solution, but borders guaranteed in such a way that "population centers will not be exposed to the violent whims of dissident guerrillas."

Firemen, Auxiliary To Install On Saturday

Marin County Association of Fire Departments and its women's auxiliary will hold a joint installation ceremony, dinner and dance beginning at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club.

Allen Howe, volunteer in the Tam Valley department, will be installed as president and Mrs. Frank Evansco of Larkspur will be installed for another term as president of the auxiliary.

Other officers of the association to be installed are Ronald Christenson, first vice president; Henry Perroz, second vice president; Robert Bettencourt, sergeant at arms; Herbert Lane, secretary-treasurer, and James Kennon Jr., past president.

The association will name its Marin County Fireman of the Year at the dinner.

$7 Million Plan For Police Stations

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Police chief Edward M. Davis has recommended the city replace two "inadequate" police stations at a cost of $7 million.

The recommendations, approved by the city council's police, fire and civil defense committee, called for replacement of the Hollywood station, which is 43 years old and the Northeast Division, formerly called the Highland Park division, which is 46 years old.

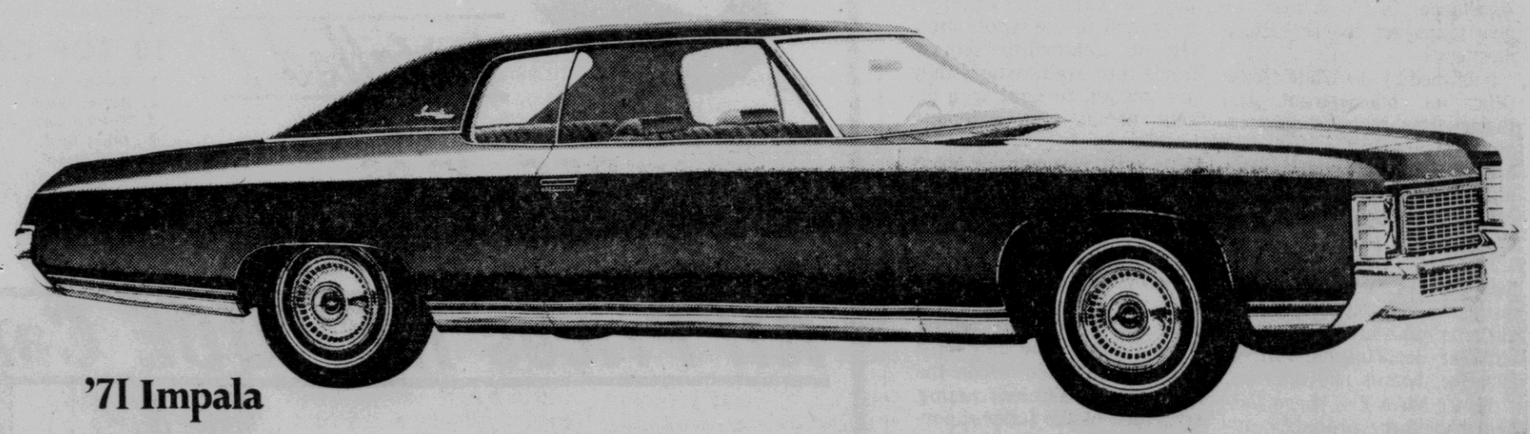
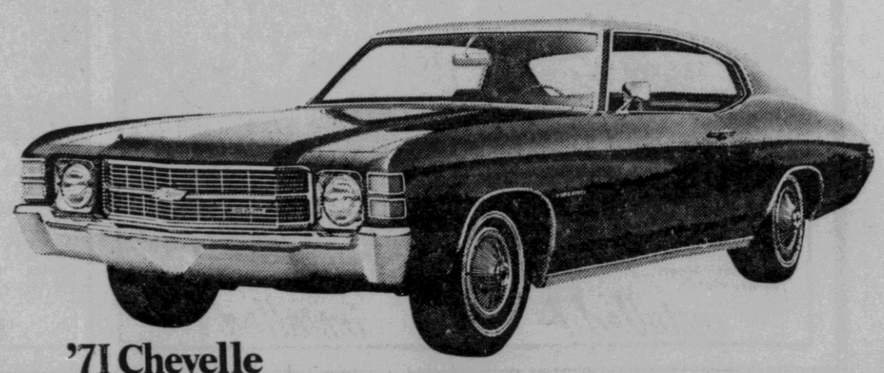
In 1971, people will look harder, expect more for their money and end up with a Chevrolet.



'71 Impala

You've changed.
Extensive research told us. Common sense told us.
So, naturally, we've changed.
For instance we gave our totally new '71 Impala a pair of power disc brakes up front for greater resistance to heat buildup and fade. They're standard.
We were also sure you'd like more than the customary nice ride. So we gave it to you. In the longest, smoothest Impala wheelbase ever. In a new wider stance chassis. And in a new bump-absorbing Full Coil suspension.
What's more, Impala's new built-in emission controls have helped reduce air pollution, as you asked.
'71 Impala. Did we mention it's the roomiest car in its field? We've been building up to this much Impala for years.
Because you have.



'71 Chevelle

We kept all the Chevelle things people liked so much. And added some new things to like.
To fight pollution further, we've also made all of Chevelle's engines so they can run on no-lead or low-lead gasoline.

Our new little Vega

The little car that does everything well.
It has disc brakes up front. So you stop well.
It has a low, wide stance. So you ride stable.
And it sips gas. So you save.
Vega. Now open for business.

The engagement of Kathleen Kuhn and Richard J. Anstey of Novato is being announced.

Kathleen is the daughter of Charles Kuhn of Loma Verde and Mrs. Elma Greer of San Francisco, and Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Anstey of Novato.

The bride-elect is the sister of Bill, Barbara and Lisa Kuhn of Novato and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kuhn of Novato and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Domes of El Cerrito. She was graduated from Novato High School, attended College of Marin and is employed at Belvedere Nursery School.

KATHLEEN KUHN

Richard is the brother of Jacqueline and Edward Anstey. He was graduated from Novato High School and College of Marin and will attend San Francisco State College in February. He is employed with the Charles Kuhn Construction Co. in Novato.

The couple plan an August wedding.

SWEDENBORGIAN CHURCH in San Francisco was the setting for the wedding ceremony and reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Gerald William Schaefer (Pamela Jean Rollins). Parents of the bride are Mrs. Clifford Bunds Jr. of Novato and Richard Rollins of Sonora. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Thomas Downey of Honolulu and Lee Schaefer of Novato.

Speech Program Is Growing

Good support from the community gets the credit for the expanded speech and language center of the Marin Easter Seal Society from executive director Mrs. Phyllis Widdershoven.

Both availability of resources and willingness of volunteers have made the program services expand to the point where now three full-time speech pathologists help Marin children and adults express themselves to others.

Mrs. Helen L. Daggett of Mill Valley, who has been working with Easter Seals since 1956, helped the case committee while maintaining her private practice as speech pathologist. Then in 1958 she was a staffer for the first summer speech program for pre-school children, and by 1961 she was a full time therapist for Easter Seals programs, and holder of the master's degree in speech pathology.

Next she became director-therapist for the speech clinic and set up pre-school age speech and language stimulation classes. Another phase of her work was screening and testing Marin City children and providing therapy for youngsters who had speech problems.

In 1964 Mrs. Daggett began to work with hospitalized men and women who had had strokes or accidents. More recently she set up the first program to work with teen-age stutterers in Marin and also gave speech therapy to children at the Marin Child Development Center in Tiburon.

By mid 1967 a second therapist was needed, and Mrs. David Almon of San Francisco was hired to run the children's phase of the children's phase of the speech program.

Grace Almon sees an average of 24 children every week; most are pre-school age requiring help with language development. Treatment, usually in groups, runs an average of from six weeks to two years, depending on the severity of the problem.

Part of Mrs. Almon's day is spent working with children at the Marin Development Center, and she also tests the children entering Head Start programs for articulation problems.

"I group the children by similarity of interests, rather than problems," says Mrs. Almon. "They are best described as children relatives can't understand. Often a grandmother will worry about the child's slwo sppech development and insist the parents take him to a doctor. The doctor will send him here and often it will be a child whose problems take care of themselves."

Marin County standards are high, she explains, but a three-year-old child should be able to speak in sentences.

Children whose problems are extremely severe will be channeled to other agencies by Mrs. Almon.

"Easter Seals is the only place a non-public elementary school child with a speech handicap can turn for help," she explains.

In the summer of 1968 a speech therapy day camp for stutterers was started with Helen Daggett serving as administrator and director. In addition to the camp, she holds weekly meetings devoted to parent education and counselling during the six weeks camp is in session.

Another new program began two years ago with the first meeting of a speech therapy group for adults with communication disorders resulting from stroke or trauma.

Mrs. Daggett ran the sessions every Tuesday morning with the aid of volunteers until September of last year when she went into semi-retirement as a half-time member of the Easter Seals staff. At that time another full time speech pathologist, Mrs. Frances Lichtenberg of Tiburon, was hired.

The hiring of Mrs. Lichtenberg now allows the society to expand its services still further. Tomorrow afternoon a second group of sessions for adults with communication disorders will begin, since the morning session has grown too large for the two speech pathologists and four volunteers to handle.

"As we get known we grow," says Mrs. Widdershoven, "and it seems that the number of speech handicapped and their need for service increases at an even faster rate than the cost of living. As the needs grow, so do Easter Seal services, but they take community support in the form of volunteers and money."

City Of Novato Celebrates 11th Birthday With Big Dinner Dance

The eleventh birthday of the city of Novato will be celebrated Saturday at the Officers Club at Hamilton Air Force Base.

The Novato Chamber of Commerce is inviting area residents to attend the public informal dinner dance. Cocktails will be served at 7 p.m., dinner at 8 and dancing at 9 p.m. Tickets are available at the Chamber of Commerce. Philip Coady is chairman.

The public is also invited to stop by the Novato City Hall from 6 to 7 p.m. on their way to the birthday party for a special preview of the redecoration project recently completed by Mrs. William Carpenter and her committee.

A RARE opportunity for Marin artists to hear and see the work of Richard Yip is being offered Thursday in an informal invitation by the Sausalito Woman's Club.

The famed water colorist and teacher will give a lecture-demonstration at 1:30 p.m. at the clubhouse. Program chairman Mrs. John Alexander suggests that interested painters meet at Zack's restaurant in Sausalito at noon for lunch before going on to the club, where dessert and coffee will be served at 1 p.m.

The artist will demonstrate new ideas and techniques in watercolor painting and exhibit several of his pictures.

He is listed in "Who's Who in American Art," "Who's Who of the West," was elected a life fellow of the International Institute of Arts and Letters and is HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

DEAR HELEN:

I met Marty when he was married to his first wife. Three days after he got his divorce, we married, and I was expecting his baby. His wife gave their three children up for adoption. The court wanted me to take them, but I was still a teenager and couldn't cope with all those kids.

We got along fine for six months. Then I found out he was running around on me. If I said anything, he beat me up, and started blaming me for his losing his first three children.

He left me just after our second daughter was born — to live with a girl who was three months pregnant, by him. That broke up, and when he came home, he was real good for a while, but then he met my cousin, and off he went again.

Next thing I heard he was in jail on a drug charge. My parents put up the bail to get him out — they had to borrow, and they've never got it back. When in jail, Marty promised me the sky if I'd just give him one more chance. The sky fell after a week, when I found him with the doper he got busted with.

Up to then I was faithful, but I decided this was dumb, so now I've found a wonderful guy. My husband knows, but still lives with me and the children. He seems to think this is a good arrangement — each of us doing what we please, but sharing a house. My new boy friend isn't in a position to marry and raise my family — he's still in school and working part time (would you believe this — in the same shop with Marty, and they're friends!)

Maybe the men are happy, but I'm not. And I'm afraid for how it will affect my daughters. Marty says he should never have got his first divorce and lost his kids, but inasmuch as I "stole" a guy once, I deserve what I'm getting now, and why should I kick: He lets me have my boy friend?

Right now the two guys in my life are out playing pool together. Where does that leave me? — NOT THAT MODERN

DEAR NOT:

In the big middle of a mess. I'd suggest you give both men their walking papers and start learning how to walk a straight line yourself. Which means: get a job, concentrate on raising your daughters, and stay away from married men. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

The encyclopaedia explanation of the word "Hoosier" is incorrect, as you stated it in a recent column.

The name derived from Samuel Hoosier, a contractor on the Ohio Falls Canal at Louisville, Kentucky, who gave employment preference to men living in Indiana. His workers were called Hoosier Men, later "Hoosiers." — LITERARY RESEARCHER

Dear L. R.:

Thank you. I'll let the Encyclopaedia Britannica know. — H.

SEEKING MALE FRIENDS

The League of Women Voters of Southern Marin has a new appeal to "active, civic-minded" men in Marin to become "Friends of the Southern Marin League" pledging financial support to the non-partisan group's program. Here new Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick displays his lapel button announcing his new status as a member of the Friends of the League while Mrs. Keith Kaulum of Mill Valley, Southern Marin League president, gives him a copy of "California Voter's Handbook" of facts on local, state and federal government which all new "Friends" will receive. Charter members of the Friends group will join for a luncheon Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Rogers in Sausalito. The members will receive all league local and national publications.

Mrs. Stanley A. Kane Heads MCDC Board Of Directors

The new head of the board of directors of Marin Child evelopment Center in Tiburon is Mrs. Stanley A. Kane of Greenbrae. The pharmacist's wife has been a member two years, during which she was publicity chairman, membership chairman and first vice-president.

Patricia Kane explains that M.C.D.C. is a psychiatric day care center which provides a multi-disciplinary program for pre-school children who are marginally handicapped; emotionally or neurologically. Its ultimate purpose is to promote and advance the normal course of child growth and development in those children who may not otherwise achieve their potential.

According to Mrs. Kane, studies done by various agencies in the county have shown that a need exists for similar aid to older children who are not ready for the public school system. "We would like to extend our services to these children, but we would need new facilities. We would also like to extend the hours of the center to make it a full-day therapeutic center," says Patricia.

MRS. STANLEY KANE

A member of Volunteers for MCDC, a fund-raising organization, Mrs. Kane has lived in Marin County for 10 years and is the mother of Brian, 10; Candy, 9, and Allan, 7.

Born in Miles City, Mont., Patricia grew up and was graduated from high school in Billings. She was graduated from nursing school in Sacramento and earned her bachelor's and master's degrees at University of California, specializing in psychiatric nursing education.

Patricia was assistant professor of nursing on the School of Nursing faculty at University of California Medical Center in San Francisco before retiring.

"I continued my interest in mental health by serving three years on the Board of Directors of Marin Association for Mental Health, by being chairman of volunteers in the psychiatric unit at Ross Hospital for one year and by serving as first president and co-founder for Volunteers for Marin Child Development Center," relates Patricia.

Federal Drug Administration Lacks Money For Enforcement

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — Ever heard of an $80 million charity case? If not, then you haven't heard of the Food and Drug Administration.

Its total budget last year for policing foods, drugs, medical devices, cosmetics, toys and sundry other products — with industry sales of about $150 billion — was $81.6 million. That's one-twentieth of one per cent of the industry figure.

For the first year of the Toy Safety Act, the agency also received no money to enforce it. That is one reason why nothing was done under the law untilalmost a year after it went into effect.

For several years after getting the authority in 1962 to ban drugs that don't do what they claim to do, the FDA did nothing. It finally turned for advice from the National Academy of Sciences, a group dominated by industry and academic interests.

The perennial shortage of funds — and the inevitable lack of sufficient personnel — puts the agency at the mercy of theindustries it is suppoed to monitor in behalf of the public. The job of policing — and even some needed research — is left up to the industries involved.

The agency's latest embarrassment is pitiful. It wants very much to respond to consumer demands for more nutritional information on food labels, but it doesn't have any funds for the research necessary to determine the best course to follow.

So the food industry has jumped in with its own proposal for determining what the public wants. It has offered to do research worth about $100,000 through its "Consumer Research Institute." The FDA has accepted.

When consumer leaders objected to the possibility of a biased result, the Institute agreed to let them take part. Meanwhile, the FDA said it would consider the results only partially in making its final decision.

What the FDA wants to do is to find the most suitable way to have nutritional information put on food labels. Such information has been put on dog food labels for many years.

The FDA has proposed three alternatives:

Plan One would disclose percentages of recommended minimum daily amounts of protein, vitamins, minerals and other nutrients in an 8-ounce serving.

Plan Two would list the number of grams (or other unit of measure) of each nutrient in the same size serving.

Plan Three would simply rate a serving as "good," "very good," etc., as to its quantity of each nutrient.

Polyester Helps

University park, pa. (UPI)—Polyester fibers have been a big contributor to the development of wrinkle-free, eas-care durable press properties in apparel and household items. Mrs. Ruth Ann Wilson, extension clothing specialist at the Pennsylvania State University, says the polyester is used to blend with cotton, rayon or linen to provide strength, durability and resiliency to durable press articles.

Tracy Wook, UPI reporter, interviews William T. Bagley, assembleyman from Marin County

What's going on in Sacramento?

It's a new legislature facing new problems and issues which will have a direct effect upon you and your family. Keeping informed is critical to your best interests.

How the I-J lifts the lid of the state Capitol to keep you informed of legislation

You have double representation in Sacramento. First, politically, through your assemblyman and senators. Second, through the large and competent news bureau of United Press International which reports for the I-J and hence for you. At least seven top political reporters sit through legislative sessions, question the legislators, examine the issues and keep you "on top" of legislation and coming events.

As George Skelton, UPI bureau manager, states, "Despite myth, most stories are not developed in dimly lit bars. The good ones, more often than not, are produced by sitting patiently through boring committee hearings or sifting through dull reports, reading small type. This is the unglamorous part of the job, but the one which often results in a big story in your evening newspaper." Comment: read the I-J and be well-represented. Our first job is to keep you informed.

MUSIC REVIEWS

Ozawa's Dazzling Brahms No. 1

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

A capacity-plus audience, despite the bad weather, and the tumultuous ovation accorded the San Francisco Orchestra Saturday night at Terra Linda High School gymnasium were measures of the hunger in Marin for great symphonic music.

Of course, much of the credit for the huge success of the first concert of the four in the second annual Marin series goes to the magic wrought by maestro Seiji Ozawa, especially with the Brahms First Symphony.

Every element showed the result of molding by a strong and original musical intelligence. His conducting of this Olympian work from memory was evidence of how completely he has made each note his own, and the result was a masterpiece of interpretation.

For the most part it was a suave, unhurried approach until the many violent contrasts of pace and dynamics of the fourth movement called on the fiery intensity for which Ozawa is noted.

Brass sound was less than perfect in the opening Haydn Symphony No. 1 but improved greatly in the Brahms. The solo horn call in the fourth movement, that had been criticized in the first San Francisco performance of this program, came through beautifully. There were passages of exquisite beauty in the woodwinds, too.

Had it not been for some loss of resonance because of the inadequate acoustics of a gymnasium, the breath-taking sonority of that fourth movement alone could have been the greatest ever in my experience. Better illustrated in this work than in anything I have heard Ozawa conduct was what he has been able to accomplish with the low strings in brining them up to full partnership with the lustrous violins.

Though all the works performed were first compositions of their kind for the composers, the Brahms was a mature work, whereas the Haydn that opened the concert and the succeeding Prokofieff Piano Concerto No. 1 were evidently youth ful endeavors.

Granted the concerto is a show piece for sensational pianism, there is a big demand for this kind of exhibitionism, and one must expect a certain amount of catering to public love of being dazzled. An amazing fact is that 12 virtuoso pianists have been engaged as soloists during this San Francisco Symphony season, with one appearing twice!.

John Browning could hardly have been surpassed as soloist in the Prokofieff concerto, for he is a phenomenal technician, as was the composer himself. The rather metallic timbre of the piano used was emphasized in this toccata-like work that has so many percussive passages, but Browning made the runs and cadenzas as smooth as streamers of satin ribbon, and he produced a lyrical tone, too.

Far from being uninvolved in a less than challenging test of his skill, he showed total concentration, to the extent of marking rhythmic accents with his mouth in a manner somewhat similar to the way in which Glen Gould sings along with his playing.

With the orchestra reduced mostly to strings to achieve proportion more comparable to the true classical symphony in Haydn's time, that composer's symphony No. 1 was all elegance, serenity and grace — in great contrast to the thunder of, the piano concerto.

The second program in the Marin series of the San Francisco symphony concerts is scheduled for Feb. 6 at the same time and place.

Wolff Once Again Produces Glowing Choral Concert Works

No matter how much personnel in the College of Marin's collegiate and community choruses changes from year to year, Dr. S. Drummond Wolff manages to produce a winning combination when they are joined for one or two big concerts a year.

Word of this must have spread, for last night people were standing six to eight deep outside the Fine Arts Theater to hear the nearly 200-voice chorus sing Brahms's ''A German Requiem'' and ''Jubilate Deo'' by Johan Helmich Roman, the Swedish contemporary of Handel.

Contributing much to the magnitude of the sonority was an orchestra of 23 musicians — including some of the top ones in Marin — for the Jubilate, with three trombones added for the Requiem. Two soloists, soprano Gwen Curatilo and baritone Daniel Elias, added highlights.

The Requiem with its intricate polyphonic writing, some in fugal form, was an ambitious undertaking that tested the ability of the singers to the limit, especially in the ''All Flesh Is as Grass,'' a powerful chorus in triple rhythm that is one of the greatest choruses written since Beethoven.

It is in climaxes of this kind that Wolff, a master of dramatic contrasts, excels, and the effect was electrifying, as it was again in the next to last chorus, ''For the Trumpet Shall Sound.''

For some reason, however, perhaps the sheer number of voices and instruments involved, the finespun pianissimos Wolff often produces were rarely achieved.

An exceptionally clear soprano section, though much smaller than the altos, sang in such unison that its dominance occasionally detracted from the balance. At times male voices were not up to par, as in the beginning of the ''Behold All Flesh Is as Grass.'' Technical niceties, such as sharp attacks and releases, were well taken care of.

Since one of Miss Curatilo's assets is her ability to communicate feeling, one of the most moving moments in the requiem was her singing of the solo ''Ye Now Are Sorrowful,'' inspired by the death of Brahms's mother. Elias, the other soloist, had a rich tonal quality but too much vibrato for my taste, and intonation was not always secure.

The ''Jubilate Deo,'' which did indeed show Handel's influence, was interesting largely because Wolff discovered it in Sweden last year and transcribed, edited and orchestrated it for its premiere performance outside Sweden in last night's performance. One of its attractions was a pleasing duet sung by Miss Curatilo and Elias.

While the orchestra played an important musical role in both works, not just one of accompaniment, it seemed a little too prominent because of its location at the front of the stage on almost the same level as the chorus. On several occasions trumpets were piercing.

One of the most beautiful instrumental passages was the singing of the cellos and violas in the opening chorus of the requiem.

ART REVIEW

Traditional Art Dominates Show

By MARY LOU STRIBLING

The Marin Society of Artists' new members show is an annual event designed to introduce the work of members who have joined the organization during the past year. About 53 artists are represented in the exhibit on view through the end of the month at the Frances Young Gallery, Ross.

The walls are understandably overcrowded, making it difficult to fully appreciate the merits of individual offerings, and since the show is nonjuried, it would be unfair to evaluate it from the standpoint of professional competence. However, a few general observations may be significant.

Although there is a small number of abstractions and geometric compositions, representational art is clearly in the majority. For the most part, styles and materials follow traditional lines and there is little evidence of technical experimentation. Subject matter might be described as "safe," meaning that controversial or shocking material has been either deliberately or coincidentally avoided, and is focused primarily upon perennially popular floral arrangements, still lifes, figure studies, landscapes, and seascapes.

It might be noted here that work which fits within this general framework has also proved to be most "rentable," indicating that the art preferences of the public at large are inclined to remain conservative.

Among paintings I found personally appealing were the primitive landscapes by Girldine Fallon Merrill. Their naivete, crisp, lively business, and profusion of storytelling details have the charming nostalgia of Currier and Ives prints. John C. Pogue achieves a remarkable luminosity and sensuous wetness in "The Breaking Wave." Working with flat planes of color and geometric patterns, Gilbert Guerin creates interesting illusional effects in "Corporate Society."

The few graphics in the show are greatly overwhelmed by the more aggressive paintings around them, though "Suspension," a woodcut in tranquil blues, by Phyllis Taplitz, demonstrates the compelling strength of sheer simplicity.

Sculptors are evidently becoming a vanishing breed. A headless and armless pregnant nude by Anne Wienholt, is the only piece of sculpture on display. And where have all the craftsmen gone? It seems incredible that a community teeming with devotees of such arts as weaving, pottery, mosaics, jewelry, stained glass, stitchery, and macrame, could be represented by a skimpy display of four rings and two pots.

Free Trash Pickup Slated In Sausalito

Sausalito's free trash pickup for residents is this week not next week, City Clerk Miriam Ansell reported. Mrs. Ansell said city employees have told residents the pick-up, one of three held each year, would start Jan. 25.

She said residents are asked to place the trash at the curb in front of their homes and it will be collected on their regular garbage day.

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current regular price less the following dollar allowance:

By JEFF GREER

"Big Brother watching you" may be a bad thing, but neighbors watching each other's houses can be a good thing, Marin County police chiefs agree.

And, the chiefs say, an alert resident can be a special aid when he reports anything suspicious to police. That's the best way to halt the burglaries that are Marin's worst single crime category, the chiefs have told the Independent-Journal.

Novato Chief Allen V. Klemme told a chamber of commerce luncheon last week that he's happy with his department's public image, but he wishes more residents would call the department whenever they see anything suspicious.

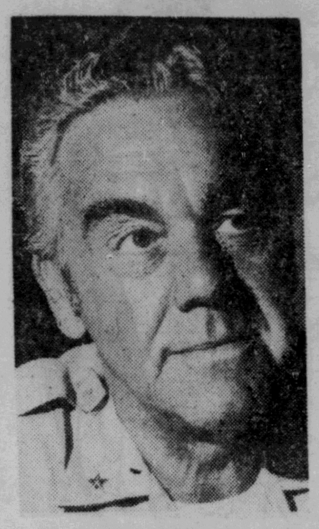
"Not one neighbor has called to report a suspicious circumstance" since he took the chief's job, Klemme told the businessman.

The trouble is not confined only to Novato. Klemme told the I-J that when he was with another Bay Area police force, he and officers prowled a three-block area in unmarked cars for a month, around the clock.

Although the neighborhood had been racked by burglaries, not one resident called about the unfamiliar vehicles, Klemme recalled.

The chief said he thinks there are two reasons why few residents call police. They don't think what they see or hear is important until it's too late, or they don't want to "get involved."

"Some neighbors who have called don't want to give their names, or get uptight over giving the police their age," Klemme explained.



RAYMOND BUCHIGNANI
Burglary 'irritating'

"Communication is a big word; you know what I mean," Klemme said. "We'd like citizens to call, even when they feel there is nothing to the call.

"We don't mind making 39 dry runs" to check unfounded suspicions "just to hit paydirt on the 40th," he stressed. Klemme said even jotting down the license number of an unfamiliar, suspicious acting car in the neighborhood may help solve a crime.

Ross Police Chief John F. Harris supplied an example. He said a citizen reported suspicions of an unfamiliar car two weeks ago. The result: Recovery of a car stolen in San Francisco before its owner even knew it was missing.

Harris serves the second smallest municipality in Marin. He said some of its citizens show "apathy" but most supply tips helpful to police.

Sausalito Police Chief James D. Wright says his city's residents have given him "excellent cooperation over the past two years," partly as a result of several seminars with civic organizations.

Like the rest of Marin, Sausalito has the most trouble with daylight burglars in homes isolated from neighbors and far back from the streets. Police make frequent checks of any home whose occupants report plans to be absent on trips, Wright said.

Wright said some Bridgeway businessmen are reluctant to testify against panhandlers or shoplifters because they cannot spare time away from their shops.

San Anselmo Chief Raymond Buchignani branded burglary "the most irritating of all" the crimes his men must fight. He said the computerized statewide police communications network has helped recover burglars' loot, but that few thieves get caught in the act.

Buchignani doubted that Marin County has any professional burglary rings. He said most of the thieves are young narcotics addicts who support their habits by selling their stolen goods on San Francisco street corners "at 10 cents on the dollar" or peddle them to professional fences outside Marin.

The San Anselmo official said his men always check the neighborhood after each burglary. They have often discovered that nearby residents could have supplied clues that would have been vital at the time, but were of little use later.

San Rafael Chief Joseph J. Brusatori said his department through what it calls its "good neighbor policy," urges anyone going on a trip to alert police and then ask neighbors to keep an eye on the unoccupied home.

"Many of the calls turn out not to be crimes," Brusatori admitted. He cited the latest instance: A youth seen testing a house for unlocked windows was found to be a relative of the homeowner rather than a burglar.

"But not every burglar alarm that goes off is a crime, either," Brusatori noted. "Even if it's only every tenth call to the police that catches a burglar, it's well worth it."

SIDNEY STINSON
Bold theft tale

Undersheriff Sidney Stinson said deputies sometimes are frustrated by neighbors' apathy. One case a few years ago involved a moving van which pulled up in broad daylight outside a vacationing family's home in Southern Marin. A crew emptied the house of its contents. Neighbors who knew the family was on a trip watched but did not call police. The bystanders later told deputies they "didn't want to get involved," Stinson recalled.

Stinson pleaded for calls, even if the witnesses desired to remain anonymous. "We're not going to get them involved if they don't want to," he declared.

Another side of the coin is reported by a Larkspur housewife who did call the police when she saw strangers at a neighbors' house. Three burglers were arrested.

The woman spent most of three weeks in courtroom appearances. She said she felt, after it was over, that the convicted burglars might mark her house for avisit after they serve their sentences.

Naturalist Says Cove Plan Safe

A 102-unit apartment project on Strawberry Cove, contrary to fears by opponents of the project, will not affect wildlife in the cove.

This was the prediction Saturday of Elizabeth Terwilliger of Mill Valley, a naturalist invited by the Save Strawberry Cove Committee to its rally to protest the project.

Mrs. Terwilliger, addressing about 75 persons at the rally at the site of the proposed project, noted that the apartments will be entirely on existing dry land, thus will not disturb any plant life on which the wildlife depends for food. She said that the only proposed intrusion on the bay was a boardwalk for public use, and that the Greenbrae boardwalk had not disturbed wildlife.

Mrs. Terwilliger also noted that shorebirds feed peacefully right beside the runway at Hamilton Air Force Base, thus the far quieter apartments certainly would not disturb the wildlife.

The rally almost got off to a rocky start when the developer, Paul J. Broman of Peacock Gap, objected that the committee had planned the affair on the 6.5-acre parcel without even asking permission for its use. A deputy sheriff was on the scene, but a confrontation was avoided when the committee asked for, and got, permission to use the parcel for the rally.

Baby Recovers After Plunge

A 14-month-old San Rafael girl who had fallen 25 feet to a concrete driveway Friday was released from Marin General Hospital yesterday after treatment for head injuries.

Tabatha Lee Roberson, who lives with her mother at 260 Canal Street, apparently jumped at 11 p.m. from the arms of Dwaine D. Lange as he tried to open the front door of the home, police said.

Police said a blanket in which the infant was wrapped softened the fall and may have saved her life.

Daughter In Search For Her Mother

The daughter of a missing 73-year-old Ross woman followed a small dog through the foggy hills near Phoenix Lake today hoping the animal would lead her to her mother.

Ross Police Chief John F. Harris said Margaret L. Jones of 22 Bridge Road went looking with the dog after the small German Shepherd last seen with Evelyn H. Jones, wandered home at 8 a.m. today. The elder Mrs. Jones disappeared Thursday.

Police said the dog was seen walking down Lagunitas Road from the direction of Phoenix Lake.

Police continued to search today between the town and the lake, Harris said, and the Sheriff's Marine Patrol was to drag Phoenix Lake this afternoon.

The chief said the Marin Municipal Water District has promised four or five men for the search and Hamilton Air Force Base is trying to recruit volunteer searchers.

Fog has prevented an aerial search of the area, the chief said.

When last seen, Mrs. Jones was wearing an orange sweater, blue skirt and tennis shoes. Police described her as 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighing 145 pounds and wearing glasses.

She was out for a walk when she disappeared, police said.

Sausalitan Jailed For Forgery; 'Enjoyed Every Minute Of It'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A pretty young blonde from Sausalito claims to have forged more than $50,000 worth of checks in four months and "enjoyed every minute" of it.

Janice Long, 20, jailed in San Francisco for forging checks at various Bank of America branches, said yesterday, "I know I'm going to have to pay for what I've done. But I enjoyed every minute. God, I couldn't stand being a housewife with 10 kids doing the suburb bit."

Miss Long said she had an accomplice who supplied her with checks punched with a victim's name and information from confidential bank files, including a copy of the signature.

She said she then practiced the signatures, visited several banks in a day and headed back to her $385-a-month hillside apartment in Sausalito.

Her operation ended when she aroused suspicions by attempting to cash a check of a woman in her 70s. The account had been with the bank since 1956, when Miss Long was 6.

In an interview with a reporter, she said she had quit school after 11th grade, but soon landed in a juvenile home for forging payroll checks.

She married at 18, but has been separated from her husband for almost two years.

"I just didn't care for him," she said. "He was a pimp. But I don't like working as a prostitute, mainly because there's no money in it. Too much hard work for the return," Miss Long said.

She said she was a hairstylist and wig maker, and had thought about going straight when she came to the Bay Area nine months ago. "But they wanted to pay me 70 bucks a week. No thanks."

Policy Airing Due At Reed Board Meeting

The Reed School District board will meet tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Bel Aire School with representatives of the district's Certified Employees Council to discuss district personnel policies.

Interim Supt. Irwin Karp said the personnel matters include board policies on tenure, evaluation of teachers, probationary status and teacher assignment within the district. The meeting will be open to the public.

The board also will consider an extension of a contract with the county schools office for an administrative assistant for Karp. A previous contract, under which Stanley H. Friese served as interim superintendent for the district, expired Dec. 31.

Burglars Hit 3 Petaluma Firms

Petaluma Estates Mobile Home Park, 901 North McDowell Boulevard, reported two heaters valued at $160 were stolen from an office trailer. Huntington Brothers, a construction firm at the same site, said a two-way radio valued at $250 was stolen.

Tools valued at $950 were reported stolen from a workshop at Petaluma Redi-Mix Cement Co., Hopper and Jefferson streets

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

In Tourney Play, Overtricks Are Heart And Soul Of Play

Swindles are more important in tournaments than at rubber bridge. It isn't necessary to flimflam the opponents out of an overtrick at rubber bridge; the other players would resent the waste of time. But overtricks are the heart and soul of tournament play, and many an expert has won a championship by hornswoggling his opponents out of a 30-point overtrick when the contract was never in doubt. Today's hand, played by Los Angeles expert Edwin Kantar, is typical.

THREE NO-TRUMP

Imagine that you are playing the South hand at three no-trump in a tournament. Your object is to win as many tricks as possible. The opening lead gives you a club trick, and you are sure of four spades, four diamonds and a heart for a total of 10 tricks. How should you try for an 11th trick?

If you try a routine play in clubs, West will win the switch to hearts. Then you will have to take your 10 tricks while the taking is good.

See if you can work out a plausible swindle before you read on. Someday you may need a stunt of this kind to make your contract.

BEGINS EARLY

Kantar saw that his main chance for an 11th trick was in clubs. He also saw that a routine play in that suit would not work. He therefore appealed to West's normal greed.

Kantar won the first trick with the king of clubs! And then, at the second trick, Kantar calmly led the eight of clubs!

West looked at this card suspiciously. What was declarer doing? But it seemed clear that East had the ten and jack of clubs since South had used the king of clubs to beat the nine at the first trick.

FOUR EARLY TRICKS

Perhaps South wanted to give up four early tricks in the hope of arriving at a squeeze position. Or perhaps South had merely gone out of his mind. It happens now and then in bridge tournaments.

At any rate, West played low on South's eight of clubs, and Kantar had his 11th trick then and there. You may be sure he ran off the rest of his tricks without trying any further fancy stunts.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 8 4 3
♥ - J 7 5
♦ - 9 4
♣ - A Q 7 5 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Since youhave only seven points in high cards, the combined count can be only 25 points at most. This is very unlikely to produce a game, and there is no reason to disturb the part-score contract of 1 no-trump.

WELCOME TO THE 10 HOUR WORK WEEK!

If you would like to work 10 hours a week at your own pace, in your own car, and build your own business . . .

If you would like to invest as little as $600 to $1500 in spare cash to start a business that can give you a nice return per year, then we'd better have a little talk!

We'll show you how to make your spare time pay handsome dividends with UII Snack Shop Vending Machines. A proven business opportunity in a growing $5 billion market where 80% of the business is done by the small independent operator.

No experience necessary! No personal sales call necessary! We will train you, counsel you, secure your locations. All you need is your car, a small investment, and be willing to work hard to become a success. Your conscientious effort will determine your income.

Are you ready to start improving your income? Then write.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Doctors Were Mystified When X-Ray Showed Strange Object

When an X-ray of the abdomen or chest is taken, the clothing is removed because metallic objects, such as buttons, coins, buckles or pins, show up on the films. Pills or tablets in the stomach or intestine might do the same. These objects usually are recognized by the roentgenologist, but occasionally their appearance and location confuse the diagnosis.

A 28-YEAR-OLD man developed back pain during a series of daily tennis matches. It was accompanied by "drawing feelings" in the left leg. An X-ray of the spine was essentially normal but a ½-inch oval shadow was seen within the kidney area. The man denied taking any medication and never had renal colic or kidney trouble.

When the X-ray was repeated a week later, the oval shadow appeared to be smaller and had moved to the right. The man was asked again about medicines and finally admitted taking a vitamin tablet at breakfast. It was not mentioned earlier because he did not consider vitamins as medication. He stopped taking the pill and a subsequent X-ray was clear. Apparently, the shadows represented vitamin tablets, each in a different stage of absorption in the stomach.

DR. JOSEPH M. Benforado of Madison, Wis., decided to experiment and X-rayed the abdomen after various medications were swallowed. A large number could be seen via the X-ray.

A 2½-year-old child was admitted to Tampa General Hospital because of bloody urine. X-ray showed that an opaque foreign body had pierced through the small intestine and was embedded in the right kidney. An operation was done and the foreign body proved to be a bobby pin that the child had swallowed. It was removed, and the urine was clear within 24 hours.

The authors searched the medical literature, and of seven reports of foreign bodies in the kidneys of children, six were bobby or hair pins. Most of these objects pass through the intestines without causing trouble, but exceptions occur.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

NEURITIC PAIN

REPLY

Methinks you have overlooked the cause. All the vitamins in the world will not help neuritis due to infection rather than vitamin deficiency. Too often, "neuritis" is a convenient catchall for any ill-defined pain that cannot be diagnosed accurately. True neuritis follows the exact distribution of the affected nerve.

BIOPSY EXPLAINED

W. K. writes: What is a biopsy and is it a painful procedure?

REPLY

A biopsy is the removal of a piece of tissue that is sent to the laboratory for microscopic study. In most instances the material is obtained by surgical incision or via a special needle (needle biopsy). An anesthetic is given to make it painless.

DRY SKIN AND HAIR

REPLY

The commonest cause of this combination of symptoms is a deficiency of thyroid secretion. Age may do the same, in that the hair tends to thin and the skin may get dry as the person grows older.

Indian Maiden's Skirt Too Long?

It's up to the women of Florida.

Secretary of State Richard Stone, whose various duties include being official custodian of the state seal, recently found the original Florida seal and he said the Indian girl on it definitely is clad in a miniskirt.

That seal was adopted more than a century ago —nobody recalls exactly when — and sometime since then, her skirt got longer.

"We'd like to hear from the women of Florida," Stone said. "my preference is definitely the mini, without any question, but it's up to the women."

Injuries Minor In 2-Car Crash

An 18-year-old Mill Valley man received minor injuries in a two-car accident at 7:25 p.m. Saturday on Highway 101 at the Strawberry overpass, California Highway Patrol reported yesterday.

Martin Matthew Nolan of 39 B Valley Road, was treated for multiple facial scrapes and cuts at Marin General Hospital, according to hospital officials.

Janet Marie Moulthrup, 16, of 133 Tamal Vista Drive, San Rafael, a passenger in the Nolan car, was examined and released with no apparent injuries, according to hospital officials.

Nolan was northbound when his car collided with another northbound car driven by Enrique Carlos Bocedi, 35, of San Francisco, CHP reported.

Open House For Barbershoppers

An "open house" audition for people who like to sing together will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Elks Club Carriage House in San Rafael by the Marin Chapter of the Society for Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

The barbershoppers are seeking singers for quartets and for their barbershop chorus, which president Thomas Knight hopes to expand from 40 to 100 voices.

No music reading ability is needed, Knight said.

The chorus meets each Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Elks Club for a two and one-half hour session with Ned Hardin, music instructor at Balboa High School in San Francisco, as director.

Any day, any knight — good reading

MARIN COUNTY FLOOD CONTROL AND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT
SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS INVITING SEALED PROPOSALS OR BIDS

Sealed Proposals will be received by, and shall be filed with, the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Marin, State of California, Room 15, Marin County Civic Center, San Rafael, California, until 2:00 P.M., February 3, 1971, for:

The installation for a ten horsepower pumping unit, relocation and modification of a control system, and related work in Santa Venetia, Marin County, California.

The work shall be done in accordance with official plans and specifications prepared in reference thereto which may be seen at the office of the Department of Public Works, County of Marin. Request for forms or information shall be addressed to the Department of Public Works, County of Marin, Civic Center, San Rafael, California.

Proposals will be opened and read at 2:00 P.M., in Room No. 332, Marin County Civic Center, on the day specified above.

The award of the contract, if it be awarded, will be to the lowest responsible bidder whose proposal complies with all specified requirements. The award, if made, will be made within thirty (30) days after the opening of the proposals.

The Board of Supervisors of the Marin County Flood Control and Water Conservation District has made a determination of the prevailing rate of hourly wages applicable to the work to be performed. Copies of this determination are on file in the office of the County Clerk, Civic Center, Room 315, San Rafael, California, and are available to any interested party upon request. Copies may be obtained from the Department of Public Works, Room 304, Civic Center.

The Board of Supervisors of the Marin County Flood Control and Water Conservation District reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Exotic Plans For Transit: Cryogenics

NEW YORK (UPI)—Various cities and the Federal Department of Transportation are working on far out new methods of rapid transit.

Los Angeles and the Federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration (FUMTA) are designing a $50 million, 16.3 mile link between the city's internatonal airport and the San Fernando Valley by means of an elevated air cushion vehicle railway moving at 150 miles an hour.

And for the new city of Columbia, Md., being built by Rouse Co., the Bendix Corp. of Detroit and FUMTA plan an automatic system with unmanned cars running on guideways controlled by electronic headway sensors.

Dr. Paul L. Richards, a University of California physicist, has proposed a rapid transit system employing cryogenic magnets enabling cars to move at 300 mph through the air about one-foot above the track. He said the Japanese National Railway hopes to develop such a system by 1980. The cars would move on ordinary wheels at speeds of up to 50 mph. Then the magnets would take over and lift them off the track. At cryogenic temperatures near absolute zero (460 below zero F.) the magnets would be superconductive and free of all electrical interference. The principle by which like poles of two magnets repel each other would create the suspension force.

In a recent article in Aerospace magazine, FUMTA Administrator Carlos Villarreal said the nation should spend $28 to $34 billion on new and rebuilt rapid transit systems over the next 15 years. But Villarreal's department told United Press International it does not have the answer to perhaps the most important question about rapid transit —how can the public be persuaded to return to public transportation and give up riding in private cars for everyday work?

"You can rest assured we're not goingto spend millions on a system without proof it's needed, though," a spokesman said. "And we're not really trying to replace the automobile."

Thus, proposals for Federal spending on urban rapid transit are running into some of the problems facing the supersonic air transport program. How do you determine the real need for it and whether the public will accept it before you build it? Villarreal's spokesman said that feasibility studies for far out rapid transit schemes fortunately need not be expensive in a big way. For example, only $350,000 has been allotted for feasibility studies for the Los Angeles air cushion railway.

But Grumman Corp. of Bethpage, N.Y. has a $3 million contract to design the prototype air cushion vehicle.

Garrett Airesearch of Torrance, Calif., has a $770,000 contract to design and build a linear induction motor for air cushion trains and wheeled trains capable of speeds up to 300 mph.

Transportation Secretary Volpe calls this "the most exciting new development in mass transport."

BEST SHOWS FOR TONIGHT

KRON (4), KCRA (3), 8 p.m. — Dan Rowan and Dick Martin welcome Joey Bishop to their show, "Laugh-In."

KQED (9), 9 p.m. — "Realities" presents "Marathon," filmed excerpts from a two-day encounter group session led by New York psychologist Dr. Mark E. Goldstein.

KPIX (5), 11:30 p.m. — Les Brown, Xavier Cugat, Freddy Martin, Tex Beneke, Stan Kenton, Woody Herman, Charlie Barnet, Frankie Carle, Bob Crosby and Vaughn Monroe are among the featured guests when Merv Griffin presents a two-part special salute to the big bands on his late night show.

Oil Industry Plans Spill Compensation

PITTSBURGH — (BW) — Gulf Oil Corp. has announced a voluntary oil industry compensation assurance of up to $30 million per incident for oil spill damage claims.

The agreement, signed recently in New York by petroleum companies representing 80 per cent of the world's waterborne oil shipments, expands the scope of a 1969 pact among 80 per cent of the world's tanker owners providing $10 million in reimbursement to governments for oil spill clean up costs.

As a participant, Gulf's share of the new compensation fund, based on its percentage of waterborne oil shipments, is a maximum of about $1.23 million per incident.

"Speaking for my company, we believe the new agreement is one of the most significant and far-reaching environmental protection measures yet devised for the movement of oil by water on a worldwide basis," P. B. Binsted, president, Gulf Oil Co. — Transportation, declared.

"No Gulf tanker is permitted to discharge oil or oily wastes at sea — only into shore facilities where it can be treated properly. We recently developed, and are testing under voyage conditions, the 'skimcleen' technique for cleaning cargo tanks to reduce the danger of explosions.

"Our tankers, some of which are among the largest in the world, are equipped with the most modern navigation and safety systems. We are engaged in research efforts aimed at reducing further the possibility of spills and improving removal methods if they do occur.

"Nevertheless, we recognize our share of the responsibility for helping to insure prompt and effective action in the event of accidental spills and to recompense those who may have sustained damages as a result."

Binsted pointed out that under the new agreement, Contract Regarding an Interim Supplement to Tanker Liability for oil pollution (CRISTAL), Gulf and the other participating petroleum companies pledged to compensate claimants for oil spill damages beyond the liability of tanker owners — up to a total of $30 million per incident.

He noted that the 1969 arrangement among tanker owners, Tanker Owners Voluntary Agreement Concerning Liability for Oil Pollution (TOVALOP), $10 million per incident has been made available to governments to reimburse costs for oil spill clean up expenditures.

In addition to agreeing to the new claimants compensation arrangement, Binsted explained, the participating companies established the Institute for Marine Pollution compensation to administer the CRISTAL funds.

"We anticipate that, eventually, there will be international conventions dealing with tanker owner liability for oil spills and a supplementary fund supported by cargo interests," Binsted added.

"Meanwhile, 80 per cent of the cargo shippers are expressing their concern and sense of responsibility for providing, voluntarily, TOVALOP and CRISTAL."

Scientists In Agonizing Reappraisal

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UPI)—There is growing evidence that the world of science is taking a hard look at itself and its role in society.

"Some of it comes from the pressure of events that have gone ill," says Dr. David Rose, a professor of nuclear engineering.

For years, with the explosion of knowledge and technology, science and engineering went along doing their things with little thought of the long range consequences.

Bigger and better power generating facilities were built, manufacturing plants of every size and description prolferated across the land, larger and larger quantities of fertilizer and pesticides were thrown into farm operations, more and bigger cars were produced and put onto highways, and the highways were expanded and spread in a growing network to take care of the pressure of increased traffic.

Then more and more people began to notice that the air was no longer fit to breathe in some places, the water was becoming dirtier and dirtier, pollution of every sort was threatening wildlife and finally all life on the planet.

"It has always been easy to alter something," says Rose, who is something of a history buff along with his scientific endeavors. "But it's much harder to understand what these alterations mean."

And that's where science finds itself changing —taking a look at the changes that are proposed, the projects that are planned, to see if the project really is worth the effort and what it will mean, not merely in the accomplishment of a narrow goal but in a wider sense of total environmental effect.

Evidence of the change in viewpoint is a $1.5 million grant from the National Science Foundation in use here since last summer, for a year's research in a number of environmental areas, including a study of man's life style itself, and posing the question of whether man's institutions can be changed to meet the social as well as the technological needs of the people in an industrial society.

Doctors Report Way That Relieves Itching, Pain Of Swollen Hemorrhoidal Tissues

First Applications Give Prompt, Temporary Relief in Many Cases

There's a most effective medication that in many cases gives prompt relief for hours from such hemorrhoidal discomfort and actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by the inflammation. The answer is doctor-tested Preparation H®.

There's no other hemorrhoidal formula like Preparation H and it needs no prescription. Ointment or suppositories.

TEACHER OF WEEK

Gordon Lowe Beats The Band

"Y' wanna be there when the band starts playin' ... "

And when the band starts playing at Terra Linda High School, Gordon E. Lowe will be there — whether it's the 100-piece symphonic band (which also is the marching band during football season), the 50-piece freshman concert band, or the 20-piece stage band. He directs them all.

He also directs the Terra Linda High School Orchestra, another 50-piece aggregation. And all are consistent winners in high school musical competitions. In fact, in the 10 years he's been music director at Terra Linda High, Lowe has entered his musicians in nine Northern California High School Music Festivals and captured first prizes in eight of them.

Obviously, Gordon E. Lowe is a man who likes what he's doing. Music and music teaching have been his life, ever since as a small boy in Colorado he traded a coaster wagon for a trumpet. "By the sixth grade, I knew I wanted to teach music," he once said.

He played trumpet in a traveling tent show during summer vacations while in high school, majored in music at Western State Teachers College in Gunnison, Colo., and entered teaching at Delta, Colo. For two years during World War II, he taught at the Navy School of Music in Washington, then went to University of Southern California to complete work on a master's degree, after which he became music teacher at Tulare High School. He stayed at Tulare until moving to Terra Linda.

Lowe enforces strict discipline among his high school musicians, and wins their respect and often their devotion by doing so. And they, in turn, win respect, praise and even devotion of parents and other Trojan boosters with their performances on stage and football gridiron.

Meeting Off

The regular meeting of the Marin County Housing Authority, scheduled for Wednesday, has been cancelled, according to Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director of the authority. He said the next regular meeting will be Feb. 2.

Terminal Discussion Scheduled

Site for a permanent ferry terminal in Sausalito will be discussed at a joint meeting of the Sausalito City Council and the transportation committee of the Golden Gate Bridge District at 8 p.m. tomorrow in city hall.

The planners acted on the Recommendation of Sausalito planning director H. Eric Borgwardt, who opposes the Litho Street location.

In the conditional use permit which the city council granted to the bridge district in July to permit operation of a ferry in Sausalito, the council asked for a permanent terminal located in North Sausalito and an additional downtown whistle stop.

The bridge district, which originally agreed to both conditions imposed by the city, now says the north terminal and downtown stop are not feasible.

Plans for the central facilities include a 300-car underground parking garage, a park area and tourist-oriented businesses.

Pollak Exhibit Set To Open In San Francisco

A two-month exhibition of the world famous color etchings and paintings by the late Max Pollak of Sausalito will open Saturday in the Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco.

Friedl Pollak, his widow, said it would be the largest display of the Czech-born artist's works ever assembled. Many of the etchings are from museum collections; others have been loaned from private collections. The exhibition will include one full room of the etchings, and the museum's sculpture gallery will be turned over to a display of his oils, from private collections and from Mrs. Pollak's own collection.

PRAISE FROM HIS BOSS

Reinecke Looking Ahead To '74

By GEORGE SKELTON

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke plans to run for governor in 1974 and hopes to have the support of Gov. Ronald Reagan — a man whose philosophy he agrees with completely.

Reagan says that's too far ahead to firm up pre-primary political alliances, but he speaks in laudatory terms of his lieutenant governor and describes him as sort of personal "corporate executive vice president."

Reagan says his relations with the present lieutenant governor are "smoother" than they were with Robert H. Finch, Reinecke's predecessor. But he credits this to a new structuring of the office and not the "personalities" of the two.

Without question, Reagan and Reinecke comprise the closest governor-lieutenant governor team in modern California history. Absent are the differences of ideology and political ambition that frequently have strained relations between governors and their standbys.

Reinecke, a good-looking 47-year-old former Republican congressman from the San Fernando Valley, was appointed by Reagan to succeed Finch two years ago this month when the latter became President Nixon's Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Reinecke, former head of a lawn sprinkler business, soon began talking privately about running for governor when Reagan steps down.

"I haven't changed my mind," he said in an interview. He hasn't "closed the door" to running for the Senate in 1974 either, but adds, "I'd prefer to stay here."

Reinecke's potential competition for the Republican gubernatorial nomination include State Controller Houston I. Flournoy, Attorney General Evelle J. Younger, Assembly minority leader Robert T. Monagan and Finch.

Reinecke says "I would hope" to have Reagan's support, but they haven't discussed it.

The lieutenant governor says, "I haven't found any disagreements" with Reagan, and he concurs with the governor's political philosophy, which he terms "a common sense, no nonsense kind of attitude about what is fair and right."

Reagan, in a separate interview, said he has learned "better uses" for the lieutenant governor's office since when Finch occupied it during what he terms the administration's "shakedown cruise."

"I have a totally new concept," Reagan says, "and have had for some time. You have a manpower there that should be utilized in the nuts and bolts running of government. My concept now of the lieutenant governor is that of a corporate executive vice president. He is at cabinet meetings and a part of the decision-making process of government."

When Finch was lieutenant governor, Reagan says, "he was away attending boards and commissions day after day and weeks would go by that we weren't even in contact with each other."

Reinecke serves on roughly two dozen boards and commissions, including the University of California Board of Regents and state college board of trustees.

He maintains the cure for unruly demonstrators —like the ones who heckled Reagan's recent inauguration —is "peer pressure. Let other kinds see what fools they make of themselves. I think the younger gernation itself is going to clean this thing up."

Reinecke regards himself as an ecologist and is working on several long-range projects designed to protect the environment.

They include the "far out" possibility of building a plastic chimney into the sky to flush out smog and constructing a wasteline along the bottom of the Sacramento river to carry sewage to a common delta processing facility.

He flatly opposes more oil drilling in the Santa Barbara Channel until spillage safeties are perfected. And he believes automobile antismog regulations possibly should be toughened.

"Either Detroit learns to live with tough emission standards or they get another engine," he says.

'Moby Dick'

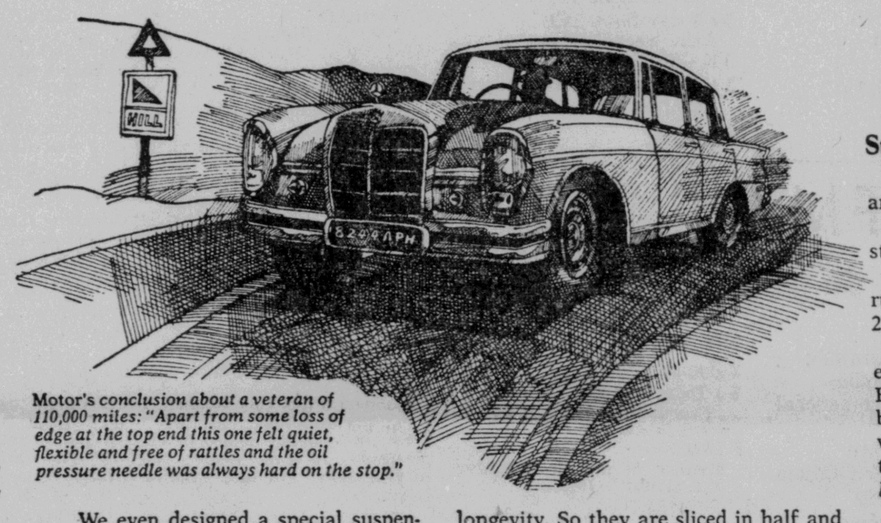
The best way to appreciate a new Mercedes-Benz is to test drive an old Mercedes-Benz.



Motor's conclusion about a veteran of 110,000 miles: "Apart from some loss of edge at the top end this one felt quiet, flexible and free of rattles and the oil pressure needle was always hard on the stop."

So before you buy a new Mercedes-Benz, we invite you to test drive an old Mercedes-Benz.

Finding a car to test is really no problem. A neighbor or a friend may own one. (Your dealer probably has several on hand.) But we urge you to be selective. Pick one with a substantial accumulation of miles.

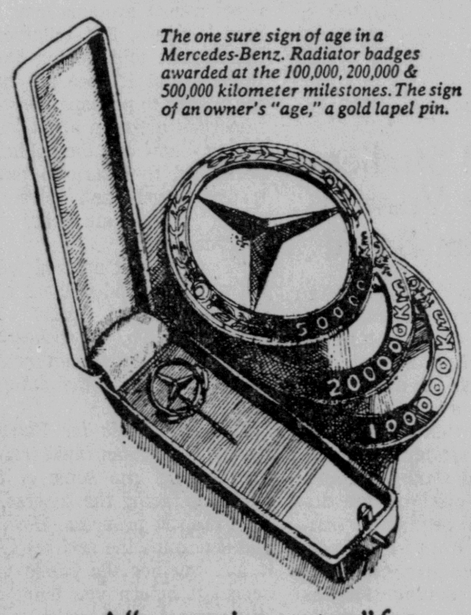
We award them to a Mercedes-Benz after 100,000, 200,000 and 500,000 kilometers. (The European equivalent of 62,500, 125,000 and 312,000 miles.)



The one sure sign of age in a Mercedes-Benz. Radiator badges awarded at the 100,000, 200,000 & 500,000 kilometer milestones. The sign of an owner's "age," a gold lapel pin.

A "suspension system" for the exhaust system

Take your test car down a potholed road and listen for audible protests of age.

A journalist from Motor recently put an eight-year-old Mercedes-Benz roadster to the test. "What impressed me most," he concluded, "was the solidity of the body—not a squeak or rattle to be heard."

We're flattered. But not surprised. Because we view every part of a Mercedes-Benz as a potential rattle.

Instead of bolting body and frame together, we fuse it with 8,000 or more welds.

Window glass rides in a channel that's buttressed in three directions.

An intriguing contest

Notice how new and tight the engine, drivetrain and suspension feel.

Recently in the Road & Track series "After The New Wears Off," the engineering editor summed up 35,000 miles in his Mercedes-Benz by saying simply, "The car is more impressive than when new."

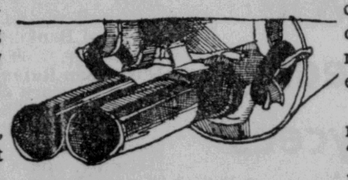
To keep our "new" from wearing off, we engineer the running gear to last as long as the body. A lengthy but intriguing contest indeed.

To make sure it will, vital mechanisms must pass thousands of tests.

We consume more than 40,000 gallons of fuel a month testing every engine before installation. Some for as long as five hours.

After nine successive applications at 135 mph in a "destruction" test, disc brakes turn fiery red. They must endure this torture fifty different times—and suffer no damage.

Even seemingly unimportant items like dashboard knobs must prove their longevity. So they are sliced in half and analyzed by infrared spectography.



Rubber "doughnuts" suspend tailpipes and mufflers under tension, rubber bumpers isolate them from the body. The exhaust system may never rattle.

A revolutionary old car

Today an old Mercedes-Benz bristles with features that still seem revolutionary compared to the '71 cars of other makers.

The reason is simple. Our engineering decisions are made by engineers. Not cost accountants. When they find a way to make an improvement, they make it. Without waiting until it can be made as cheaply as what it replaces.

Take an old Mercedes-Benz through some curves. Unless it's a pre-1930 model, you'll discover the nimble reflexes that come from fully independent suspension. An innovation yet to be discovered by domestic sedans.

Look at the model nameplate. If you spot an "E," the car has something no American car has, an einspritzsystem (German for fuel injection). Developed for Mercedes-Benz grand prix cars, it provides a substantial increase in power with no sacrifice in economy.

Apply the brakes. Mercedes-Benz believes the brakes should be the most powerful part of any car. So we introduced disc brakes in 1961. Put them on all four wheels in 1968. No domestic sedan today offers four disc brakes, even as an option.

Starting from the inside

To keep the outside looking new, we start protecting it from the inside.

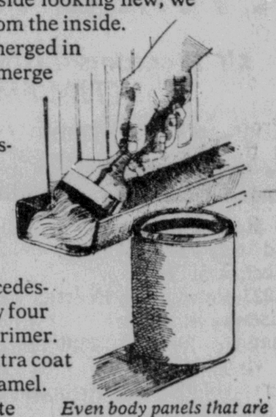
But that's not enough for Mercedes-Benz. The inside of body panels that were welded airtight were painted before welding.

Outside, a Mercedes-Benz is protected by four coats of paint and primer. The front gets an extra coat of chip-resistant enamel.



Even body panels that are welded airtight can corrode inside. So before we weld, we spray them with zinc oxide. And paint vital areas by hand.

We even insulate the side trim from the body with a strip of rubber. And sheath the clips that attach it with plastic grommets, so that metal can never bite through paint and start rust.

The "average" Mercedes-Benz: $7,700

Building automobiles you can appreciate when they're "old" cars has made our new cars more expensive than most.

There are ten Mercedes-Benz models priced from $5,350 to $8,259—without options. And six limited editions, largely handcrafted, from $12,718 to $29,617*.

In the meantime, be sure and test drive an "old" Mercedes-Benz. And, just for comparison, an old anything else.

After all, you live most of your life with an old car. So you should know what your next car will be like after the "new" wears off.

Not Classy, But It Still Spells Super Win For Colts

ARNIE SECOND

Shaw Wins The Crosby

Palmer, who wants a tourney title so bad he can taste it, almost pulled it off at Bing Crosby's annual clambake during the weekend. But it was a case of close, but no cigar.

Shaw, who admits Arnie was his golfing idol when he first came on the tour in 1963, was responsible for Palmer's latest disappointment.

Shaw, who hadn't won a tourney himself since mid-1969, scrambled home with a two-under-par 70 Sunday to beat Palmer by two strokes and win the Crosby.

The 41-year-old Palmer hasn't won since the Danny Thomas Diplomat Classic at the end of 1969. He came very close to winning the Crosby when he eagled the par-five second and birdied the fourth Sunday in unusual summer-like weather at Pebble Beach. But his luck and putting touch deserted him after that as he came home with a one-under 71 for a 280 score.

Shaw, who won only $33,004 last year, picked up a check for $27,000 for winning the Crosby and added to the $1,265 he won at the Los Angeles Open in the year's first tourney, he now almost has matched his 1970 earnings in just two weeks.

"It's nice to win again," said the soon to be 29-year-old who won the Doral and Avco classics two years ago. "I really needed this title (Crosby) because I can't think of anything worse than having to play on Mondays again."

Shaw was referring to qualifying play, which is held on Monday of each tourney week. He's gone that route before. In fact, the only year since 1967 that he didn't have to play in qualifying rounds was 1970 after he had gained exemption status for his 1969 play.

In describing his Crosby victory, Shaw said he played his most consistent golf in a long time, and that made the difference.

"I felt I played quite deliberately," said Shaw. "When I stepped up to the ball I was ready to play."

He was, too. Tom shared the first and second round leads and then went ahead of Palmer and the field by a stroke in the third, a round in which he didn't have a single bogey. In the final, he had had four birdies on the front side and the rest of the holes he parred until he got to 17.

By then, Shaw was four strokes ahead of Palmer, who was putting out on 18, and let up "just a little." He bogied that par-three hole by missing a 15-foot putt and then also bogied the par-five 18th when he missed from two feet.

"I couldn't believe Pebble was going to be that good to me," he quipped, "So I had to give something back."

Palmer was the only man to make a run at Shaw in the final round. Arnie went ahead of Shaw by a stroke with his eagle at two and bird at four but then ran into putting troubles.

"I was getting them up," said golf's most popular player. "I lost it (the tourney) on those

O'Brien's Field Goal Does Job

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Editor

MIAMI (UPI) —The Baltimore Colts didn't exactly do it the classy way Brooks Robinson and the Baltimore Orioles did—but they'll take it anyway.

They fumbled five times, they threw three pass interceptions, they flubbed an extra point, and three of 'em even collided trying to stop a punt from going into the end zone—nothing like the super way Robinson scooped up hot grounders for baseball's Orioles.

But the Colts are laughing all the way to the bank today to deposit their $15,000 checks—thanks to a 22-year-old long-haired rookie named Jim O'Brien, who redeemed all mistakes with a 32-yard field goal for a 16-13 win over the Dallas Cowboys.

"My mother's an astrologer and she told me we were gonna win," said O'Brien, who's not only an Aquarius himself (and isn't this the "Age of Aquarius?) but also (sorry, Cowboys) a born Texan.

While O'Brien's tie-breaking boot, in the final nine seconds, was the simple reason for the Colts' victory in Super Bowl V Sunday, the football pundits came up with several other reasons today why the Colts were able to gain revenge for their 1969 Super Bowl upset by the New York Jets.

"Our defense did it," explained Colt Coach Don McCafferty.

"The big play was in the third period," said Cowboys' Coach Tom Landry. "That was when Duane Thomas fumbled on the Colt goal line. If he had scored, we would have had a 20-6 lead and the Colts would have had to do a lot of catching up. After that, it was nothing but errors for us."

"Earl Morral did a fine job," explained Colt quarterback Johnny Unitas, who went out with a rib injury in the second period and then watched Morrall lead the Colts in dominating the second half.

"But a lot of fans were finding the key in the pass tossed by Cowboy quarterback Craig Morton with a minute to go that bounced off the hands of intended receiver Dan Reeves and was picked off by Colt Mike Curtis, who ran it back to the Cowboy 28 to set up O'Brien's field goal.

It turns out that pass, on a third-and-34 situation deep in Dallas territory, was one of the few plays all day called by Morton—rather than by Landry, who sends in plays from the sidelines by shuttling his tight ends.

"Morton made the right call," Landry insisted.

"He called it because we were in our 'two minute drill'." There wasn't time to shuttle players. But he made the right call because we were tring to win right then; we weren't planning on running out the clock and trying to win in overtime.

Morton had a 12-for-26 day, and whether he should have attempted a pass in that situation is something Cowboy fans probably will argue all summer.

But as Landry also pointed out, the Cowboys "had chances earlier and didn't score touchdowns." That was what McCafferty meant when he said the Colts' defense won the game.

In the first period, the Cowboys had a first down on the Colt nine and had to settle for Mike Clark's three-pointer.

'Too Many Mistakes,' Moans Craig Morton

"We beat ourselves—the fumble and two interceptions killed us," agreed Dallas Coach Tom Landry.

The interception by Rich Volk for Baltimore's tying touchdown in the fourth quarter and the interception by Mike Curtis, setting up a Jim O'Brien field goal giving the Colts their 16-13 Super Bowl win, were the difference and Landry pointed to still another Dallas mistake as the game breaker. Running back Duane Thomas fumbled the ball on the one yard line early in the third quarter and it was recovered by Jim Duncan for the Colts.

"Thomas' fumble undoubtedly was the big play of the game," Landry said. "If he scores its 20-6 and they have a lot of catching to do."

Curtis' interception came on a pass from Morton to running back Dan Reeves that brushed Reeves' hands and landed in the arms of Baltimore's burly linebacker. Earlier, Baltimore's John Mackey scored on a 75-yard touchdown pass that bounced off the fingertips of the Cowboys' Mel Renfro.

"What hurt most was giving up 10 points on two tipped plays" said Reeves, a player coach "This was the biggest game we ever played. I just wish we could have won it."

Another costly Dallas mistake came when Renfro allowed a short O'Brien field goal to roll dead on the one-yard line,

"I can't second guess myself, I thought the momentum would take it into the end zone," Renfro said.

Landry, who has been calling nearly all the Cowboys' plays from the sidelines for the last two months, said Morton called the pass that backfired into Curtis' interception. He said time was quickly expiring and, "We were in our two minute drill."

But he backed up Morton's decision to pass and try to win instead of forcing a sudden death overtime.

Two More Join Seal Injury List

OAKLAND (UPI) — That S.O.S. the California Seals are flying these days means "Save Our Skaters."

Each game seems to further dwindle the skimpy roster of the pro hockey team from Oakland. Latest to join the growing injury list are forward Gary Croteau and defenseman Wayne Muloin as the Seals dropped a 3-1 decision to theVancouver Canucks before 3,927 Sunday night at the Coliseum-Arena.

That leaves the Seals with only four healthy defensemen Doug Roberts, Bert Marshall, Ron Stackhouse and Dick Mattiussi — to go against the Pittsburgh Penguins at the Coliseum-Arena Wednesday night. However, Muloin may be ready to then.

Danny Johnson, Ray Cullen and Rosaire Paiement scored goals in separate periods for Vancouver to break a six-game winless string. The Canucks boast a 3-1 record against the Seals in their first season in the National Hockey League.

Norm Ferguson rifled a 12-footer into the nets with seven minutes remaining for his fifth goal to narrow the Vancouver lead to 2-1. But four minutes later, Paiement rocketed a 20-footer by Seals goalie Gary Smith.

Twenty-three penalties were whistled in the rough game, including a five-minute penalty for slashing to Barry Wilkins of the Canucks with one second left in the opening period. Wilkins grazed Ernie Hicke's head with a stick but Hicke returned to action.

Dennis Hextall of the Seals was called for five penalties.

Score by periods:

Vancouver	1	1	1	—3
California	0	0	1	—1

First period—1. Vancouver, Johnson 8 (Rizzuto, Seguin) 13:15. Penalties—Paiement (double minor) 6:32, Hextall, 6:32, O'Donoghue 8:53, Seguin 13:32, Hextall 14:32, Schella 14:32, B. Hicke 15:32, Wilkins 15:32, Marshall 18:00, Wilkins (major) 19:59.

Second period—2. Vancouver, Cullen 8 (Maki) 12:14. Penalties—Taylor 8:44, Ferguson 17:03.

Third period—3. California, Ferguson 5 (Hextall, Mattiussi) 13:00; 4. Vancouver, Paiement 10 (Bourias) 17:08. Penalties—Stackhouse 7:10, Hextall (double minor) 8:04;, Cullen (double minor) 8:04, Wilkins 10:51, Quinn 13:20, Hextall 18:11, Quinn (major, minor) 18:11.

SUPER VINDICATION

Earl Morrall Makes Up For Game Two Years Ago

MIAMI (UPI) — For Earl Morrall, Super Bowl V was a vindication he never really hoped for. For John Unitas, it was maybe his last chance at winning the big one of all, but he had no complaint about Morrall taking his place.

"You called a helluva fine ball game. You deserved it. Congratulations," the 37-year-old Unitas told Morrall in the victorious Colt dressing room after the 16-13 Baltimore triumph over Dallas in the Super bowl Sunday.

The victory was sweet for Morrall, 36, who got most of the blame for Baltimore's loss to the New York Jets in Super Bowl III two years ago. That day, he had started and Unitas relieved him — but couldn't pull the game out.

"Yes, I feel it personally. Coming back this time and being a winner, well, the satisfaction is great. It's just great," he said.

"I'm happy for Earl," said Unitas. "He did a fine job. I could have thrown, but there was quite a bit of pain.

"Earl was down in the dumps after our other Super Bowl. It was great he could come back," said Unitas.

"Thank God I've got six months to rest," he added.

Coach Don McCafferty gave the defense the lion's share of credit for the victory over the Cowboys.

"Our defense was outstanding all day long," he said. "with all the opportunities we gave Dallas, the defense did a wonderful job of keeping them from getting more points."

"It was fantastic, just fantastic, the whole thing," he said.

McCafferty said he made the decision for the touchdown with time running out at the end of the first half, Dallas ahead 13-6 and the Colts on the two yard line on fourth down.

"I figured, you get three points for a field goal or you get seven and go in at the half with the score tied, and that would have been a big lift. I made the decision and I was wrong — but if we had made the touchdown, I'd have been a helluva hero," said the Colt coach.

McCafferty said that when he saw the field goal coming up in the closing minute of the game with the score tied and the world championship riding on the outcome of rookie Jim O'Brien's field goal try, "I told Earl, 'you make sure and talk to O'Brien when he comes out there.' Earl does a good job of talking to these younger guys."

O'Brien said "Earl told me, 'just kick it through.' That's what I tried to do — do my usual thing. I concentrated on keeping my head down and I knew it was a good hit. I looked up and there it was flying right through."

Marin Tars Get Thumping From Contra Costa Comets

By DAVID EINSTEIN

The College of Marin Tars had tasted defeat only once all season prior to Saturday night's confrontation with Contra Costa. So the Comet basketballers generously gave them a banquet.

With fearful abandon and gross arrogance, the San Pablo team electrified 500 home town rooters and disenchanted about 50 Marin fans by demolishing the Tars, 91-61. Center Floyd Allen, who is listed at 6-foot-9 but appears to tower over Marin's Roosevelt Green (6-foot-6), and Ollie Ellison, who plays basketball as though his life depended on it, led the attack as the Comets, eighth ranked in California, tore up the fourth ranked Tars. Both teams now have 3-1 Camino Norte Conference records.

The explanation for this catastrophic loss, the Tars' second against 18 wins, is twofold. First, the Kentfield team would have had to play its best game of the year to win, and instead it played its worst. In racing terms, they got off to a slow start, stumbled in the turn, faded in the stretch and did not finish.

Second, and it might have made the difference even if Marin had played well, was that Contra Costa played magnificently.

Forcing the Tars to play their fast-breaking style of game, they ran up leads at various times of 8-0, 30-13, and finally hit a 30-point spread at 82-52.

Defensively, they shut Joe Smith down to just 16 points, and thwarted the rest of the Tars completely.

Allen was a central figure at both ends of the court. He handled Green with unbelievable ease, holding Marin's big inside weapon to just 10, while scoring a game-high 27 himself. Some of them came on jump shots, some on hooks, some on tip-ins. He apparently likes variety.

But equally as impressive as the mammoth Allen was Ellison, a bearded warrior who snatched 18 rebounds, to keep his place among the state leaders in that category. He also found time to score 20 points.

Pro Bowl Players Get Ready

The contest matches the best in the National and American football conferences.

Six men who played in the Super Bowl at Miami will arrive later this week. They are Mike Curtis, Jerry Logan and Bubba Smith of the Baltimore Colts and Bob Lilly, John Niland and Mel Renfro of the Dallas Cowboys.

The NFC all-stars will work out at UCLA while the AFC team is scheduled to drill at University of Southern California's Bovard Field.

Another Week Before Tam, Redwood Cagers Collide

Tamalpais and Redwood high schools, which lead the Marin County Athletic League basketball race with three wins and no losses apiece, should remain atop the standings in this, the second full week of league action.

The Giants of Larkspur and the Indians of Mill Valley do not meet each other until next Tuesday, in the second to last game of the first round robin. Meantime, Redwood gets San Rafael tomorrow and Drake on Friday, while Tam plays Terra Linda and San Rafael.

The San Rafael-Redwood game, at Redwood, will start at 4 p.m. All other games tomorrow — Terra Linda at Tam, Drake at Novato and San Marin at Marin Catholic — begin at 7 p.m.

In Friday's games, all beginning at 8 o'clock, Tam is at San Rafael, Redwood is at home against Drake, Terra Linda hosts San Marin and Marin Catholic is at Novato.

Graham, Priest First In Pro-Am

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—Lou Graham, given a big hand by Father John Durkin, an Air Force chaplain stationed at Scott Air Force Base in Illinois, won $3,200 in the pro-am competition of the Bing Crosby golf tournament Sunday.

Graham shot a one-under-par 287 on his own ball to tie for 11th place in the pro competition but Durkin, playing to a 17 handicap, helped the team chalk up a 34-under-par 254 score that won the pro-am competition by a stroke over the team of pro Jack Burke Jr. and George Coleman of Palm Beach, Fla.

Two strokes farther back at 257 came the team of pro Tony Clecak and amateur E. Grant Fitts of Dallas.

Warriors Confident After Win

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Proving they can win with one of their stars out of the lineup, the San Francisco Warriors today entered the second-half of the NBA season with a confident attitude.

With All Star Jerry Lucas sidelined with the flu, the Warriors put on one of their top defensive shows of the season Saturday night to down the New York Knicks 102-93. A total of 11,681 persons, biggest "home" crowd of the season, watched the game at the Oakland Coliseum-Arena.

So instead of moving to St. Louis next season, Warriors owner Franklin Mieuli ought to investigate Oakland.

Spidery center Nate Thurmond keyed a tenacious defense for the Warriors that limited the defending world champions to only 23 field goals in the last three quarters. That averages out to less than 16 points a quarter from the floor.

Thurmond completely outplayed New York's Willis Reed, scoring 22 points and grabbing a game-high 27 rebounds.

The Warriors outscored the Knicks 16-5 at the start of the fourth quarter for a 93-75 advantage which New York never was able to overcome. New York also committed 15 turnovers to 14 for the Warriors.

"The win makes me feel good," said coach Al Attles who has led the Warriors to a 26-23 record in the Pacific Division, one game behind frontrunner Los Angeles.

"If we can play a game like this with a big man like Lucas out, it makes me hope that we can still keep playing well even if one of our important players gets hurt."

Forward Joe Ellis came off the bench against the Knicks and scored 22 points and snagged 11 rebounds to help the Warriors. Fritz Williams of San Francisco topped all scorers with 23 points.

The Warriors will have a new, but familiar, face in the lineup Tuesday night against the Cincinnati Royals at the Oakland Coliseum-Arena. He's former Warrior Bill Turner who was signed to a contract over the weekend.

Turner became a free agent at the start of the season when he was cut by the Royals. Turner had been traded to Cincinnati along with Jim King in October 1969 for Lucas.

Palmer bogied both of those holes and also nine and 13. His birdy four on 18 only served to close the gap a little on Shaw.

Palmer admitted his disappointment but said he will keep on playing until he wins again. He is determined because he thinks his play has improved of late.

"I feel my game overall is better than it was," he said, "especially my irons. I still have to improve my play around the greens, though. That's where you have to make it to win."

Palmer won $15,400 for his trouble, while Bob Murphy, who finished third at 282, four strokes behind Shaw, picked up a check for $9,570.

Bob Lunn, winner of last week's Los Angeles Open, finished far down the list at 288, 1970 player of the year Billy Casper was at 290, PGA Champ Dave Stockton was at 291, Jack Nicklaus had a 292 in his first tourney of the year and U.S. Open champ Tony Jacklin finished at 296.

Lee Trevino, 1970's leading money winner, pulled out of the final round because of illness in his family. He was far down the list any way and left word he will pass up Phoenix this week.

CROSBY WINNER — Tom Shaw addressed the press yesterday after firing a final round 70 to win the 30th Bing Crosby Pro-Am golf tournament at Pebble Beach. Shaw's 54-hole total of 278 gave him a two stroke margin over Arnold Palmer. (UPI Telephoto)

Club Presidents Team For Victory

Sylvia Asay and Sharon Safina, respectively the presidents of the Marin County 600 and 500 Clubs, combined yesterday to win the clubs' doubles bowling tournament at Country Club Lanes in San Rafael. Their handicap score for three games was 1256, 12 pins better than the second team of Kathy Harvey and Kathy Ross.

Nothing New For Curry, Adderley

MIAMI K(UPI)—Bill Curry and Herb Adderley are the big money winners of the Super Bowl. Each has taken away $37,500 from three appearances.

Adderley was with the Green Bay Packers for victories over Kansas City and Oakland in the first two world championship games, each worth $15,000 to the winning players. Sunday, he was at cornerback for the Dallas Cowboys and picked up $7,500 as a loser.

Curry, the Baltimore center, also played on the Green Bay team that won the first Super Bowl in 1967, and on the Baltimore team that lost to the New York Jets here two years ago.

Matson, Young Are Tops

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Men whose names have almost become legendary in track and field showed they still were not ready to be relegated to the history of the sport and the record books in the 12th annual Sunkist Invitational meet.

Their names are Randy Matson, George Young and Bob Seagren.

Matson was voted field athlete of the meet and outstanding athlete of the meet Saturday night for equalling the indoor shot put mark of 67 feet, 10 inches.

Making a comeback after two years away from distance running, Young easily captured the two-mile event in 8:42.2. Although not close to his indoor mark which he shares with Kerry Pearce of Australia, Young beat an impressive field that included Pearce, Arnie Kualhem of Norway, Frank Shorter and Rex Maddaford of New Zealand.

Seagren, who has toyed with the idea of retirement, won the pole vault at 17 feet, 5 1-4 inches and barely missed at the indoor record height of 17-8.

"I'm in good shape," said Young, voted track athlete of the meet.

"The meet had a lot of world class competitors. It gave me the inspiration necessary to run week after week. I hadn't stepped on a track for nearly two years and a lot of people told me I was over the hill."

Matson, who also considered retiring after winning the gold medal in the Mexico City Olympics, said, "I did better than I expected. I am in better shape than I hace been ever before at this time of the year."

Matson said he always had trouble with the indoor shot and was gratified at tying Neal Steinhauer's 1967 mark.

Laver $10,000 Richer; King Wins Her Tourney

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Rod Laver added another $10,000 to his winnings Saturday night by drubbing Roy Emerson, 6-2, 6-3, 7-5 in thefourth match of the $210,000 Tennis Championship Classic.

Laver, who will meet Arthur Ashe at New York's Madison Square Garden in the fifth match Thursday, has won $40,000 in 14 days of tournament action.

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) —Billie Jean King of Long Beach disposed of Rosemary Casals of San Francisco 6-1, 6-2 Sunday night to take the $4,300 first prize in the Billie Jean King Invitational.

It was the second stop of a 16-tournament women's pro tennis tour, which offers more than $100,000 in prize money.

Hockey

DETROIT (UPI) — Pride and some nagging injuries apparently will keep Gordie Howe of the Detroit Red Wings from making a record 22nd appearance in Tuesday's National Hockey League All-Star Game in Boston.

"I'm not playing this year," Howe said Sunday, "I don't deserve it. I don't want to fool anybody. Besides, if I went I'd just sit anyway."

Howe, who holds just about all the records there are for the annual mid-season game, was picked as an extra. He has 14 goals and 12 assists in 33 games for Detroit this season.

BOSTON (UPI) —Veteran Boston Bruin wing Eddie Westfall was added to the National Hockey League's East Division All-Star squad Sunday night, replacing injured teammate John McKenzie.

League officials made the announcement shortly after McKenzie suffered a shoulder separation that is expected to idle him for at least two weeks.

Wicks Leads UCLA Past Cal Bears

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Ansley Truitt was honored before the game, then Sidney Wicks provided all the rest of the heroics.

As a result, Truitt, California's junior center from San Francisco, owns a plaque from Sport Magazine while the UCLA Bruins, No. 1 in the country, remained undefeated with 13 straight victories and tied for first in the Pacific-8 Conference with Southern California at 4-0.

UCLA took advantage of 22 Cal turnovers to drub the Bears 94-76 Saturday in a regionally televised game. Wicks, a 6-8 senior and All America from Los Angeles, hit a season-high 33 points, snagged 17 rebounds and made five assists.

"Sidney is the best individual player in the conference . . . perhaps in the country," said coach John Wooden of his Bruin ace. "He's likely to be drafted No. 1."

The 6-9½ Truitt, honored as college athlete of the month "for outstanding contributions toward a better world through personal involvement," kept the Bears in the game in the first half with his rebounding and scoring. But he was used sparingly after picking up his fourth personal foul 3½ minutes into the second half and finished with 14 points.

Truitt has been active in recent summers helping to develop athletic skills among youths in ghetto areas.

The loss was the sixth in 14 games for Cal and dropped them to 1-3 in the Pac-8.

USC, meanwhile, also remained unbeaten at 14-0 by fast-breaking its way to a 71-51 win over Stanford to hand the Indians 4-10 their fourth straight defeat without a win in the conference. The second-ranked Trojans were paced by guards Paul Westphal and Dennis Layton, each with 14 points. Claude Terry hit 17 for the injury plagued Indians.

UCLA and USC now both head for the Midwest for a couple of intersectional games before playing each other Feb. 6 at USC in the first of two meetings this season.

In other games involving Pac-8 teams, the Washington Huskies warmed up in 55-below weather at Fairbanks, Alaska, by downing the University of Alaska twice over the weekend, including a 90-62 decision Saturday night. Washington State and the two Oregon teams were idle over the weekend.

In the West Coast Athletic Conference, the University of San Francisco continued to pull surprises by beating Pepperdine 72-69 on the Waves' home court to remain tied with Pacific and Loyola at 3-1 for first place.

Elsewhere in the WCAC, Loyola broke a 28-28 halftime tie by tallying 54 second-half points to down Santa Clara 82-61, Pacific toyed with Nevada-Reno 95-61 and Sam Hill scored 20 of his 27 points in the second half to help St. Mary's get by Nevada-Las Vegas 88-83 at Moraga.

Santa Clara, St. Mary's and Nevada-Las Vegas are all deadlocked at 2-2 in the WCAC with Pepperdine 1-3 and Nevada-Reno 0-4 bringing up the rear.

In limited action this week, USF plays at California and Stanford entertains Utah on Saturday night. Oregon and Oregon State head north for games with Washington and Washington State on Saturday and next Monday.

USC is idle this week but UCLA plays Friday night at Loyola of Chicago and on Saturday at Notre Dame.

In the WCAC, UOP travels to Santa Clara and tries to make it two in a row over the Broncos on Satuday in the only league game. Also on Saturday, St. Mary's plays Hayward State, Loyola travels to San Diego State and Nevada-Las Vegas entertains Southwest Louisiana.

Baltimore Had Poise In A Game Of Errors

By GEORGE BLANDA
as told to
U. P. INTERNATIONAL

MIAMI (UPI) — Neither team deserved to win. But in the end, it was the team with the most poise — and that was the Colts.

Both teams played so badly for a game of this caliber. They are supposedly the two best teams in football but they made 10 to 14 errors between them.

From a professional's standpoint, it was a badly played football game. It was exciting for the fans, though, and I know how it is — you get so emotionally high for one like this, you're prone to make mistakes.

How about that kid Jim O'Brien? He's just a rookie, too. But he made the greatest kick of his life. I know how it is, the pressure on you. There he is — standing before 80,000 people in the stands and 70 million watching on TV. Then they call a time out and give him two more minutes to think about it.

O'Brien nearly became the goat. I thought he was a fraction slow, like I thought he was when his extra point was blocked.

But like I've always said, it's not how many you make kicking, it's the ones you make in the crucial situations which are important.

By the way, that extra point missed determined the strategy of the game for Baltimore. It probably dictated the Colts going for a touchdown and missing it at the end of the first half instead of trying for the field goal.

I predicted the team which would make the most mistakes would lose but it didn't.

The Baltimore defense was the difference. That Bubba Smith was great. I've always said defense wins crucial games. Baltimore's defense proved that today. With all the mistakes the Colts offense made, the defense hung on with poise and made the big plays near the end — making Duane Thomas fumble at the one and recovering the interceptions.

The game was decided by the Colts' defense — it gave them 10 points — plus Mr. O'Brien and Earl Morrall.

Morall was fantastic. Earl coming into the game to me, was the turning point. He seemed to give the whole team the thing they needed to bring them through. Unitas kind of surprised me the way he was throwing into a crowd.

From a pro's viewpoint, the lack of throwing ability by the Cowboys let the Baltimore defense come up and control the running game. That was basically the ball game.

I would hate to second guess the Cowboys but that Craig Morton passed late in the game with third and long yardage, it sure was a key turning point. Mike Curtis intercepted and the Colts went in to victory with the field goal.

It might have been different if Coach Tom Landry had called for the Cowboys to put out of there and sent the game into overtime. Anything could have happened the way these teams were making mistakes. I won't say anymore about Oakland, which I still think is as good as any team in football but I want to knock the people who have said Baltimore had an "easy ride" in the American Conference.

Just remember, the Colts had to play superb football, coming from behind in several games, to win it all today.

After I think about it, I take it back. The Colts, with that defense, deserved to win.

SUPER

In the second, they settled for another boot after having a first down on the Baltimore six. So when the Colts scored on a weird play—John Mackey scoring on a 75 yard pass play from Unitas when the ball bounced off the hands of defender Mel Renfro—the Colts were tied up, 6-6.

Mark Washington blocked O'Brien's extra point when the eventual hero got it away a little slow. And the Cowboys went ahead again, 13-6, when Jethro Pugh's fumble recovery set up a seven-yard scoring run by Thomas on a swing pass from Morton.

The Colts didn't match that until the fourth period when Rich Volk's interception of a Morton aerial set up a two-yard plunge by Tom Nowatzke. This time O'Brien converted and the score stayed 13-13 until the last-minute dramatics.

For the first time in history, a loser, linebacker Chuck Howley of the Cowboys, got the "Outstanding Player" award, worth a new car.

"It's nice," admitted Howley, "but I wish we had won the game."

It was a great personal comeback for Morrall, the "goat" of that 19-6 game when Joe Namath grabbed all the headlines. Morrall hit 7-for-15 and 147 yards and, thanks to that, the Colts outgained the Cowboys, 329 yards to 217.

Counting the $15,000 winner's share here, each Colt earned $25,000 in post-season money. Each Cowboy got $7,500 here and a total of $18,500.

Duster Coupe

They've certainly had time enough to learn by now. That with compacts, it's not just the low price but how much value comes through for the low price that really counts. And when you compare our Duster to their Vega you'll see what "Coming Through" is all about. Because Duster not only has more room, more trunk, bigger tires and brakes, and more power than Vega; it's still as easy on gas as it is on your budget. The big difference between Duster and Vega? Come through our place and see for yourself. It's not the price.

Record sales mean record resale value.

People are going for Duster in record numbers. Sales are up 58% for first quarter—'71 model year. And if you think we're loading the dice, last year they were 181% ahead of comparable sales the year before. Which is a big reason why Plymouth's small cars are leaders in their field in resale value.

Recovery Seen For Dillingham

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Dillingham Corp., which I purchased 18 months ago at 26½, is now trading at about 12. Since this stock has not recovered with the market, should I sell or is there a chance it will regain strength? — C. G.

A. Dillingham shares have moved up 32 per cent since bottoming out at 8⅞ in August. By comparison, the market, as measured by Standard & Poor's 425 Industrials, bottomed in May and in the ensuing 8 months has risen 34 per cent. The 12 cents a share earned in the third quarter of 1970 was not sufficient to offset earlier deficits; and for the nine months Dillingham reported a deficit of 5 cents a share.

For the full year a good gain in operating revenues and a modest profit will probably be reported. Improvement has already been noted in some of the conditions which contributed to the red ink. Stepped-up construction activity already has brought to Dillingham $86 million in new contract awards.

The company is currently working on 200 construction contracts with a total value of $800 million. The gradual recovery in the business climate as well as the more favorable interest rates now available on mortgages should be beneficial. Shares should be held for recovery.

Q. Since I'm pushing eighty, I've recently curbed my appetite for risk. About the only risk I take now is purchasing a state lottery ticket. I'm well covered by insurance, savings and blue chip stocks and am interested in a small investment in Westcoast Production. How do you size up this company? — E. K.

A. Westcoast Production, with $21 million or $5.33 per share in working capital and 40 per cent owned by Westcoast Transmission, although risky, is an interesting vehicle for participating in the Canadian oil/gas industry.

The Stanmore-Richdale lands, where Westcoast has proved-up sizeable reserves, will benedit from the Alberta Conservation Board's decision to add this area to Trans Canada Pipe Lines' natural gas supply source. Wildcat activities on company's shared Graham Island Arctic holdings, which will begin this year, could benefit shareholders.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL

If You Worked For 2 Employers, Tax Refund MayBe Forthcoming

If you had more than one employer in 1970, and your total earnings were over $7,800 your employers may have deducted more than $374.40 from your paychecks for F.I.C.A. taxes. The maximum that you are required to pay for F.I.C.A. taxes is $374.40, that is, 4.8 per cent of $7,800.

Any overdeduction by two or more employers of F.I.C.A. tax can be claimed as a credit against your income tax on line 62, page 2, part VII, of form 1040.

The W-2 slips your employers give you show the amount of F.I.C.A. tax withheld, as well as the amount of income tax withheld.

If you worked for more than one employer in California during 1970, you may have had more than $74 deducted from your paychecks for Unemployment Disability Insurance Tax.

If so, you should file a claim for refund on form DE 1964 if:

1. You worked for two or more employers, and
2. Deductions for disability insurance were made from your wages, and
3. Such deductions totaled more than $74.

Do not use form DE 1964 if refunds are due you because:

1. Disability insurance deductions of more than the required maximum were deducted from your pay by only one employer. Claim your refund from that employer.
2. You worked for a business which had a change of ownership during the year. The combined deductions made by both owners should not total more than $74. If more than $74 was deducted from your pay by the two employers, claim your refund direct from the last employer.

Disability insurance deductions are shown on your check stubs or deduction slips (not on your forms W-2). Some voluntary plans require deductions of less than the required maximum. You can claim only the deductions actually made.

Most Federal, State and local government agencies and religious or nonprofit organizations are not subject to the insurance law. Do not include these wages in your claim unless deductions were actually made.

Do not deduct the amount of this claim from your State income tax.

Do not include in your claim:

1. Deductions made from wages paid to your wife or dependents. A separate claim must be filed by each individual.
2. Deductions made from your wages for Federal Old Age Benefits or Federal Withholding (Income Tax).
3. Deductions made from wages earned in states other than California unless such wages were reported to the State of California.
4. Seamen's wages that come under the jurisdiction of states other than California.

You must claim this refund if you are to receive it. The claim must be filed before June 30, 1971.

Claims are filed with the California Department of Employment, Attention Accounting Section, 1025 P Street, Sacramento, California, 95814.

Claims must be filed on form DE 1964.

EMBARCADERO'S FLAGSHIP

The slender, sculptured design of the 45-story Security Pacific Bank Building makes the new skyscraper the "flagship" of the City's $200 million Embarcadero Center redevelopment project. The $28 million office tower will house Security Pacific's main San Francisco office and its Northern California headquarters.

Stocks Firm, Trading Active On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks were firm in active trading with about an hour of trading to go Monday.

Near 2:30 p.m., the Dow Jones industrial average was up 2.88 at 848.58. Standard & Poor's index of 500 stocks showed a gain of 0.45 at 93.48. Of the 1,654 issues crossing the tape, 869 pointed higher, while 510 retreated.

A four-hour volume of 11,510,000 shares compared with 13,860,000 shares traded Friday at a comparable period.

Among the big board's most active issues were General Mills, which traded an early block of 151,800 shares at 32⅛ up ⅛ in a cross-transaction for institutional investors.

Also heavily traded were American Telephone, Gulf Oil, and Chase Manhattan Mortgage & Realty.

$845 Million Sale

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Interior Department has announced that a Dec. 15 sale of oil and gas drilling rights off the Louisiana coast brought in $845.8 million —a figure second only to the $900 million collected last year for drilling rights on Alaska's North Slope.

Iron Age Sees Steel Shortage

NEW YORK (UPI) — Steel users this year may be facing "the first all-out steel shortage in over 10 years," Iron Age reports.

The national metalworking weekly said the root of the possible supply squeeze would be heavy and delayed hedgebuying against risk of a steel strike after July 31, amplified by the fact that "for the first time in 10 years, there is not an unlimited reserve of foreign steel to be tapped for stockpiling."

More Papers Raise Prices

The survey also showed 146 papers raised their prices to 15 cents a copy, an increase of 127 over 1969. The ANPA said 1,606 newspapers still charge 10 cents a copy and only 51 charge a nickel or less a copy.

The survey covered street sale prices in dailies in the United States, Canada, the Bahamas, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

UAL Asks Raise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — United Air Lines, which lost $40 million last year, has asked the government to let it raise coach fares by $2 in 22 market areas involving flights of less than 500 miles.

Pre-Dawn Mishap In Fog Threatens Marin Beaches

By MARY LEYDECKER

Two large oil tankers collided today in dense fog and darkness under Golden Gate Bridge, spilling hundreds of thousands of gallons of oil into Marin County waters.

There was no injury in the 1:45 a.m. crash.

By late morning the heavy, gooey, tar-like substance had floated into the Sausalito Yacht Harbor and had gone beyond Angel Island.

It was described as flowing in long strips in a heavy current.

The collision, the Coast Guard said, occurred when the Oregon Standard, outbound for British Columbia with 4.6 million gallons of bunker fuel aboard, was rammed on the port side by her incoming sister ship, the Arizona Standard. The Arizona's bow pierced the other ship to a depth of 40 feet.

About 500,000 gallons of the thick fuel had leaked out of the Oregon Standard's ruptured tanks and the total may reach 1.9 million gallons, according to the Coast Guard.

The two ships, both owned by Standard Oil Co., hung together after the collision, drifted east on the Bay and then anchored a half-mile west of Angel Island.

In spite of the heavy damage, the Coast Guard said there was no danger of either tanker sinking, and the Arizona Standard went under her own steam to Richmond later in the morning.

The Oregon Standard was hit just forward of the bridge, according to the Coast Guard, at an angle of 100 degrees, knocking a huge hole in the side. Damage to the Arizona Standard was confined to the bow, which was crumpled.

Coast Guard cutters and a hovercraft sped to the scene, and other ships surrounded the leaking tanker with booms to keep the thick fuel from spreading, by acting as floating enclosures.

Although fog prevented early morning skimming, by 11 a.m. boats were starting to remove oil. In Sausalito about seven oil tanker trucks began vacuuming the brown, slimy looking oil from the shore, and northbound traffic was blocked on downtown Bridgeway because the the tankers.

Tankers were also being sent as far south as Fort Baker.

Ducks and seagulls with their feathers plastered with the oil were huddled on floating debris and on the shorelines. The Sausalito Fire Department was attempting to rescue the little creatures.

Angry and upset people lined the Sausalito shoreline today, taking pictures and commenting on the disaster. Sausalito's bayside restaurants were closed because the tanker trucks blocked traffic and prevented parking.

The collision "certainly indicates the need for much tighter regulations of oil-bearing vehicles in San Francisco Bay," Sausalito Councilman Stephen A. Fraser said.

Key Battle For Pass In Cambodia

SAIGON (UPI) — Cambodian and South Vietnamese troops with heavy support from U.S. Army helicopter gunships entered the Pich Nil Pass on Highway 4 today and were heavily engaged in hand to hand combat with Communist troops on its mountainous slopes, the Cambodian High Command reported.

Although no U.S. ground troops were reported in action in Cambodia the United States has greatly increased its involvement there.

Pich Nil Pass is 60 miles southwest of Phnom Penh on the 138-mile long Highway 4 linking Phnom Penh with the deep water port of Kompong Som. A South Vietnamese tank force was driving northward from Kompong Som and a Cambodian and South Vietnamese unit was driving south.

The Cambodian command said the southern task force had reached the isolated outpost of Kompong Seila, just below the pass, and was battling to link up with the northern task force only 12½ miles away. The command said the northern force had entered the pass and was fighting to dislodge Communist troops from its slopes.

The U.S. Army Cobra helicopters were operating from a U.S. Navy amphibious transport ship (LPD) cruising in the Gulf of Thailand off Cambodia — the first known example of such Army-Navy cooperation. In addition, a U.S. Navy helicopter carrier (LPH) of 18,300 tons was operating nearby in support of the LPD. The LPH carries 32 choppers.

While South Vietnamese and Cambodians battled to reopen Route 4 and restore Cambodia's gasoline and oil supplies, a heavily guarded South Vietnamese convoy arrived in Phnom Penh Sunday night with fuel — plus cognac, beer, cigarettes and Citroen cars. UPI field dispatches said it had full U.S. air support during the trip up the Mekong River.

UPI front dispatches said the U.S. Army Cobras were working three at a time in support of the ground forces and that the airwaves crac-

Thick Fog Keeps Traffic At Crawl

The thickest fog of the wet season enveloped Marin and Southern Sonoma early today, aggravating the usual Monday morning commuter crawl and closing the Marin County airport north of Novato.

Despite the backup of commuter traffic to San Rafael, no accident was reported by the California Highway Patrol.

Predawn drivers reported visibility along Highway 101 was down to 20 feet, and the traffic crush on the Golden Gate Bridge did not ease until after 9 a.m.

Hamilton Air Force Base operations continued, but under instrument flight rules. Gnoss Field was socked in, and was expected to remain closed until early this afternoon.

The fog was blamed for contributing to a collision between two oil tankers near the Golden Gate Bridge, spilling thousands of gallons of oil into the bay.

San Francisco, Oakland, San Jose, Sacramento and Stockton airports all were closed during the night by the fog. San Francisco airport resumed limited operations at 8:55 a.m. as conditions improved slightly.

The National Weather Service predicted that night and morning fog would occur again tomorrow in the Bay Area, delta and northern San Joaquin Valley and parts of the Salinas Valley. Rain was expected to spread southward to the Bay Area sometime tomorrow, clearing out the fog.

In the north coast area, the Smith River was reported dropping after cresting yesterday about one foot above flood stage near Crescent City. The Klamath and Eel rivers, which crested above warning stages but below flood stages, also were receding.

Highway 101 was closed for a time north of Willits in Mendocino County by high water, was reported passable but wet.

Outlook On Mideast Peace Talks Better

By U.P. International

United Nations Secretary General Thant said today he and U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring were cautiously optimistic about the outcome of the Middle East peace talks. And a dispatch from Cairo said prospects were brighter for extension of the cease-fire which expires Feb. 5.

But in Tel Aviv Israel accused Egypt of sending four Sukhoi 7 jets across the cease-fire line again today in another violation of the cease-fire.

Thant told a news conference in New York that the Jarring talks were in such a delicate stage he believed it would be "not helpful — even be damaging to his tireless efforts to promote agreement — to make a substantive statement."

"I am still cautiously optimistic about the outcome of these discussions and this cautious optimism is shared by Ambassador Jarring," he said.

In so many words Thant said the Big Four should keep its noses out of the Mideast peace efforts at this time because of the delicate nature of the Jarring mission. He did so by stating:

"There is some merit in the statement of some governments that for the moment the four permanent members of the Security Council should not be too active in arriving at a consensus or agreement on principles or guidelines for the consideration of the Security Council."

Thant said it was his personal opinion that any active participation in any U.N. peace force by the two superpowers —the United States and the Soviet Union —"will create more problems than the problems they set out to solve."

He said he did "not see any difficulty" about the use of French and British forces but "I have personal doubts" about the wisdom of using American and Russian forces now. By 1980 or 1990, Thant said, the use of both — and even China — might be desirable.

The Big Four ambassadors to the U.N. were meeting this afternoon to discuss the situation.

McGOVERN IN RUNNING FOR PRESIDENT

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota announced his presidential candidacy today with a call for a "second American revolution" and an ironclad pledge to withdraw every American soldier from Vietnam.

Charging President Nixon with deepening "the sense of depression and despair in our land," McGovern predicted the next president would be a Democrat and offered himself as "uniquely qualified" to lead the nation in these times.

McGovern also said his nomination in 1972 "offers the best chance of heading off a fourth party movement by Democrats still fuming with impatience over the mistakes of past leadership."

New York Policemen Picket At Courthouse

NEW YORK (UPI)—About 500 of New York City's striking patrolmen demonstrated outside the State Supreme Courthouse today as the city sought an injunction directing them to end their 4-day-old wildcat walkout.

"Goodbye, Lindsay, hate to see you go," the demonstrators sang as they marched with military precision behind barricades manned by the plainclothesmen and officers who have replaced them on their beats.

Inside the courthouse, city officials asked Justice Irving H. Saypol to issue an injunction against the strike by an estimated 25,000 of the city's 27,400 patrolmen. The walkout began Thursday to demand an immediate pay raise to maintain their pay ratio with sergeants who received a raise earlier.

A quarter of the 3,200-man Transit Police, who patrol subways and buses, also walked out Sunday in support of regular police and some members of the 1,550-man Housing Authority police force joined them today.

The president of the Housing Authority Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, Joseph Balzano, said at least 80 patrolmen in Brooklyn had left their posts and predicted the action, which the union did not sanction, would spread.

In addition, the nation's largest city was beset by a strike early today of Teamsters who handle deliveries of fresh fruit and vegetables to wholesalers and a weeklong walkout of telephone repairmen and installers.

Ecuador Seizes 8 Tuna Boats

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Four American tunaboats were seized Monday by Ecuador, bringing to eight the number seized within the past week, the American Tunaboat Association said.

The vessels were picked up by a former United States destroyer and several patrol boats while former United States warplanes flew overhead, Ed Silva, vice president of the association, said.

Seized Monday were the San Diego-based Antonina C and Ocean Queen and the Puerto Rico-based Cape Cod and Captain Vincent Gann.

The world's largest tunaboat, The Apollo, was seized Sunday and was expected to be released after paying a fine estimated in excess of $100,000. The Anna Marie and Bold Venture were seized Friday and released Sunday after paying fines of $52,000 and $49,000 respectively, Silva said. The San Diego-based Lexington was seized last Tuesday and released Saturday after paying $34,160 in fines.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Trial Today

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Clay L. Shaw, acquitted of conspiring to assassinate President John F. Kennedy was to go on trial today for allegedly committing perjury during his trial.

The Louisiana Supreme Court refused last week to order a delay in the trial until it rules on a defense motion to drop the charges.

District Attorney Jim Garrison, whose investigation of the assassination attracted worldwide attention, claims Shaw lied when he denied knowing David Ferrie and Lee Harvey Oswald, both named by Garrison as coconspirators in an alleged plot to murder Kennedy.

Leaves Harvard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Presidential adviser Dr. Henry A. Kissinger has resigned from the Harvard University faculty to remain at the White House.

Kissinger, 47, said Saturday he was giving up his tenure as professor of government and director of the Harvard International Seminar. He left the job in January, 1969, to join President Nixon's staff.

In a letter to Kissinger, Nixon expressed his "deep personal appreciation" of Kissinger's decision.

Computer Cars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first attempts to run computer driven cars on automated highways may be made in the United States by the end of the 1970s, according to Douglas A. Toms, director of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

"I think we will have either magnetic or radio beam or metallic strips or something that you can zero-in on and your solid state computer system in your car would have the ability . . . not only to slow it down, but speed it up . . ." Toms said.

The result would be that "you can then divert your attention from driving the car. It will just run itself."

Back To Jobs

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago teachers returned to their classrooms today after voting Sunday to accept a new two-year contract making them the highest paid big-city teachers in the nation.

The vote was 7,126 in favor of accepting the new contract and 1,243 against it, ending a four-day work stoppage which gave the city's 577,000 public school children an unscheduled vacation.

The two-year pact, negotiated with the help of Mayor Richard J. Daley, is a $67 million settlement. It was the best possible package we could get," said John E. Desmond, Chicago Teachers Union President.

Muskie Back

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie says he wants to "take some time to digest" impressions from a two-week trip to the Middle East, the Soviet Union and Western Europe designed to improve his foreign affairs knowledge for an expected bid for the presidency.

The Maine Democrat completed the tour Sunday, here flying from Bonn, West Germany, where he talked for an hour with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt. He described Brandt's policy of forging closer ties with Communist bloc nations as "positive, forthcoming and creative."

Muskie said the policy involved risks but added "an enlightened willingness to take risks can do nothing but to serve our best interests."

Unity Prayer

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Roman Catholic church and several other Christian communions today began a week of prayer for Christian Unity.

Christian congregations around the world joined in ecumenical services, while churchgoers were urged by their priests and ministers to pray individually for the ecumenical cause.

Swiss Envoy Never Felt Abductors Would Kill Him

Better than a medieval dungeon, but it was a miserable 40 days for kidnapped Swiss Ambassador Giovanni Enrico Bucher.

"I wasn't too keen on television," Bucher told friends after his release. Leftist guerrillas let him go Saturday after the Brazilian government freed 70 political prisoners as ransom.

Bucher, according to his intimates, never felt that the abductors would kill him. His fear was that he would "become another Gomide case."

Brazilian Consul Aloyisio Dias Gomide has been in the captivity of Tupamaro guerrillas in Montevideo since July 31. Bucher, who suffered from claustrophobia, said, "I do not know how long I could last."

Bucher was quoted as remarking to one diplomat, "I was never really scared until they started cleaning their machine guns in my room." Bucher gave some advice to diplomats:

"If you really want security you should have two machine guns, one in the front and one in the back seat of the car. If not, it is better to have nothing at all. One man with a revolver can not do anything. My case proved that."

Bucher's lone bodyguard, federal agent Helio de Carvalho Araujo, was shot to death defending Bucher during the kidnap Dec. 7. He never had a chance to fire a shot.

In his press conference, Bucher said his kidnappers always wore masks.

He described the kidnappers to friends as "mostly young people, intellectuals or semi-intellectuals. Most were well educated."

DENVER TRAGEDY — Bodies of five children — ranging in age from 3 months to 9 years old — lie on the front lawn of a Denver home as firemen attempt to control the house blaze in the background. The children were among 28 who perished in blazes across the United States and Canada yesterday.

28 Persons Perish In Rash Of Blazes

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Twenty-eight persons, all but two of them children, died Sunday in a rash of fires in the United States and Canada.

Blazes in Toronto and in Lawrence, Mass., each killed a young mother and six children. Five children died in a Denver fire and five more children died in a burning house in Livingston Manor, N.Y. Two young girls died in a Detroit fire.

Two sisters died late Sunday in a house fire in Seattle. The victims were Sheila Hebert, 8, and her sister Jeanette, 7. Their parents and two other of their children escaped.

The Toronto fire, in an aging, three-story frame house, did not seem serious when seen from the street. Dead in the fire were Mrs. Rose Duchamp, 20; her children, Tracy, 15 months, and Robin, 3; two visitors, Georgina Sykes, 13, and her sister, Maureen, 11; and Daniel Arsenault, 7, and his sister, Diana, 8, who lived downstairs.

Two men who climbed out a second-story window in their underclothing and a woman were injured. One of the men was in critical condition.

In Lawrence, Mass., a "wall of flames" trapped Mrs. Sandra Yaun, 21, and six children in a wooden tenement where they had lived less than a month.

Mrs. Laurie Begley, 21, mother of three of the dead children, escaped the blaze. She was spotted by two passing policemen as she stood in the street shrieking:

"My kids are in there, my kids are in there! Oh, God, please somebody help! My kids are in there!"

Her children, Tracy, 4; Larry Jr., 15 months; and Carrie, 6 weeks; and Mrs. Yaun's children, Christine, 4; Barbara, 3; and Kim, 3 months, died.

Five children, ranging in age from 3 months to 9 years, were killed when flames shot through their two-story Denver home. A fireman said the house "was almost completely engulfed in flames when we got there."

The children's father was next door when the fire started.

Five children died on the second floor of their frame home in semirural Livingston Manor, N.Y. One teenager, Patricia Beardsley, 15, survived by leaping from the burning building.

State police said the children's parents are separated and their father was away from home when the fire began.

Christina Sevilla, 4, and her sister, Theresa, 2, died in a fire Sunday in the West Side Detroit flat. Their partially blind father, Frank, 23, was rescued by neighbors.

Song To Head Election Group

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Sen. Alfred H. Song has been named chairman of a committee of Senate Democrats to seek out legislative candidates for the 1972 election.

Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally of Los Angeles, chairman of the upper house Democratic caucus, announced formation of the committee Saturday. Sen. George N. Zenovich of Fresno was named vice chairman.

Other members were Sens. Randolph Collier of Yreka, Joseph M. Kennick of Long Beach, George Moscone of San Francisco and Dymally.

Purpose of the campaign team will be to compete against the Republican Cal-Plan, said Song, of Monterey Park.

Stress In Priesthood Pointed Up

A study conducted of the Catholic clergy revealed during the weekend that the priests felt they were under much greater stress than their Protestant colleagues. Only 12 per cent of about 5,000 Prostestant ministers questioned said their problems caused severe enough stress to make them consider quitting.

The survey of parish priests, conducted by John P. Koval, a sociologist at the University of Notre Dame here, showed the "generation gap" between Roman Catholic clergymen under 45 and those over 50 were so wide "they really constitute two different churches."

More than 40 per cent of the young priests polled in the nationwide survey felt so much strain they said they would consider quitting, Koval said. He said overall, in the survey, including both younger and older priests, one in four would consider leaving because of stress.

Koval said the crisis was the greatest for priests under 30 and very grave for priests under 45.

The sociologist said his study of the Catholic clergy — when compared with a study of Protestant clergymen by Dr. Edgar Mills of the National Council of Churches — showed that priests thought they suffered from greater stress than Protestant pastors.

There was little evidence in the Protestant survey of a generation gap between age groups in the clergy.

A "lack of leadership from men in authority," was listed by Koval as the most severe source of stress on Catholic priests.

He said that was followed by the "slow pace of change after the Second Ecumenical Council, disappointment in the church's stand on social and moral issues, work frustration and a feeling there was a lack of support from fellow clergy."

Particularly strong regarding those stresses was a split between younger and older priests, Koval said. He said about 80 per cent of the priests under 30 considered a lack of leadership as a source of severe stress, while only 10 per cent of those over 50 felt that way.

'Spies' Compiled 18,000 Dossiers

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United States Army intelligence compiled dossiers on some 18,000 civilians ranging in political orientation from the Black Panthers to the John Birch Society, the New York Times said today.

The intelligence operation, the article said, ran from the summer of 1967 through the fall of 1969 and was particularly focused on the activities of radicals, black militants and Vietnam War dissenters.

The Times said the military had received much of its data from police and FBI sources but that it also secured its own information by using intelligence agents who posed as newsmen or members of organizations under scrutiny "or merely as interested bystanders."

Last month the question of alleged army surveillance created a stir on the Senate floor when Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said the military had placed well-known political figures in Illinois under surveillance.

Among the figures mentioned by Ervin at the time were Adlai Stevenson III, senator-elect from Illinois and former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner, now a federal judge.

The Times said the operation, which was ordered ended last year, used about 1,000 agents to collect "political and personal information on obscure persons, as well as the prominent, on advocates of violent protest and participants in legitimate activity, on the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the John Birch Society, on the Black Panthers and the Ku Klux Klan, on the Students for a Democrat Society and the daughters of the American Revolution."

According to the Times, the operation, called Continental United States Intelligence, or Conus Intel, "was but one part of a vast, interlocking intelligence exchange that Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, and probably President Nixon, knew was in operation, although they may not have been aware of all of its details."

"There was no conspiracy, as far as could be discerned, by the military to subvert political liberties," the article added.

The paper quoted what it described as a "critical former agent" as saying 'these were not malevolent men.' "Rather, he said, they were well-intentioned men carrying out what they considered to be legitimate orders from political authorities."

The article also cited a statement on this point by the Army's general counsel, Robert E. Jordan, which said:

"I honestly believe we drifted into this area without quite realizing what we were getting into and because no one else was around to do the job. . .I'm convinced that no one intended to spy on individuals or control civilian life in any way. But I also believe that some of the things begun, if expanded, sure as hell posed a real risk."

Another Rate Drop

NEW YORK (UPI)—Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. today reduced its prime interest rate on big business loans another quarter point to 6 per cent.

Morgan Guaranty was among the commercial banks that Friday cut their prime rates to 6 1-4 per cent from 6 1-2 per cent. Friday's round was led by First National City Bank of New York. Other prime rate cuts made this year were led by Chase Manhattan Bank and Chemical Bank of New York.

If Morgan Guaranty's move is followed by other banks, it will be the sixth cut since November. The downtrend reflects lessening demand for business loans coupled with the Federal Reserve's generally expansionary credit policy that has reduced open market interest rates substantially.

World Record In Kite Flying

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI)—A Los Angeles kite enthusiast who designed his own entry in a kite flying contest conducted on Benjamin Franklin's Birthday has set the world's record for keeping his kite in the air.

Don Gellert, his son, and three Vanderbilt University seniors took turns at the controls of Gellert's double-stringed "sunbird" kite for a record of 37 hours and 18 minutes this weekend. The old record —37 hours flat—was set in Nantucket, Mass., in 1957, according to record-keeper Will Yolen of the International Kite Flyers Association.

Hostage Foils Kidnap

BENNETTSVILLE, S.C. (UPI) — Two black gunmen who set out on a bizarre plot to kidnap "all the rich people" of this tiny tobacco town were in police custody today, foiled when one of their hostages opened up on them in "an old-fashioned shoot-out."

One of the suspects, Charles L. Scales, 22, of Charlotte, N.C., was wounded in the shoot-out. The other, Grover L. Bennett, 23, also of Charlotte, escaped but surrendered Sunday night to authorities at Columbia, 85 miles southwest of Bennettsville after eluding a 150-man posse.

IN VAN

Police said the attempt to round up hostages in a van and hold them for ransom dissolved when one of the intended victims, former State Rep. Jaimie F. Lee, a gun enthusiast, grabbed a pistol and shot Scales. In the ensuing shoot-out, Mrs. Frances Lindsay, wife of State Sen. John Lindsay, was wounded in the neck, shoulder and leg. She was reported in serious condition today.

"They told me, 'We're going to get all the rich people, every damned one of them and then they're going to have to deal with us'," Wayne Chavis, the first hostage taken, told police.

Authorities discounted any political overtones to the kidnap attempt despite its involvement of Lee and Mrs. Lindsay.

"I don't think legislators were particularly involved," said Sheriff Jack Weatherly. "I think it was the rich people they were planning to hold for ransom."

"KEEPING CHECK"

He said, however, that he was "keeping a check" on other legislators in the area since it was the second recent incident affecting the families of members of the South Carolina General Assembly. The 13-year-old daughter of State Rep. James Cuttino was killed by an abductor at Sumter a month ago while on her way to school.

J. P. Strom, chief of the State Law Enforcement Division, said further investigation was needed before he could establish a firm motive for the abductions Saturday night.

"Ransom was definitely involved in it," he said.

Radar Lights Again Found Irritating

A second phase campaign to dim about 12 high intensity security lights at the Mount Tamalpais radar installation has started in Ross Valley.

The first campaign, waged through much of last year by Mill Valley resident Jeffory S. Morshead, ended in November when the U.S. Air Force modified five of what residents considered the most offensive lights so that they no longer shone down into Mill Valley.

Morshead and other Mill Valley residents were satisfied, but now a Fairfax resident, who says that Mill Valley's meat is Ross Valley's poison, wants the Air Force to take similar steps to dim a dozen of the irritating beacons visible from the Fairfax-San Anselmo area.

Robert E. Van Norman, whose home at 52 Crest Road looks out on Mount Tamalpais, said the lights make the peak "look like a wedding cake."

"The Air Force relocated some of the lights so that they didn't bother Mill Valley, but in doing so they made it so the lights shine more on the Fairfax side," he said. The lights can be seen from as far away as Vallejo, he added.

A member of the Marin County Conservation Committee of the Sierra Club, Van Norman complained to William Lukens the chairman, and then found himself appointed to spearhead a campaign to get the lights altered or dimmed.

"My name was printed in the Sierra Club newsletter," he said, "and the next thing I knew I was getting dozens of calls from people who didn't like the lights either."

An industrial designer with experience in lighting, Van Norman said much can be done through the use of louvers and shielding to make the lights less offensive to Ross Valley.

Maj. William R.Edwards, commander of the radar unit, said today that permission for further work must come from the Aerospace Command at Colorado Springs, Colo., and officials there are "aware of the continued concern of the citizens about this matter."

He pointed out that two modification projects costing a total of about $3,000, have been completed. He said he knows of no plans for further work.

Mill Valley Plans To Curb Communes Due Council

An amendment to Mill Valley's zoning ordinance that would bar communes from certain residential areas will be considered when the city council meets at 8 p.m. today at city hall.

Proposed by Councilman Robert H. Andresen, the amendment would define a family as any number of related individuals, but no more than five persons not related by blood, marriage or adoption.

The ordinance is similar to one considered by the Marin County Board of Supervisors in November but rejected as unnecessary, discriminatory and possibly unconstitutional.

The definition, if adopted, would be applied to the zoning ordinance wherever the term "family" is used. The ordinance already bars all but single families from R-1 (single family residential) zones, but does not define family.

The city's position in considering the ordinance is strengthened by a recent ruling in U.S. District Court in San Francisco, where a judge upheld the constitutionality of a similar Palo Alto ordinance.

In other business, the council will hear a progress report on efforts to make an informal youth hostel at the Methodist Church of Mill Valley conform to city code. The council Jan. 4 told the church to seek a city permit for the "crash pad" there.

Also on the agenda is consideration of a lease on the city-owned Lytton Square bus depot and a tentative subdivision map for a 68-unit condominium project at Sycamore Avenue and La Goma Street.

County Workers To Install Slate

Robert Nelson, senior inspector in the county agricultural commissioner's office, will be installed as president of the Marin County Employees Association at a dinner meeting at 7:15 p.m. Jan. 23 in the Marin Valley Mobile Country Club, Novato.

Other new officers to be seated will be Frances Bahl, vice president; Leona Meysembourg, secretary, and Gene V. Vasco, treasurer.

Marin Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire will be master of ceremonies. Retired Supervisor William A. Gnoss will present gold cards to members who retired in 1970.

Delegates Announced

State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-Mill Valley, has named four Marin County residents as delegates to the Republican State Central Committee convention in Sacramento Jan. 31.

They are Leland H. Jordan of San Rafael, Behr's campaign manager; Mrs. William H. Spencer of Mill Valley, also active in Behr's campaign; Sally Matthes, former Belvedere city councilman, and Edwin Thomas of San Rafael, an assistant cabinet secretary to Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Behr also appointed two delegates each from Napa and Solano counties, representing the remainder of the Fourth Senatorial District.

Center Security Due Discussion

A discussion of security measures at the Civic Center will be one of several topics to be tackled by the Marin County Board of Supervisors tomorrow at the Civic Center.

At 10:30 a.m. supervisors will hear pros and cons on the present security measures, and whether they should be relaxed.

Marin Council for Civic Affairs has sent a letter to the supervisors calling for use of "good sense to eliminate the indignity of body search." The letter asks reopening of the Administration Building to nighttime public use, while locking up the Hall of Justice except during court hours.

In the afternoon, Sleepy Hollow residents are expected to show up in force to protest the proposed formation of the Sleepy Hollow Community Services District. The new district would take over the duties of the present Sleepy Hollow Fire Protection District and also provide other service such as recreation.

This will be followed by a public hearing on the proposed rezoning of South and West Novato and a hearing on a woodworking shop which the county superintendent of schools wants to build at the Marin County Farm in Lucas Valley.

The Novato rezoning covers a vast area stretching from Mount Burdell in the north to the top of Big Rock Ridge to the south. It includes Bowman Canyon, Stafford Lake area, Wild Horse Valley and Indian Valley.

The rezoning calls for residential zoning with 10,000 square foot lots in the area north of Mill Road, and 20,000 square feet at the entrance to Wild Horse Valley. All the rest will go to one-acre minimum lots.

Scholarships Are Awarded

Reed School District Teachers Association has awarded two $400 scholarships to college students who were students in the Reed district.

The recipients were Richard Barton and Howard Lazar, both at San Francisco State College. Barton graduated from Reed School in 1959 and is working toward a master's degree with plans to teach.

Joyce Wilson, Reed teachers' scholarship committee chairman, said the scholarships were financed by membership dues and sales of a cookbook.

Mill Valley Added To Transit Discussion List

The Golden Gate Bridge District board has added a Mill Valley hearing to its series of Marin County meetings to explain the district's transit plans.

The session will be at 8 p.m. Jan. 28 in the council chambers at Mill Valley City Hall. It replaces one originally set for last Dec. 28.

Cancellation of that Christmas-season hearing drew considerable criticism from Mill Valley School District trustees and other residents of the city.

The Mill Valley hearing will follow a similar session set for the Central School in Sausalito, at 8 p.m. Friday. On Feb. 3, the bridge district will hold its final discussion in San Rafael City Hall to hear from local governments and civic organizations throughout the northern counties.

Fishermen Urge Danish Sanctions

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—American fishermen asked the federal government this weekend to use economic sanctions against Denmark to "protect the Atlantic salmon from extinction by Danish high sea fishing fleets."

The executive board of the National Federation of Fishermen called on the government to ban importation of Danish food products. The federation also urged American consumers to boycott food imports from Denmark until fishing for salmon on the high seas is halted.

Gag Rule Question In Angela Remarks

Two Marin judges today declined to comment as to whether the chief attorney for Angela Y. Davis violated a court "gag rule" by remarks he made at a press conference Saturday.

Both Judges E. Warren McGuire, who issued the court rule, and Joseph G. Wilson, said they did not wish to discuss a matter that might come before the court later.

Miss Davis's attorney, Howard Moore Jr., a black lawyer from Atlanta, Ga., who has been involved in many civil rights cases, told newsmen that the case against the Communist leader, was a "vicious political frameup."

He described as "wholly lawful and innocent" the actions attributed to Miss Davis in the 143-page transcript of the Marin County Grand Jury which led to the indictment of Miss Davis on charges of murder, kidnapping and conspiracy.

Moore met with reporters in the San Francisco office of Allan Brotsky, another of Miss Davis's attorneys, and a third lawyer, Dennis J. Roberts was also present.

Moore also said he plans to initiate adversary proceedings, either in the form of a motion or law suit, to investigate charges by a San Quentin death row inmate that Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales had asked him to ask Ruchell Magee, to give evidence against Miss Davis.

Magee is accused along with Miss Davis of the crimes committed Aug. 7 during a shoot-out at the Hall of Justice in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three others were killed.

Judge McGuire has already said charges made both by Magee and convict Leo Estrada Robles were false.

Man Found Dead At His Home

A 57-year-old Corte Madera man, afflicted for years with a chronic pancreas ailment, was found dead Saturday in the bedroom of his home, apparently from a self-inflicted gun shot wound in the head.

According to Corte Madera police, Joseph William Nagy of 5 Council Crest Drive was discovered by his wife, Faye, at about 8:20 p.m. slumped in bed. A 22-caliber pistol was found near the body, officers said.

Mrs. Nagy told police her husband, operator of a San Francisco car rental agency, had remained in bed most of the day getting up to eat dinner at about 6:30 p.m., then returning to bed.

At about 7:30 p.m., Mrs. Nagy said she left home to walk the family dog and returned to find her husband slumped in bed. She said he had been ill with a painful pancreas disease for about 10 years and had appeared depressed during the day.

A native of Ohio, Nagy lived in California for 20 years and in Marin for 11.

Funeral arrangements were pending at Halsted and Co. Mortuary, San Francisco.

OIL

keep the fuel from spreading. Raccoon Straits was closed to navigation while Coast Guard crews attempted to assess the damage.

The collision occurred just under the west strand of the bridge. One of the heaviest fogs of the year poured through the Golden Gate into the Bay.

Although Coast Guard officials discounted the possibility of fire, a fire boat stood by. The heavy bunker fuel spilling was not likely to ignite easily, officials said.

A Standard Oil Co. spokesman said both vessels were loaded, the Oregon Standard with 110,000 barrels of fuel and the Arizona Standard with the same amount of crude oil.

Officials of the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control board said they had a boat on the scene and that a clean-up order to Standard Oil had been issued.

The officials described the bunker fuel as a heavy oil which turns into a tarlike substance on contact with cold water. For this reason, the oil should be somewhat easier to clean up than a lighter substance, they said.

Boat owners at the Sausalito Yacht Harbor said they could pick up the tarlike substance by the handfull as the gooey stuff collected on the boats in the harbor.

Water control officials said they had ordered hay and straw to soak up the oil and that additional booms have been flown up from Los Angeles, although heavy fog might prevent their landing.

Oil-Soaked Birds: Don't Wash With Detergents

The Marin County Humane Society warned persons who rescue oil-soaked birds not to try to wash the creatures at home.

The society shelter in Ignacio is prepared to clean up birds and urges they be brought there.

Sausalito firemen were among those today rescuing ducks and seagulls and taking them to the shelter.

Stolen Guns Suspect Is Arrested

A man suspected of taking three guns from an acquaintance was arrested at 12:45 p.m. Saturday after a foot chase through San Rafael streets, police reported.

Edward Donald Anthony, 28, of 804 Fourth Street, San Rafael, was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of burglary, possession of stolen property and possession of firearms. Novato police added two bookings of burglary and one of car theft. Anthony was held in lieu of $2,500 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court this afternoon.

Roger Leon Barnes, owner of Lloyd's Barber shop at 819 Fourth Street, told police that he had the guns in his apartment behind the barber shop. He said that Anthony wanted to borrow a revolver, but was refused.

Police, called by Barnes when he discovered the guns missing, sighted Anthony running down an alley to Lincoln Avenue. Police chased him to Lincoln Avenue and caught him there between Third and Fourth Streets. Police reported they found a revolver in Anthony's belt thought to be Barnes' belt. They also found two rifles in Anthony's apartment, identified as Barnes'. Value of the three guns was $320.

kled with English-speaking radio operators calling in coordinates and were answered by airborne Cambodian interpreters or French in heavily accented English.

The dispatches said hand-to-hand fighting broke out when the government troops began their ascent of Pich Nil Mountain at 4 p.m. toward the Communist held summer palace of deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk. The pass extends for six miles through the mountains.

In Saigon, the U.S. High Command admitted for the first time that helicopters and fixed wing planes were in operation in Cambodia. It denied there were any ground combat troops involved but said there were communications and logistic assistance.

The escalating role of U.S. military support for operations in Cambodia apparently began when Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, deputy U.S. commander in Vietnam, visited Phnom Penh last week.

DON F. RODACK

OBITUARIES

Don F. Rodack Killed

Funeral for Don F. Rodack of Occidental, a resident of Mill Valley until 1968, will be Wednesday at 11 a.m. at the Eggen and Lance Mortuary, 1540 Mendocino Avenue, Santa Rosa.

Rodack, 19, was killed Friday in an auto accident near Orland, Glenn County.

Rodack, although he moved to Sonoma County prior to his senior year, graduated in 1969 from Tamalpais High School where he was on the track and football teams.

He won the Alonzo Stagg award as most inspirational player on the football squad and the Mill Valley Record Award as most valuable player.

Rdack was also president of the Interact Club and a member of the marching band.

Last year, he attended Santa Rosa Junior College and was captain of the football team. He was named to the all-conference team and the Western States Junior College All-American team.

He had planned to attend Idaho State College in Pocatello, Ida., in the fall.

Born in San Francisco, Rodack lived in Mill Valley at 545 Marin Avenue until 1968.

His father, Frederick Rodack of Occidental is a social studies teacher at Novato High School. His mother is director of nursing at St. Lukes Hospital in San Francisco.

Rodack is to be buried at Sebastopol Cemetery. Recitation of the Rosary will be tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Eggen and Lance Mortuary.

said an exchange of working papers between the Arabs and Israelis had brightened prospects for yet another extension in the cease-fire. The sources said the discussions involving Jarring had reached a "substantive stage."

But the Egyptian sources said the initial positions as outlined in the papers still left the two sides far apart on the important issues such as Israeli occupation of Arab terroritories and the question of Palestinian refugees.

The sources said one possibility was the Egypt would agree to a cease-fire extension of only one month rather than three months to impress on the world Cairo's willingness to continue talking peace but without letting the talks drag on inconclusively for too long.

These subjects were up for discussion today in the second and last strategy conference in Cairo between Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny. In the background were repeated Soviet pledges to maintain Egypt's military might.

In New York, Egyptian Ambassador Mohammed H. el-Zayyat announced he was meeting today with U. N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring to discuss Egypt's replies to Israel's recent peace plan. There were growing indications Egypt would ask for a Security Council meeting before the current cease-fire expires Feb. 5.

The Sadat-Podgorny talks wind up the Soviet president's six-day visit during which he pledged to keep Egypt strong.

Court Test For Job Vs. Religion

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court agreed today to rule this term whether a federal antidiscrimination law bars the firing of a worker who refuses to work on Sundays because of religious beliefs.

The case involves Robert K. Dewey, a member of the Reformed Church of America, who was fired as a die worker in 1966 by the Reynolds Metals Co. plant at Wyoming, Mich., because he refused to work overtime on Sundays or find a coworker to substitute for him.

The Court, which has begun spreading its announcements and decisions over several days of the week rather than handing down all of them on Mondays, also:

—Let stand a U.S. appeals court decision that permits nonhandlers as well as handlers of commodities to challenge Agriculture Department marketing orders for such things as tomatoes and milk directly in federal courts.

—Agreed to decide whether a married woman in states with community property laws is personally liable for a share of income taxes if she later renounces her community property rights. The case involves a Louisiana woman but the outcome would affect community property laws in Arizona, California, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas and Washington.

The Court will hear oral arguments on the religious scruple case later this term and then hand down a written decision.

Last year, the U.S. District Court in Western Michigan agreed with a 1966 finding of the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission (EEOC) and ordered Dewey reinstated in his old job with more than $7,200 in back pay.

District Judge Noel P. Fox said because Dewey had been forced "to choose between his religion and his job," he was the victim of religious discrimination.

In his decision, Fox cited the case of a woman member of the Jehovah's Witnesses who, the Supreme Court had ruled, could not be denied unemployment compensation after she was fired for refusing to work on Saturdays.

But in a 2-1 split decision, the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals overturned Fox's decision.

The appeals court said Reynolds did not discriminate against Dewey because its contract with the United Auto Workers "provided a fair and equitable method of distributing the heavy workload among the employes without discriminating against any of them."

For a time, Dewey found a co-worker to take his place when he was assigned to Sunday shifts, but later he refused to do so. After being discharged, an arbitration appeal was rejected and he appealed to the EEOC. It sided with him but was unable to win over his employer and advised him to go to court.

Airlines Continue CAB Fight

MIAMI (UPI) —Northwest and Northeast Airlines continued their fight today against the Civil Aeronautics Board's decision to delay permission to operate a Miami-to-Los Angeles flight if the two airlines merge.

The two firms Friday petitioned the CAB to reconsider the condition to its approval of merger plans.

The route had been awarded to Northeast, but the board said when it approved merger plans it could have to reconsider when Northwest takes over operation of both firms.

Northwest's management has hinted since the CAB decision was made that it would do some more thinking about the merger plans if the CAB does not grant the route.

The board did not say specifically Northwest could not have the route and said the airline "will have full opportunity to justify its retention."

The CAB said Northwest made its firm decision to merge with struggling Northeast just six days after the lucrative route was granted.

South African Office Bombed

GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI)— A motorcyclist threw a gasoline bomb through a window of the South African Airlines office in Glasgow's city center early today, police said.

No one was hurt in the explosion and damage to the office was slight, a police spokesman said. The motorcyclist escaped.

Top Secret Island Awaits Nerve Gas

HONOLULU (UPI) —No new facilities are being constructed at tiny Johnston Island for the arrival from Okinawa of the first 150 tons of deadly nerve gas, an Army spokesman says.

An officer for the U.S. Army Pacific Command in Hawaii noted Sunday that the steel artillery shells containing the gas will be stored in existing earth-covered bunkers.

Johnston Island, a top-secret military outpost which is 3,000 feet long and 600 feet wide, was picked for storing 13,000 tons of gas after residents of Oregon, Alaska and the Island of Guam protested when they learned their lands were being considered.

Although Hawaiians, 800 miles away, have made some protests there are none from Johnston Island where the only residents are a few military personnel and civilian government employes.

Johnston Island, jammed with top-secret equipment, was the site in 1962 of high-altitude nuclear tests. A treaty was signed the next year banning nuclear explosions in the atmosphere but the testing equipment has been maintained.

Until last week Air Micronesia, a subsidiary of Continental Airlines, landed a plane there twice a week for refueling. Military orders stopped that and the plane now refuels at Midway Island, adding three hours and 15 minutes to its Micronesian flights.

In ordering the discontinuance, the Army said it acted on the U.S. surgeon general's advice concerning health and safety for civilian flights.

The gas is en route by ship on a 4,000-mile trip that is expected to end Jan. 22 or Jan. 23.

Teamster Strike Hits New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ninety-five per cent of the city's supply of fresh and frozen fruit and vegetables was tied up today by a truckers' strike against produce wholesalers.

City authorities estimated the supply of fresh fruit and vegetables would last for only one day. A spokesman said the situation was a "crisis to consumers."

The strike began Sunday night when the negotiating team of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Local 202, rejected a "final offer" from produce wholesalers. The union represents 1,500 deliverymen, warehousemen and truck drivers who now earn $141.60 per week and work an average of 10 hours' overtime. The union asked a $50 raise over three years and the wholesalers reportedly offered $40.90.

Bike Path Assurance Is Given

The Marin County Board of Supervisors has assured the Bay Conservation and Development Commission that its proposal for a Richardson Bay fill project would be used only for a bicycle-pedestrian path and never for a railroad.

The county holds a three-year lease — at $1,000 per year — from the Northwestern Pacific Railroad for right-of-way between Sausalito and Mill Valley for the path. The county has asked BCDC for permission to fill a portion of the right-of-way six feet wide and 450 feet long, for the trail. On Jan. 7 BCDC delayed approval of the permit on grounds that the lease might be cancelled, and the fill put to use by the railroad.

At the request of Supervisor Michael Wornum of Mill Valley, the board wrote Chairman Melvin B. Lane of BCDC to point out that should the county lose the bike path lease, it would revive its former condemnation suit for the right-of-way, to preserve the land for trail use.

Fourteen candidates have become president of the United States with a popular vote less than 50 per cent of the total vote cast.

Fuel Hitch Solved; Critical Apollo Test

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The launch crew surmounted a fueling hitch and pumped thousands of gallons of frigid propellants into the Apollo 14 rocket today in a critical countdown trial for the Jan. 31 start of the fourth moon landing mission.

The beginning of the long fueling operation was delayed more than two hours by difficulty with an oxygen loading device in the Saturn 5 rocket's third stage. But the trouble was bypassed and the fueling started at 9:15 a.m. EST.

The week-long countdown test was scheduled to stop just short of engine ignition at 3:23 p.m., but there was a chance the fueling problem would delay the simulated blastoff.

Because of the risks involved with a fully fueled Saturn 5 rocket, astronauts Alan B. Shepard, Stuart A. Roosa and Edgar D. Mitchell did not participate in today's exercise. They will run through an abbreviated countdown Tuesday after the rocket's propellants have been drained.

The astronauts, living in isolation here in an attempt to keep healthy, passed four-hour physical examinations Saturday and were pronounced "perfectly normal" with no medical problems.

They gradually are slowing the pace of training for the ambitious nine-day mission. They relaxed in their quarters Sunday and watched the Superbowl game on television.

The countdown rehearsal, known to engineers as the Countdown Demonstration Test CDDT, began last Tuesday and proceeded through the weekend without a hitch. It was designed to check the major systems in the Apollo 14 rocket and spacecraft and to make certain they mesh smoothly with ground supporting equipment.

Apollo 14 must be launched by 7:12 p.m. EST Jan. 31 or the mission will be delayed until March 1. The lone launch opportunity this month was caused by the fact that the astronauts have only one moon landing site and sun-lighting conditions there permit only one landing a month.

The plan is for Shepard and Mitchell to land in a valley on the geologically interesting FRA Mauro formation at 4:17 a.m. EST Feb. 5 while Roosa remains in lunar orbit. After two moonwalks, Shepard and Mitchell will take off from the moon Feb. 6 and the three are due to splash down in the South Pacific at 4:01 p.m. EST Feb. 9.

GENTLE WITH THOSE OLD BONES

The bones are at least 50,000 years old, and they make up a nearly intact California Grey Whale discovered near San Pedro. Members of local college communities lift a part of the skeleton in an operation to uncover the bones, wrap them in plaster and send them to San Fernando Valley State College for study.

'SAFE HAZARD'

Quake Warning By Experts

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Moderate earthquakes, such as jolted Santa Rosa in 1969, could have caused $25 million in property damage if they had struck San Francisco or Los Angeles, three experts have decided in a report for the federal government.

And it would come as "no surprise" if a major quake collapsed one or two modern, reinforced, concrete, high-rise buildings, they added in a report made public Sunday.

Those making the report to the U.S. Commerce Department were Karl Steinbrugge, a structural engineer, and William K. Cloud and Nina Scott, U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey seismologists.

Their damage survey in Santa Rosa—where quakes of 5.6 and 5.7 magnitudes on the Richter scale struck on Oct. 1, 1969—suggested to the trio that building codes have not kept pace with the fashions of architecture.

In saying it would be no surprise if modern, high-rise concrete structures collapsed in a major quake, they predicted that could happen even if present building codes were complied with.

A designer, they said, may "follow the letter of the law as expressed in the building code, but ... inadvertently design a collapse-hazard structure which is legally safe," they said.

In discussing the magnitude of quakes, the three experts referred to the Richter scale which measures the amount of energy released and operates on a logarithmic basis, so that a magnitude of two is 10 times greater than a magnitude of one.

There is no top on the scale and the San Francisco earthquake of 1906 registered at 8.25.

The Santa Rosa quakes seriously damaged 74 buildings, including Sonoma County's four-year-old concrete Social Services Building. The two-story structure had cracked supporting columns and walls when the jolts ended.

Moon Robot Drives Back To Mothership

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union's rolling moon robot today drove back to its Luna 17 mothership to complete "one of the planned experiments" of its moon exploration, Tass said.

The Soviet news agency did not specify why the eight-wheeled vehicle made its way back to the landing stage or what it will do next. The Luna 17 ship, carrying the Lunokhod machine piggyback, landed Nov. 17 in the moon's Sea of Rains.

"The apparatus turned in its tracks about half a kilometer from the landing area,'' Tass said. "For some time the old track showed clearly on the television screen and the controllers of the Lunokhod used it for guidance."

The agency called it an historic feat:

"For the first time in the history of cosmonautics there was a solution to a practical navigational problem: The return of the self-propelled apparatus to a preplanned point at a preplanned time on the surface of a different celestial body."

The Soviets already have announced that the robot is not designed to remount its landing module and return to earth. It will stay on the moon indefinitely.

Tass said the Lunokhod controllers used shadows of stones and carter walls in navigating the machine back to its starting point.

"By observing the shadows on the television screen, it was possible to determine the position of the sun,'' Tass said.

The agency said the machine zigzagged among stones and craters until it finally climbed down into the crater where the landing module waited.

The Soviets have said in the past that Lunokhod is a prototype for a whole family of future space explorers, including machines that will rove the distant surfaces of Mars and Jupiter.

Antioch's Drawbridge Reopening

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Antioch drawbridge, closed since Sept. 4 when it was struck by a freighter and jammed in the "up" position, was to reopen to traffic today.

The state Division of Highways reported that repairs have been completed a month ahead of schedule and that the span over the San Joaquin River was raised and lowered several times in a final test.

A ferry service was used while repairs were under way.

State Public Works Director James A. Moe said repairs cost $1.1 million and the ferry service cost $300,000.

The owners of the freighter, SS Washington Bear, were insured by the state for repair costs.

But Pacific Far East Line, Inc., owner of the vessel, sued the state for $7.5 million. The line claimed the ship was under control of a California-licensed pilot at the time of the crash.

The Washington Bear was headed downstream from Stockton to San Francisco when it hit the bridge's south tower. The bridgetender was stranded several hours in the tower and had to be rescued by firemen.

More San Diego Verdicts Due

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Decisions were expected this week in two more of the nine cases involving public officials and a businessman accused of bribery and conspiracy in the approval three years ago of increased city cab fare rates.

Final arguments began in the trial of former Assemblyman Tom Hom, who was a member of the 1967 city council which approved the fare hikes.

He is charged with accepting $4,000 in bribes from former San Diego Yellow Cab Co., President Charles Pratt to vote for the fare increases. He also is charged with conspiracy to violate election laws.

Bomb Found By Allende Home

VALPARAISO, Chile (UPI) — A bomb found near the summer presidential palace at nearby Vina del Mar was the work of reactionaries plotting to disrupt the Marxist government of President Salvador Allende, an official said Sunday.

The bomb, made up of four sticks of dynamite, was found by a gardener Saturday in a flower pot 20 yards from the palace where Allende was staying. It did not explode.

Interior Minister Jose Toha said "reactionary sectors" have shown their "seditious character" by "direct acts aimed at obstructing the work of the government and Chile's economic independence and social progress."

Singer Married

CALDWELL, N.J. (UPI) — Singer Connie Francis, 32, was married here Saturday to Izzy Marion, operator of hair styling salons in Lake Tahoe and Las Vegas, Nev.

FAMILIES FLEE

Oregon Rivers Flood Roads

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Heavy snows, followed by warm heavy rains, caused all rivers and streams in Southwestern Oregon to remain bankfull or over their banks last night.

Families in the low-lying areas of the Umpqua River were leaving their homes as the river continued to rise.

More rain was forecast for Oregon today, but it was expected to taper off into showers by tomorrow.

The Oregon Highway Department reported Sunday night 14 highways and secondary roads had been closed due to high water or mud slides.

There were no reports of any injuries in any of the slides but it was reported a semi-truck was caught in a slide on Interstate 5 north of Grants Pass and was blocking one lane of traffic in the southbound lanes.

Storm warnings had been changed to small craft warnings on the Oregon coast as high winds which have been battering the area for the past two days subsided.

The Chehalis River in Southwestern Washington was expected to reach 2.5 feet above flood stage at Centralia about 4 a.m. today. The National Weather Service said the river might rise to as much as four feet over flood stage by tomorrow.

Unless rainfall is heavier than expected in the next few days, other Western Washington rivers are expected to remain within their banks.

At least two highways in Eastern Washington are closed because of water over the roads and another has a weight limit for trucks and heavy vehicles.

Cayuse Pass in the Cascades has been closed by several large slides and maintenance crews have not been able to attempt to clear them due to the threat of further slides because of warm temperatures and rain or wet snowfall.

But the National Weather Service says there is a "strong indication" that another disturbance is developing about 500 miles off the south Oregon coast. It could bring increasing winds to all Washington waters during the night.

Calley Test For Combat Stress Shows Curbed Decision Ability

However, Dr. Albert A. La Verne testified Calley was under a combat stress which impaired his judgment and visual-motor performance and his ability to make complex decisions.

Witnesses at the murder court-martial, now in its 29th day, have testified that the infantry platoon Calley led that day encountered no combat and no return fire in its search-and-destroy sweep of the Vietnamese subhamlet in which Calley is accused of point-blank slaughter of 102 civilians.

La Verne, senior psychiatrist at New York University's Bellevue Medical Center, was called by the defense in an inquiry with the six-officer court panel absent to determine whether it has the right to produce psychiatric testimony to the jury.

His testimony as to Calley's sanity came on cross-examination by Capt. Aubrey M. Daniel III, the chief prosecutor. He had testified under examination by defense counsel George W. Latimer that he ran a series of tests on Calley in an environment in which 20 per cent of the oxygen was removed from a cubicle in which Calley sat and a considerable amount of tobacco smoke added to the air.

This atmosphere, he said, would produce an anoxia situation that would leave the body and mind "the same as in prolonged combat situations" with the heart pumping an increased respiration and pulse rate.

Remaining for an hour in the little room, which had only 75 cubic feet of air, Calley showed a "mild impairment of judgment and visual ability, could only perform simple decisions and actions."

"When it came to complex decisions, he just couldn't do it," La Verne said.

He told Daniel, however, that "combat stress" is common to all soldiers and that "this is not a mental illness—this is normal behavior."

"Calley was suffering no mental illness at that time?" Daniel asked.

"No mental illness," La Verne replied. "He was absolutely sane, suffering no character or behavioral disorder."

"What is your opinion of his capacity to form an intent to kill?" Daniel asked.

"Nothing impaired his intent," La Verne said. "He was a perfectly normal American soldier as far as that is concerned."

"You have any evidence that Calley was sitting in the little room on the morning of March 16, 1968?"

"Of course not."

"Then how can you know that this was the same kind of stress he was under on the day of the operation?" Daniel asked.

"I couldn't possibly," La Verne replied. "I can only say that under stress he suffers from impairment of judgment and visual-motor performance and showed a deviation in which he could not carry out complex decisions."

La Verne said he had made extensive research into the influence of marijuana on the human brain and had specifically examined 120 American soldier marijuana users who had returned from Vietnam. The type of marijuana found in Vietnam, he said, is two to 18 times more potent than the American domestic type.

Latimer indicated the defense would try to show that Calley, who was not a marijuana user, could have suffered from having been in a room or tent where marijuana smoke filled the air.

La Verne said that marijuana can remain in the body and brain up to two or three weeks with effects that include illusions, distortion of vision and imbalance in the ability to perform.

Asked by Latimer if marijuana could affect a person's understanding of orders, La Verne replied:

"It can influence capacity for cognition . . .it will impair an individual's capacity to interpret an order—he might understand the order but just go through the motions."

He said marijuana "is not a mind-expander—it is a mind-distorter" and that "the Vietnam variety is the most potent known in the world."

He cited an incident in which an American officer who had smoked marijuana thought the grass in front of him was Viet Cong and ordered his men to fire into it and another incident in which an American soldier on marijuana killed his buddy in the belief the buddy was Ho Chi Minh.

Of the Vietnam returnees he studied, the doctor said, "over 35 per cent had at least moderately impaired brain function, headaches and visual defects, and one said he felt like a zombie."

The testimony by La Verne was designed to partially answer the question of whether Calley will have to go before an Army sanity board for psychiatric examinations.

The defense contends there was confusion and therefore stress in the issuance of orders, though previous testimony said there was no combat for Calley's platoon.

The defense has produced a string of witnesses who said Calley's company commander, Capt. Ernest L. Medina, told his men in a briefing to destroy everything in the hamlet. Calley's defense is that he was doing his duty in obeying Medina's orders in a legal act of war.

Chrysler, UAW Resume Pact Talks

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. and the United Auto Workers, working under threat of a 10 a.m. Tuesday strike deadline, resumed negotiations today on a new contract to cover 120,000 workers.

The bargainers met for 13 hours Saturday and 15 hours Sunday in their attempt to avert another economically crippling auto industry strike. Only a few differences kept them from final agreement, sources said.

It appeared that today's negotiations could extend into a marathon session which could continue until just before the strike deadline.

Despite a news blackout, negotiators for the company and union appeared eager to work out the differences on a new three-year agreement to avert the walkout by Chrysler workers in the United States and Canada.

"It's easier to start a strike than to stop one," said one UAW spokesman. The issues of retroactive pay, wage increases for salaried workers and local plant agreements appeared to be holding up final settlement.

But the differences were not considered insurmountable.

The UAW is seeking back pay for Chrysler workers effective last Nov. 2, the same date agreed to by Ford Motor Co. when it signed a new agreement with the union. Chrysler proposed that the increases become effective on the first pay period following ratification of a new contract.

Chrysler and the UAW had settled differences at only 66 of 171 local bargaining units covering production, office, clerical and engineering workers.

If a strike began, it would not end until all local agreements were reached in addition to a new national contract. This was the case at GM where plants without local agreements did not resume production when the 67-day national strike was ended.

Ring Of Thieves Cuts Water Off

DETROIT (UPI)—Gerald J. Remus, general manager of the Detroit Metro Water Department, says 17 water meters have been stolen since Dec. 30 from homes or apartment buildings.

A ring of "most reprehensible thieves," apparently posing as department workers is responsible, says Remus.

Removal of the meters shuts off water service in the buildings affected. Some victims have wound up with flooded basements.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House says there is still nothing official to announce about the rumored engagement of Tricia Nixon and Edward Finch Cox.

Oil Deal Rejected By France

PARIS (UPI)—France has told Algeria it is not interested in a special oil deal that would break up the common front of Western nations against oil producing countries, French officials said today.

The disclosure came as Algerian Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika failed to arrive in Paris at 1:30 p.m. as expected for the scheduled opening this afternoon of a new critical round of oil negotiations with the French.

Algerian embassy and French government officials who waited for Bouteflika at Orly Airport said they now expected him to arrive late tonight, apparently because of last-minute consultations in Algiers.

The French officials said French embassies in Algiers and in other oil exporting capitals had affirmed France's solidarity with the 13 major international oil companies in their test of strength with the 10-nation organization of oil exporting countries (OPEC) over royalties and oil taxes.

The Franco-Algerian talks, which may be put off until Tuesday, are viewed by the two sides as an acid test of the future relationship between the Western countries and OPEC nations when and if the global bargaining starts.

Saturday night, the leading oil firms offered OPEC a global deal calling for a five-year truce under which oil companies would pay regular tax increases pegged to the rate of world inflation.

Bouteflika, before emplaning for Paris, pronounced the 1965 Franco-Algerian oil agreement "a failure." A few hours earlier Bouteflika's colleague, Petroleum Minister Belaid Abdesealam, signed a joint communique with Libyan Vice President Abdessalam Jelloud, pledging the two countries to stand firm against the Western companies and rejecting the oil companies' proposals.

Bouteflika, in an interview with the government-controlled newspaper El Moujahid, also said the Algerian-Libyan front was unshakeable in the current confrontation.

Weekend Violence Worries Americans

MOSCOW (UPI) — Anti-American violence flared briefly over the weekend, destroying hopes the worst was over in the Soviet retaliation campaign.

Vandals damaged two U.S.-owned automobiles and strongarm men threatened to beat up an American newsman in the street Saturday. No further incidents were reported today.

The incidents interrupted a five-day lull in a scare campaign against Americans that produced acts of harassment every day from Jan. 6 to Jan. 11. The campaign followed a Soviet statement that the safety of Americans in Moscow was jeopardized by the acts of militant Zionists against Soviet officials in the United States.

In the earlier period, vandals damaged five American-owned cars in parking places with hammers and knives and groups of Russians threatened U.S. citizens in the streets.

The abrupt halt in reports of intimidation roughly coincided with stepped-up law enforcement measures to protect Russians in the United States. As the days went by without trouble, Americans in Moscow began to relax and travel freely about the town again.

Saturday morning this confidence began to crumble when Walter Nelson, an official of Pan American World Airways' Moscow office, found the windshield of his car had been smashed by hammer blows. Nelson's car was parked at the entrance of one of Moscow's biggest tourist hotels, the Ukraine, in a lot guarded by a policeman.

Late Saturday afternoon, vandals smashed windows and headlights of a car belonging to a United Press International correspondent outside the door of the main supermarket run by the Soviets for foreigners. Five men taunted the UPI man in view of his wife and 2-year-old son as he surveyed the damage, shouting "How do you like it?" and "Why don't you stop molesting our people in America?"

Just before midnight Saturday, Newsweek magazine correspondent Jay Axelbank told colleagues he had been surrounded by four Russian men as he walked on heavily-trafficked Kutuzovsky Prospect in front of Moscow's biggest foreign apartment complexes.

"One man grabbed my arm and said "I ought to beat him up right here.' " Axelbank said, adding that he was given his chance to escape by a friendly drunk who staggered up and told him to "Get going."

Council To Eye New Police Chief

The Belvedere City Council will hold a closed meeting 8 p.m. today at city hall to discuss hiring of a new police chief.

Meeting openly with the city planning commission at 8:45 p.m., the council will discuss the city's application for a 701 Planning Program grant and will consider a commission recommendation that the San Francisco planning firm of Livingston and Blayney be hired to prepare a general plan for Belvedere.

In a general council meeting scheduled to start at 10 p.m., Mayor Edwin J. Drechsel will call for volunteers to serve on a citizens committee to study merger of police forces in Belvedere and Tiburon.

Art Exhibit At Novato House

Art work depicting Novato scenes and essays about Novato will be displayed at an open house at the newly decorated Community House from 4 to 6 p.m. Jan. 24, according to Bea Carpenter, chairman of the redecoration committee.

There will be art work and essays by local students as well as paintings by members of the Novato Art Guild and North Bay Artists.

Persons or organizations contributing $15 or more by Jan. 30 to the redecoration project will be named on a permanent scroll to be displayed at the entrance of city hall, Mrs. Carpenter said.

Battle Of The Environment: Is It Now Or Never?

By Roscoe and Geoffrey Drummond

WASHINGTON — We are at war with ourselves, destroying what we cannot live without — our environment.

That is the heart of the environmental crisis.

We must either live in harmony with nature or nature will strike back harder than it is already doing.

Nature won't lose. We will.

IT IS NOT too late to reverse the trend. But it will be before long if we don't begin soon to do more — and do it better.

The President's Council on Environmental Quality is urging 71 major actions to arrest the perilous pollution of our air, water and earth.

No evidence points to their being done soon.

Congress talks about meeting crucial domestic problems — but devotes most of its time to arguing about the war already ending in Vietnam.

The nation's governors say that the big initiative must come from the federal government, and Washington says the primary responsibility is with the states. No adequate actions come from either.

Nixon sought a modest beginning from Congress last February to expand waste disposal plants to cut pollution. This hasn't even come out of a congressional committee yet.

WHY THIS DELAY when every day wasted brings the nation nearer to confrontation with disaster?

We'll tell you why.

One day a stagnant pool of pollution was hanging in the sky all the way from New York to Atlanta and so low you could almost touch it. A friend stopped by our office. She looked out the window, pointed her finger imperiously and said: "They say it's smog. I just don't believe it."

THERE'S ANOTHER reason. It comes from the doomsdayers. Some of them preach that it's too late already, that nothing will save the planet from man-made catastrophe.

Other doomsdayers argue vehemently that the only way to begin is to throw away entirely our competive economy, suppress capitalism and eliminate our nation states. They never say what is to be put in place of what's to be thrown away.

They're both wrong — both the ho-hum and the doomsday approach.

IF THE TRUTH is not to be found at these two extremes, what then is the size and urgency of the environmental crisis?

We believe the answer is right here:

Nothing is more important than for man to stop despoiling his planet and start rescuing it.

It can be done.

We reject thedoomslayers — but they will be right if we don't get moving faster.

WE ARE CONFIDENT we are not exaggerating the magnitude of the environmental crisis. There is plenty of supporting evidence.

In his message to Congress with the first annual report of the Council on Environmental Quality, President Nixon says bluntly: "We face the prospect of ecological disaster."

And why? Because, as the President does not hesitate to affirm, "our very survival" is now "directly related to and affected by the environment in which we live."

Those are the key works in measuring the size and urgency of the crisis: "disaster" and "survival."

WHEN MUST the United States, hopefully in company with other industrial countries, begin the massive measures needed to reverse the tide?

On that point the President couldn't be more explicit. His answer: "IT IS LITERALLY NOW OR NEVER."

An equally somber verdict was delivered to the American Society of Newspaper Editors by the environmental panelists who addressed its annual convention:

"This environmental crisis is the toughest problem in the world today — more explosive than the bomb, more lasting than the war, more decisive than race."

IT IS LATER than we think. We are so late because for so many centuries man ignored his dangerous and reckless poisoning and eroding nature of its capacity to sustain him.

It was our bland and heedless assumption that the waters and the atmosphere which surround us and the earth on which we stand were a limitless and willing receptacle for our mounting waste and that we could seize their resources and their energy and give nothing in return.

Now nature is furiously fighting back. It is rejecting our wastes, returning the polluted water, and giving back the killer smog.

As that honest and perceptive comic strip character, Pogo, so rightly says: "We met the enemy and he is us."

Fulltime Referee Evidences Growth Of Juvenile Court

It seems almost unbelievable that in two and one-half years, a Marin County juvenile court case overflow could grow from a halftime job to a fulltime job. But that is what has happened.

In June, 1968, Jack L. Blaine and James D. Adams became volunteer referees to handle the overflow of cases from juvenile court, which Judge Samuel W. Gardiner found it impossible to schedule during the one day each week allotted by Marin Superior Court to juvenile matters. Each worked about 10 hours a week.

THE INTRODUCTION of volunteer juvenile court referees in 1967 and the creation of a fulltime referee job early in 1971 both arise from the same causes: an increase in juvenile crime and an increase in the time required to dispose of juvenile cases.

The first is tied primarily to the growth of the drug problem. An increasing percentage of juvenile court cases, Blaine pointed out, arise from the use of drugs and from thefts connected with drug use — primarily to finance the user's habit.

The second results from U.S. Supreme Court decisions that juveniles are entitled to the same court rights as adults. Whereas it used to be a rarity for an attorney to appear for a juvenile, now it is routine. And while this may assure the boys and girls greater attention to their rights, it also takes up more court time.

EMPLOYMENT OF BLAINE, a San Rafael attorney long interested in the problems of juveniles, as fulltime referee to hear such cases constitutes recognition that the juvenile court has changed from a sort of superior court stepchild to a status comparable to the adult courts.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson will continue to devote one day each week to the juvenile calendar, as did his predecessor, Judge Gardiner. Thus, the juvenile division has grown in less than three years from one day to six days per week of court time — one day for Judge Wilson and five for referee Blaine.

The inevitable next step, if the growth continues, appears to be creation of a separate department of superior court devoting its entire time to juvenile cases.

A few years ago, such an idea would have seemed riciculous in Marin. But no longer.

Shriver Shifts To State Where Party Needs Him

By ERNEST SON

WASHINGTON — R. Sargent Shriver Jr. was island-hopping through the Antilles when the news broke that he was considering a move to New York. When the news broke last spring that he was considering a move to Maryland he was party-hopping as ambassador in Paris.

That is where the resemblance between the two situations ends. For if learning by your mistakes helps make a good politician, then Shriver's political ambitions were helped in the long run by what happened nine months ago in Maryland.

Not that he wasn't a politician as head of the Peace Corps, head of the Antipoverty Program or envoy to France. But what you learn in such administrative, lobbuying and diplomatic jobs is not necessarily what you need to enter elective politics on your own behalf.

THAT LESSON sank into Shriver after he came back from Paris to explore rather conspiciously his chances of replacing Marvin Mandel as governor of Maryland. It seemed to many Maryland Democrats to be an arrogant expedition.

He had been born in the state, true, but that was about the extent of his qualifications to be governor there. He had never voted there, although he maintained a residence in the Maryland suburbs of Washington while serving in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations. He had never held party or public office there. In short, he appeared a carpetbagger.

Worse, from the pols' point of view, was that he was considering running against an incumbent Democrat who was doing very well, thank you, and had no intention of retiring. Maryland Democrats were not exactly crying out for a volunteer savior from abroad.

Mandell was publicly polite to him but privately tied up every Democratic organization that mattered, so tightly that Shriver could not even get his big toe in the door. The ambassador thus turned his attention elsewhere and after some elbowing with Lawrence O'Brien of the Democratic National Committee he took on the assignment of running "congressional leadership for the future" to provide speakers and raise funds for embattled Democratic candidates during the fall.

IT WAS THERE that he paid his political dues. The organization turned out to be mostly a one-man show. Shriver personally was responsible for most of the 126 speeches that helped raise $550,000 for 86 candidates in 29 states during the campaign. He traveled some 40,000 miles in the process.

With that background, party leaders are much more willing to wish him good luck if he decides to move to New York than they were earlier in Maryland. In New York itself, Shriver appeared on behalf of five congressional candidates, plus Richard Ottinger, the candidate for the Senate, and Arthur Goldberg, who tried to become governor. He can hardly be blamed for the fact that of those seven candidates only two incumbent congressmen won.

UNLIKE THE DEMOCRATS in Maryland, those in New York are indeed crying out for a savior. If he does not materialize in the person of John Lindsay, the Republican mayor, he might very well turn up as Sarge Shriver, of Westminster and Rockville, Md., Chicago, Ill., Paris, France, and, incidentally, for a few years after the war, New York, N.Y.

The state proved hospitable to a genuine Kennedy as carpetbagger when Robert ran for senator there in 1964. How a brother-in-law member of the clan will do is for Shriver to find out.

As for electoral opportunities, there is no statewide office up before 1974 when the redoubtable Jacob Javits' Senate term ends and Nelson Rockefeller will complete his fourth gubernatorial term. But there is the matter of the presidential election in 1972, and that involves choosing two nationwide Democratic candidates.

To pair Edward Kennedy and Shriver on the same ticket would be too much of a family thing, but in potential combination with most of the other aspiring presidential nominees Shriver in New York would have a geographical and factional attractiveness that could not be ignored.

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

Marin Voice On Bridge Board Reduced To Mere Whisper

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Marin County's limited voice in the Golden Gate Bridge District has been virtually choked off by the new president of the district board, Lowell Edington of Napa County.

Marin has only three of the 18 seats on the board of directors, an outdated inheritance from the days when San Francisco grabbed half of the seats as its price for getting the six-county district started.

Marin, however, has compensated for some of this disadvantage by getting two seats on the transportation committee. Committee recommendations generally prevail when brought before the full board for ratification, thus a strong voice on this key committee gave Marin a fighting chance to get its views across.

EDINGTON SHUFFLED committees around to drop director Dean N. Meyer of Mill Valley. Meyer is the only commuter on the bridge board, and this is the only committee dealing directly with commuter matters.

Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum was retained as chairman of the transportation committee, but because chairmen cannot initiate motions, he is relatively powerless without a second Marinite to help him move the ball toward Marin's goals.

Even worse, Edington replaced Meyer with L. E. Castner of Sonoma County, who has an almost unblemished record of voting "no" whenever a board decision is needed on transit proposals.

Wornum promptly objected when Edington managed his committee selections, but Edington managed to avoid giving him a direct answer.

THE COMMITTEE previously had eight regular members, three from San Francisco, two from Marin and three from the northern coalition of Napa, Sonoma, Mendocino and Del Norte counties. The board president, who serves ex-officio on all committees, then was from San Francisco.

Edington trimmed the number of regular members to six, with three from San Francisco, one from Marin, and two from the northern counties. With Edington's ex-officio membership, the northern counties held onto their three votes — with Marin and San Francisco each losing one vote.

The result of Edington's committee shuffle was to multiply Marin's disadvantage at having a disproportionately small voice on the full board. It also showed again how precarious Marin's position is between San Francisco and the northern counties.

Marin happens to be the prime user of the bridge, but you'd never guess it from the way the county gets pushed around by district politics. Thanks to the legislature, the bridge board has been reformed in the past few years — but we'd feel far more comfortable if Marin's toes did not get crunched so casually.

DEMOCRATS ARE prominent on the staff of Marin's new Republican senator, Peter H. Behr, but the newest addition may help reverse the political complexion of his staff. She is Marilee Monagan, daughter of Assembly Republican Leader Bob Monagan of Tracy.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Boundary Shift Unfair To Voters

The shifting of the Sixth Congressional District northward to include the balance of Marin County not previously usurped is hardly fair to the voters of that area. They have indicated their choice of representatives at the pools last November. Their choice was the Honorable Don H. Clausen. Clausen has demonstrated his ability as a capable, efficient congressman, conversant with the voters and aware of their problems. He is suburban oriented.

The possibility of having him replaced by one whom we had no choice in selection leaves us cold. We are at the mercy of the whim of the state legislature. While we recognize Representative Mailliard as an experienced and capable representative we also know, having observed his workings from close range since his take over of Southern Marin, that his thinking and actions are urban flavored as one would expect from his originally coming from a San Francisco electorate.

For those of you who also feel that Don Clausen is virtually irreplaceable, contact your state senators and assemblymen by phone, letter or wire, but contact them now and often.

Planner Distressed Over Editorial

The Independent-Journal editorial of Jan. 5, accused a planning department in Marin County of dealing contemptuously with the citizen-taxpayers, and of losing touch with what the community wants. The editorial was written so vaguely that any and all of the various planning departments in Marin County could have been the target.

These accusations naturally concern me . . . General accusations of this kind are of no help to anybody. They only create ill feelings. Sorry, but I consider this irresponsible journalism.

Higher Federal Spending Encourages More Strikes

It didn't surprise many people to learn that strike activity last year was the highest in 11 years. According to the Labor Department, total man-days of idleness in 1970 were 62 million, compared with 42.9 million in the previous year.

Congress should get the message. The department, in a model of understatement, said that last year's high level of strikes "appears to be associated" with inflationary pressures. Those pressures, of course, derive in no small part from the high level of federal spending, which Congress talks a lot about curbing but almost always ends up increasing.

The lawmakers, moreover, have seemed in no hurry to discourage the unions' excessive exploitation of the price situation. When something like a national rail strike erupts the legislators deal with it on a one-shot basis, pushing the problem under the rug for a few more weeks. This sort of chaos is costly for the workers, the companies, and the economy generally.

Any realistic effort to restore balance to labor-management relations has so far been blocked by firm union opposition, and labor's influence with the legislators still is potent. The 1970 experience, however, suggest that someone should get moving soon — if the nation doesn't intend to go for broke.

'Conservative Budget Approach' Yields Hatful Of Rabbits

You can't blame the public for wondering where all this money is coming from all of a sudden.

During budget sessions last summer, the hard-nosed county supervisors kept harping on the lack of funds, paring $1,000 here and $2,000 there.

Then we're hit with the shootout and bomb explosion, and the county comes up with $300,000 for security.

Last week, supervisors committed another $250,000 for the auditorium and surrounding landscaping, $10,000 for a juvenile court referee, and $70,000 to complete an unfinished courtroom — total about $330,000.

And each time, County Administrator Alan Bruce and Auditor-Controller Mike Mitchell come up with the funds like pulling rabbits out of a hat.

THE ANSWER to this seeming puzzle is the extremely conservative approach adopted by the fiscal experts during budget time and at tax setting last September.

This fiscal year, for the first time, they added a budget item called "special medical care", and stuck it under the Medi-Cal budget.

In addition to $813,000 for Medi-Cal, they inserted $756,000 for this "special medical care."

Looking back, this turned out to be "padding." But at the time, the state was tinkering with Medi-Cal financing, and the county wasn't sure what additional financial load the state might impose in health and welfare costs. The county administrator and the auditor weren't taking any chances, so they sneaked the $756,000 into the budget, not under reserve for contingencies but under the Medi-Cal budget No. 511.

The "reserve for contingencies" showed a scant $50,000.

WHILE IT'S TRUE that health and welfare costs were uncertain last summer, it's difficult to believe that the fiscal experts would be off by $756,000 on that one budget item alone, Medi-Cal. They'd call it "the conservative approach" — being overly cautious. But we suspect that at least a part of that $756,000 was conscious padding that could be sprung in mid-year to "re-budget" for such items as the auditorium completion and landscaping.

Let's hope they don't go overboard on what they euphemistically call "the conservative approach." Otherwise, when the county is really in a bind and funds are down to the last penny, a smug public will lean back and say: "Aw come now, fellas! Instead of crying wolf, get Alan Bruce to pull another rabbit from the hat."

TWO SAN RAFAEL chefs, who took the Civic Center cafeteria contract away from Manning's, apparently are trying to meet Manning's prices.

They've assured county employees that the $1.20 to $1.45 hot entree prices were package luncheons that included salad, bread and butter, and that ala carte prices would be more like $1 for the hot lunch alone.

Furthermore, the chefs plan to meet with county employees every three months or so, and to try to keep their patrons satisfied with quality food and reasonable prices.

At least, you couldn't beat their price for coffee today. Coffee was free for today's grand opening.

San Rafael Council To Discuss Salaries

The San Rafael City Council will discuss proposed new salaries for elected city officials at its regular meeting at 8:30 p.m. today in the council chambers at City Hall.

City mgr. James H. McCown explained yesterday that the posts of city clerk, treasurer and attorney will be up for election April 2 State law requires that any ordinances changing their salaries must be enacted before the election.

The positions' salaries cannot be changed in midterm, he said. The last changes were in 1967, when the police chief post also was elective.

McCown said he may ask the council to postpone final action on the elective salaries to permit more study of the workload for the city attorney.

Two hearings are also on the Monday agenda. The major one, scheduled for 8:30 p.m., is on proposals to form the East San Rafael Assessment District for major storm drainage work. The owners of the Smith Brothers Ranch also have requested a public hearing on exclusion of the property from agricultural preserve status.

The Amazon River is about 12 times bigger than the Mississippi River and has a mouth more than 200 miles wide.

WASHINGTON WINDOW

Catalog Shows Immensity Of Washington Giveaways

WASHINGTON (UPI) —"The Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance" is a book that can give taxpayers the screaming meemies.

Published by the White House Office of Management and Budget, this massive compendium describes the different loan and grant programs under which federal money is ladled out to states, cities, institutions and individuals.

The latest edition, just out, lists about 1,200 separate and distinct programs of federal aid, administered by 141 different departments, offices, agencies, boards and bureaus.

THAT MANY of these federal programs probably overlap, duplicate and even contradict each other, administration officials readily concede. The trouble is, there are so many of them, and new ones are added so rapidly, no one in the government really knows which ones are redundant. Some veteran officials of the Office of Management and Budget estimate privately upwards of $10 billion a year is being wasted on federal programs that could be eliminated with no great harm to the public interest.

President Nixon took office with a commendable determination to weed out some of the more egregious boondoggles. But he has discovered, as did many presidents before him, that this is easier said than done. In fact, his record to date has been enough to discourage the stoutest-hearted economizer. During the six months since the last updating of the catalog, 18 programs have been eliminated—but 33 new ones have been added.

IN HIS STATE of the Union message to Congress next week, Nixon will propose a radically different approach to the whole problem of channeling federal funds into areas where they are needed to deal with urgent social and economic problems.

He will recommend what he calls "revenue sharing" on a major scale. Basically, this is a system under which the federal government would distribute large blocks of money to states and cities, without telling them exactly how they must spend it. In other words, the enormously efficient taxing structure of the federal government would be used to raise the money that states and cities desperately need.

This is a noble idea that can serve two good purposes. First, it can save states and cities from bankruptcy, which is an imminent peril to more than a few of them right now. Second, it can restore decision-making powers, hitherto centralized in Washington, to those levels of government which are closest to the people.

THE HITCH is that revenue-sharing, on a scale large enough to do any real good, will be economically feasible only if accompanied by a sharp cutback in the specific-category aid programs that have proliferated in the past 25 years.

Cutting "The Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance" in half is by no means an excessive goal. It will take pruning of that magnitude to turn revenue-sharing into anything more than a hollow slogan.

The question is whether the President and Congress have the political fortitude to make such slashes in programs that have built up highly vocal special interest constituencies.

It won't be easy to do. But nothing less will put a stop to the ridiculous spectacle of the U.S. government leaving great needs unmet while frittering away billions on a vast variety of pet projects which persistent congressmen have managed over the years to embed in the federal budget.

Dole Sees Agnew As Best Running Mate Now For Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew "right now" is the best running mate for President Nixon next year, according to new Republican National Chairman Robert J. Dole.

The Kansas senator, chosen for the chairmanship Friday by a Washington meeting of the GOP National Committee, said Sunday Agnew was the current choice for "practical" reasons.

Dole conceded some GOP leaders would like to see Agnew removed from the ticket. But he said he felt the vice president had done "a tremendous job" of fund raising for the party and had been an effective advocate for the administration's policies.

"Being very practical, I would say right now" that Agnew is the best vice presidential candidate in 1972, Dole said. He said he did not see any challenge within the party to Agnew's renomination.

Dole, regarded as a conservative, said he anticipated no trouble in working with liberals and moderates in the party. He said some liberal and moderate senators viewed him as "a bridge to the White House" who could present their views to Nixon.

The Kansas senator would not say who he would vote for if Sen. Howard H. Baker of Tennessee challenges Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania for the Senate Republican leader's post. Dole said he could not commit himself because Baker had not formally declared his candidacy.

Dole, 47, replaced Maryland congressman Rogers C. B. Morton as national chairman. Morton will become interior secretary.

Dole began his term as chairman by pledging he would defend policies of the Nixon administration and promote unity in the Republican party.

Humphrey Hits Soviets For Actions In Mideast

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen.-elect Hubert H. Humphrey said Sunday the Soviet Union was imposing its imperialism in the Middle East and that the United States must make it clear that it will never permit the destruction of Israel.

The Minnesota Democrat told the Jewish National Fund the Soviets have decided to foster and exploit current Arab-Israel instability.

"By so doing, the Soviet Union hopes to see Arab nations drawn gradually and firmly into the Communist orbit. They plan the sacrifice of legitimate Arab nationalism to further their own imperialism. Where Catherine the Great left off, Brezhnev now resumes," the former vice president said.

The U.S. cannot weaken its commitment to Israel, he said, but must "if anything, be more supportive" and not weaken in any regard. "This commitment must again be declared clearly by the national administration."

Humphrey suggested flexibility by Israel on the border problem as one ingredient of a Middle East solution, but borders guaranteed in such a way that "population centers will not be exposed to the violent whims of dissident guerrillas."

Firemen, Auxiliary To Install On Saturday

Marin County Association of Fire Departments and its women's auxiliary will hold a joint installation ceremony, dinner and dance beginning at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club.

Allen Howe, volunteer in the Tam Valley department, will be installed as president and Mrs. Frank Evansco of Larkspur will be installed for another term as president of the auxiliary.

Other officers of the association to be installed are Ronald Christenson, first vice president; Henry Perroz, second vice president; Robert Bettencourt, sergeant at arms; Herbert Lane, secretary-treasurer, and James Kennon Jr., past president.

The association will name its Marin County Fireman of the Year at the dinner.

$7 Million Plan For Police Stations

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Police chief Edward M. Davis has recommended the city replace two "inadequate" police stations at a cost of $7 million.

The recommendations, approved by the city council's police, fire and civil defense committee, called for replacement of the Hollywood station, which is 43 years old and the Northeast Division, formerly called the Highland Park division, which is 46 years old.

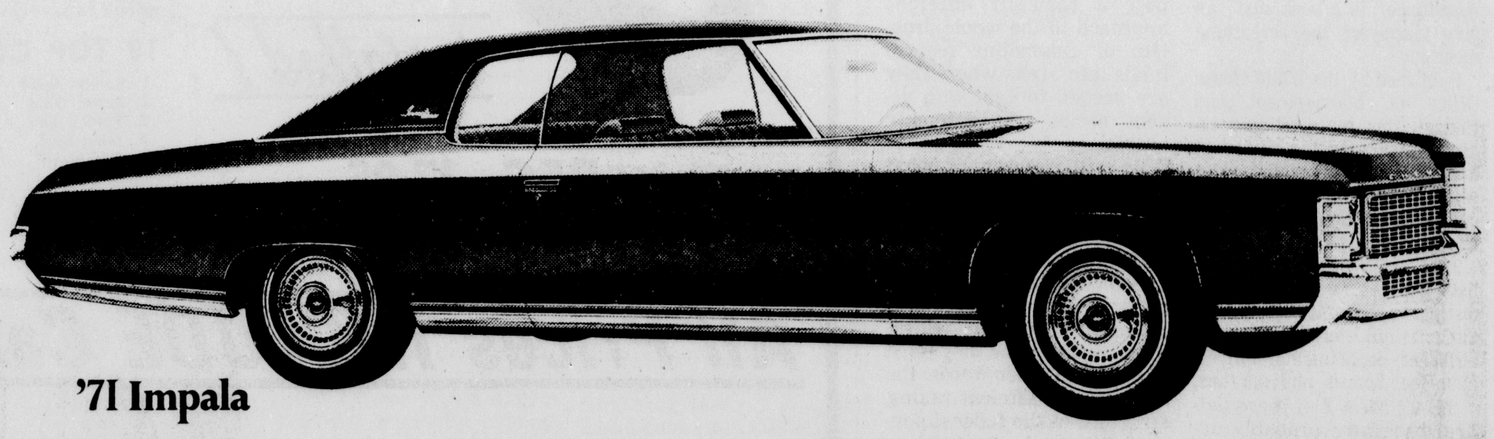
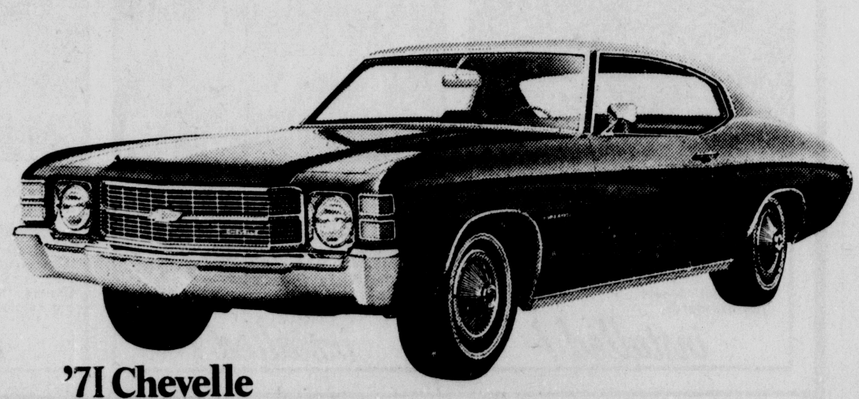
In 1971, people will look harder, expect more for their money and end up with a Chevrolet.



'71 Impala

You've changed.
Extensive research told us. Common sense told us.
So, naturally, we've changed.
For instance we gave our totally new '71 Impala a pair of power disc brakes up front for greater resistance to heat buildup and fade. They're standard.
We were also sure you'd like more than the customary nice ride. So we gave it to you. In the longest, smoothest Impala wheelbase ever. In a new wider stance chassis. And in a new bump-absorbing Full Coil suspension.
What's more, Impala's new built-in emission controls have helped reduce air pollution, as you asked.
'71 Impala. Did we mention it's the roomiest car in its field? We've been building up to this much Impala for years.
Because you have.



'71 Chevelle

We kept all the Chevelle things people liked so much. And added some new things to like.
To fight pollution further, we've also made all of Chevelle's engines so they can run on no-lead or low-lead gasoline.

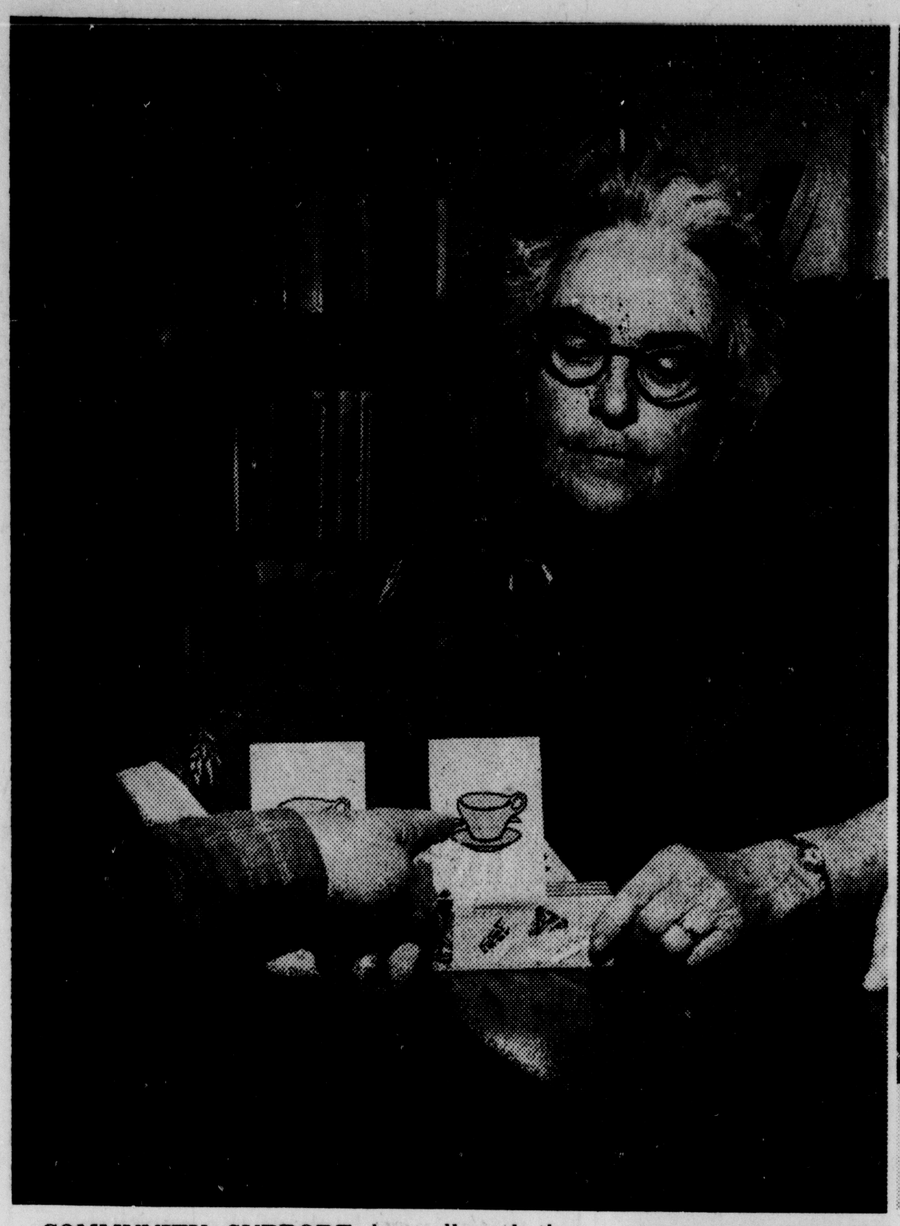
Our new little Vega

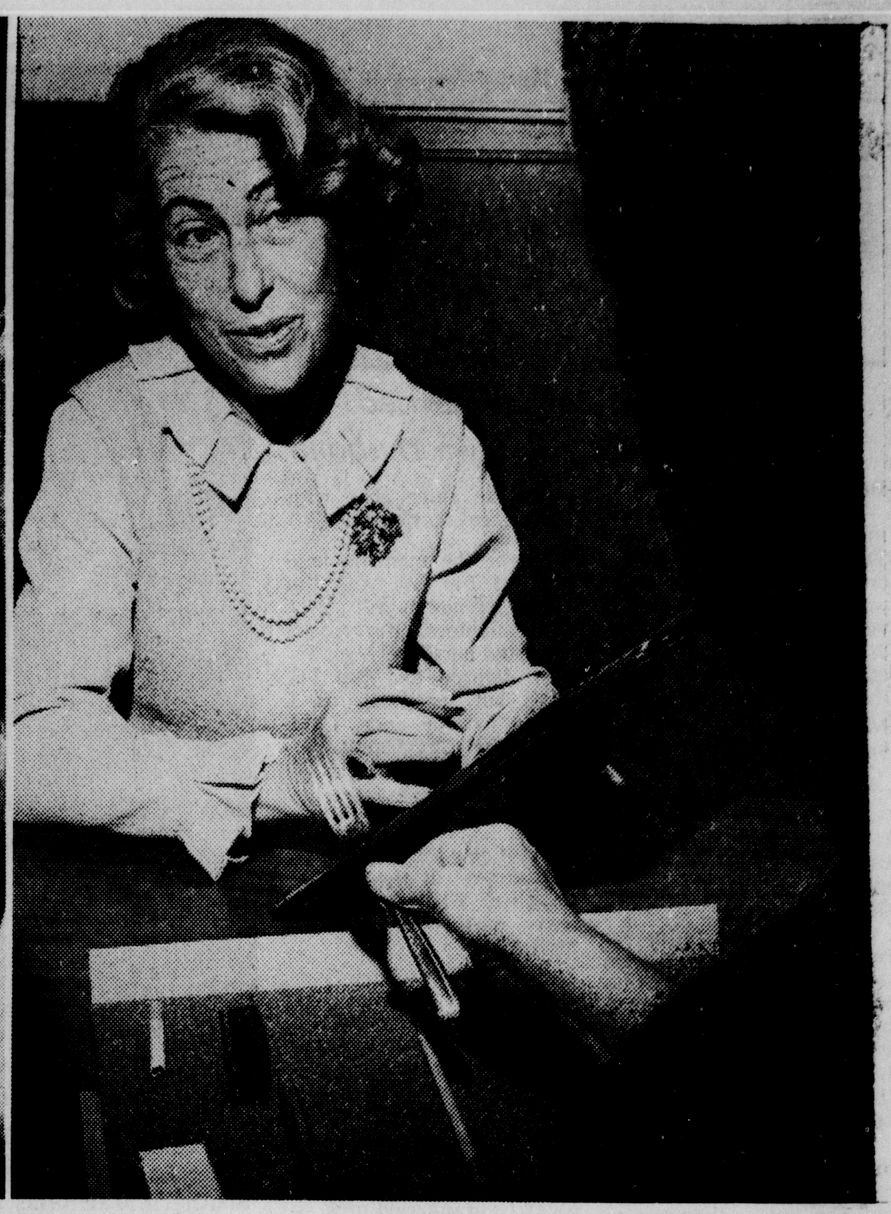
The little car that does everything well.
And no wonder. It has a specially designed overhead cam four with a lightweight aluminum alloy block. So you move right out.
It has disc brakes up front. So you stop well.
It has a low, wide stance. So you ride stable.
And it sips gas. So you save.
Vega. Now open for business.

Chevrolet

You've changed. We've changed. A Value Showdown will prove it.

GM MARK OF EXCELLENCE





COMMUNITY SUPPORT has allowed the Easter Seal Society of Marin to expand its speech therapy program. Working with adults who have suffered strokes or other trauma is Mrs. Emerson Daggett, left, who runs a Tuesday morning group at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo. Naming the object and pointing to it is the patient's first accomplishment toward relearning to express himself. Mrs. David Almon, center, is the society's children's therapist. Her patient is involved in a speech stimulation session using a picture as a point of interest. The newest member of the staff is Mrs. Frances Lichtenberg, right, who with Mrs. Daggett runs two weekly sessions for adults.

Kathleen Kuhn Is Engaged To Wed

The engagement of Kathleen Kuhn and Richard J. Anstey of Novato is being announced.

Kathleen is the daughter of Charles Kuhn of Loma Verde and Mrs. Elma Greer of San Francisco, and Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Anstey of Novato.

The bride-elect is the sister of Bill, Barbara and Lisa Kuhn of Novato and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kuhn of Novato and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Domes of El Cerrito. She was graduated from Novato High School, attended College of Marin and is employed at Belvedere Nursery School.

KATHLEEN KUHN

Richard is the brother of Jacqueline and Edward Anstey. He was graduated from Novato High School and College of Marin and will attend San Francisco State College in February. He is employed with the Charles Kuhn Construction Co. in Novato.

The couple plan an August wedding.

SWEDENBORGIAN CHURCH in San Francisco was the setting for the wedding ceremony and reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Gerald William Schaefer (Pamela Jean Rollins). Parents of the bride are Mrs. Clifford Bunds Jr. of Novato and Richard Rollins of Sonora. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Thomas Downey of Honolulu and Lee Schaefer of Novato.

Speech Program Is Growing

Good support from the community gets the credit for the expanded speech and language center of the Marin Easter Seal Society from executive director Mrs. Phyllis Widdershoven.

Both availability of resources and willingness of volunteers have made the program services expand to the point where now three full-time speech pathologists help Marin children and adults express themselves to others.

Mrs. Helen L. Daggett of Mill Valley, who has been working with Easter Seals since 1956, helped the case committee while maintaining her private practice as speech pathologist. Then in 1958 she was a staffer for the first summer speech program for pre-school children, and by 1961 she was a full time therapist for Easter Seals programs, and holder of the master's degree in speech pathology.

Next she became director-therapist for the speech clinic and set up pre-school age speech and language stimulation classes. Another phase of her work was screening and testing Marin City children and providing therapy for youngsters who had speech problems.

In 1964 Mrs. Daggett began to work with hospitalized men and women who had had strokes or accidents. More recently she set up the first program to work with teen-age stutterers in Marin and also gave speech therapy to children at the Marin Child Development Center in Tiburon.

By mid 1967 a second therapist was needed, and Mrs. David Almon of San Francisco was hired to run the children's phase of the children's phase of the speech program.

Grace Almon sees an average of 24 children every week; most are pre-school age requiring help with language development. Treatment, usually in groups, runs an average of from six weeks to two years, depending on the severity of the problem.

Part of Mrs. Almon's day is spent working with children at the Marin Development Center, and she also tests the children entering Head Start programs for articulation problems.

"I group the children by similarity of interests, rather than problems," says Mrs. Almon. "They are best described as children relatives can't understand. Often a grandmother will worry about the child's slwo sppech development and insist the parents take him to a doctor. The doctor will send him here and often it will be a child whose problems take care of themselves."

Marin County standards are high, she explains, but a three-year-old child should be able to speak in sentences.

Children whose problems are extremely severe will be channeled to other agencies by Mrs. Almon.

"Easter Seals is the only place a non-public elementary school child with a speech handicap can turn for help," she explains.

In the summer of 1968 a speech therapy day camp for stutterers was started with Helen Daggett serving as administrator and director. In addition to the camp, she holds weekly meetings devoted to parent education and counselling during the six weeks camp is in session.

Another new program began two years ago with the first meeting of a speech therapy group for adults with communication disorders resulting from stroke or trauma.

Mrs. Daggett ran the sessions every Tuesday morning with the aid of volunteers until September of last year when she went into semi-retirement as a half-time member of the Easter Seals staff. At that time another full time speech pathologist, Mrs. Frances Lichtenberg of Tiburon, was hired.

The hiring of Mrs. Lichtenberg now allows the society to expand its services still further. Tomorrow afternoon a second group of sessions for adults with communication disorders will begin, since the morning session has grown too large for the two speech pathologists and four volunteers to handle.

"As we get known we grow," says Mrs. Widdershoven, "and it seems that the number of speech handicapped and their need for service increases at an even faster rate than the cost of living. As the needs grow, so do Easter Seal services, but they take community support in the form of volunteers and money."

The eleventh birthday of the city of Novato will be celebrated Saturday at the Officers Club at Hamilton Air Force Base.

The Novato Chamber of Commerce is inviting area residents to attend the public informal dinner dance. Cocktails will be served at 7 p.m., dinner at 8 and dancing at 9 p.m. Tickets are available at the Chamber of Commerce. Philip Coady is chairman.

The public is also invited to stop by the Novato City Hall from 6 to 7 p.m. on their way to the birthday party for a special preview of the redecoration project recently completed by Mrs. William Carpenter and her committee.

A RARE opportunity for Marin artists to hear and see the work of Richard Yip is being offered Thursday in an informal invitation by the Sausalito Woman's Club.

The famed water colorist and teacher will give a lecture-demonstration at 1:30 p.m. at the clubhouse. Program chairman Mrs. John Alexander suggests that interested painters meet at Zack's restaurant in Sausalito at noon for lunch before going on to the club, where dessert and coffee will be served at 1 p.m.

The artist will demonstrate new ideas and techniques in watercolor painting and exhibit several of his pictures.

He is listed in "Who's Who in American Art," "Who's Who of the West," was elected a life fellow of the International Institute of Arts and Letters and is

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

DEAR HELEN:

I met Marty when he was married to his first wife. Three days after he got his divorce, we married, and I was expecting his baby. His wife gave their three children up for adoption. The court wanted me to take them, but I was still a teenager and couldn't cope with all those kids.

We got along fine for six months. Then I found out he was running around on me. If I said anything, he beat me up, and started blaming me for his losing his first three children.

He left me just after our second daughter was born — to live with a girl who was three months pregnant, by him. That broke up, and when he came home, he was real good for a while, but then he met my cousin, and off he went again.

Next thing I heard he was in jail on a drug charge. My parents put up the bail to get him out — they had to borrow, and they've never got it back. When in jail, Marty promised me the sky if I'd just give him one more chance. The sky fell after a week, when I found him with the doper he got busted with.

Up to then I was faithful, but I decided this was dumb, so now I've found a wonderful guy. My husband knows, but still lives with me and the children. He seems to think this is a good arrangement — each of us doing what we please, but sharing a house. My new boy friend isn't in a position to marry and raise my family — he's still in school and working part time (would you believe this — in the same shop with Marty, and they're friends!)

Maybe the men are happy, but I'm not. And I'm afraid for how it will affect my daughters. Marty says he should never have got his first divorce and lost his kids, but inasmuch as I "stole" a guy once, I deserve what I'm getting now, and why should I kick: He lets me have my boy friend?

Right now the two guys in my life are out playing pool together. Where does that leave me? — NOT THAT MODERN

DEAR NOT:

In the big middle of a mess. I'd suggest you give both men their walking papers and start learning how to walk a straight line yourself. Which means: get a job, concentrate on raising your daughters, and stay away from married men. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

The encyclopaedia explanation of the word "Hoosier" is incorrect, as you stated it in a recent column.

The name derived from Samuel Hoosier, a contractor on the Ohio Falls Canal at Louisville, Kentucky, who gave employment preference to men living in Indiana. His workers were called Hoosier Men, later "Hoosiers." — LITERARY RESEARCHER

Dear L. R.:

Thank you. I'll let the Encyclopaedia Britannica know. — H.

SEEKING MALE FRIENDS

The League of Women Voters of Southern Marin has a new appeal to "active, civic-minded" men in Marin to become "Friends of the Southern Marin League" pledging financial support to the non-partisan group's program. Here new Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick displays his lapel button announcing his new status as a member of the Friends of the League while Mrs. Keith Kaulum of Mill Valley, Southern Marin League president, gives him a copy of "California Voter's Handbook" of facts on local, state and federal government which all new "Friends" will receive. Charter members of the Friends group will join for a luncheon Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Rogers in Sausalito. The members will receive all league local and national publications.

The new head of the board of directors of Marin Child evelopment Center in Tiburon is Mrs. Stanley A. Kane of Greenbrae. The pharmacist's wife has been a member two years, during which she was publicity chairman, membership chairman and first vice-president.

Patricia Kane explains that M.C.D.C. is a psychiatric day care center which provides a multi-disciplinary program for pre-school children who are marginally handicapped; emotionally or neurologically. Its ultimate purpose is to promote and advance the normal course of child growth and development in those children who may not otherwise achieve their potential.

According to Mrs. Kane, studies done by various agencies in the county have shown that a need exists for similar aid to older children who are not ready for the public school system. "We would like to extend our services to these children, but we would need new facilities. We would also like to extend the hours of the center to make it a full-day therapeutic center," says Patricia.

MRS. STANLEY KANE

A member of Volunteers for MCDC, a fund-raising organization, Mrs. Kane has lived in Marin County for 10 years and is the mother of Brian, 10; Candy, 9, and Allan, 7.

Born in Miles City, Mont., Patricia grew up and was graduated from high school in Billings. She was graduated from nursing school in Sacramento and earned her bachelor's and master's degrees at University of California, specializing in psychiatric nursing education.

Patricia was assistant professor of nursing on the School of Nursing faculty at University of California Medical Center in San Francisco before retiring.

"I continued my interest in mental health by serving three years on the Board of Directors of Marin Association for Mental Health, by being chairman of volunteers in the psychiatric unit at Ross Hospital for one year and by serving as first president and co-founder for Volunteers for Marin Child Development Center," relates Patricia.

Federal Drug Administration Lacks Money For Enforcement

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — Ever heard of an $80 million charity case? If not, then you haven't heard of the Food and Drug Administration.

Its total budget last year for policing foods, drugs, medical devices, cosmetics, toys and sundry other products — with industry sales of about $150 billion — was $81.6 million. That's one-twentieth of one per cent of the industry figure.

For the first year of the Toy Safety Act, the agency also received no money to enforce it. That is one reason why nothing was done under the law untilalmost a year after it went into effect.

For several years after getting the authority in 1962 to ban drugs that don't do what they claim to do, the FDA did nothing. It finally turned for advice from the National Academy of Sciences, a group dominated by industry and academic interests.

The perennial shortage of funds — and the inevitable lack of sufficient personnel — puts the agency at the mercy of theindustries it is suppoed to monitor in behalf of the public. The job of policing — and even some needed research — is left up to the industries involved.

The agency's latest embarrassment is pitiful. It wants very much to respond to consumer demands for more nutritional information on food labels, but it doesn't have any funds for the research necessary to determine the best course to follow.

So the food industry has jumped in with its own proposal for determining what the public wants. It has offered to do research worth about $100,000 through its "Consumer Research Institute." The FDA has accepted.

When consumer leaders objected to the possibility of a biased result, the Institute agreed to let them take part. Meanwhile, the FDA said it would consider the results only partially in making its final decision.

What the FDA wants to do is to find the most suitable way to have nutritional information put on food labels. Such information has been put on dog food labels for many years.

The FDA has proposed three alternatives:

Plan One would disclose percentages of recommended minimum daily amounts of protein, vitamins, minerals and other nutrients in an 8-ounce serving.

Plan Two would list the number of grams (or other unit of measure) of each nutrient in the same size serving.

Plan Three would simply rate a serving as "good," "very good," etc., as to its quantity of each nutrient.

Tracy Wook, UPI reporter, interviews William T. Bagley, assembleyman from Marin County

What's going on in Sacramento?

It's a new legislature facing new problems and issues which will have a direct effect upon you and your family. Keeping informed is critical to your best interests.

How the I-J lifts the lid of the state Capitol to keep you informed of legislation

You have double representation in Sacramento. First, politically, through your assemblyman and senators. Second, through the large and competent news bureau of United Press International which reports for the I-J and hence for you. At least seven top political reporters sit through legislative sessions, question the legislators, examine the issues and keep you "on top" of legislation and coming events.

As George Skelton, UPI bureau manager, states, "Despite myth, most stories are not developed in dimly lit bars. The good ones, more often than not, are produced by sitting patiently through boring committee hearings or sifting through dull reports, reading small type. This is the unglamorous part of the job, but the one which often results in a big story in your evening newspaper." Comment: read the I-J and be well-represented. Our first job is to keep you informed.

MUSIC REVIEWS

Ozawa's Dazzling Brahms No. 1

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

A capacity-plus audience, despite the bad weather, and the tumultuous ovation accorded the San Francisco Orchestra Saturday night at Terra Linda High School gymnasium were measures of the hunger in Marin for great symphonic music.

Of course, much of the credit for the huge success of the first concert of the four in the second annual Marin series goes to the magic wrought by maestro Seiji Ozawa, especially with the Brahms First Symphony.

Every element showed the result of molding by a strong and original musical intelligence. His conducting of this Olympian work from memory was evidence of how completely he has made each note his own, and the result was a masterpiece of interpretation.

For the most part it was a suave, unhurried approach until the many violent contrasts of pace and dynamics of the fourth movement called on the fiery intensity for which Ozawa is noted.

Brass sound was less than perfect in the opening Haydn Symphony No. 1 but improved greatly in the Brahms. The solo horn call in the fourth movement, that had been criticized in the first San Francisco performance of this program, came through beautifully. There were passages of exquisite beauty in the woodwinds, too.

Had it not been for some loss of resonance because of the inadequate acoustics of a gymnasium, the breath-taking sonority of that fourth movement alone could have been the greatest ever in my experience. Better illustrated in this work than in anything I have heard Ozawa conduct was what he has been able to accomplish with the low strings in brining them up to full partnership with the lustrous violins.

Though all the works performed were first compositions of their kind for the composers, the Brahms was a mature work, whereas the Haydn that opened the concert and the succeeding Prokofieff Piano Concerto No. 1 were evidently youth ful endeavors.

Granted the concerto is a show piece for sensational pianism, there is a big demand for this kind of exhibitionism, and one must expect a certain amount of catering to public love of being dazzled. An amazing fact is that 12 virtuoso pianists have been engaged as soloists during this San Francisco Symphony season, with one appearing twice!.

John Browning could hardly have been surpassed as soloist in the Prokofieff concerto, for he is a phenomenal technician, as was the composer himself. The rather metallic timbre of the piano used was emphasized in this toccata-like work that has so many percussive passages, but Browning made the runs and cadenzas as smooth as streamers of satin ribbon, and he produced a lyrical tone, too.

Far from being uninvolved in a less than challenging test of his skill, he showed total concentration, to the extent of marking rhythmic accents with his mouth in a manner somewhat similar to the way in which Glen Gould sings along with his playing.

With the orchestra reduced mostly to strings to achieve proportion more comparable to the true classical symphony in Haydn's time, that composer's symphony No. 1 was all elegance, serenity and grace — in great contrast to the thunder of, the piano concerto.

The second program in the Marin series of the San Francisco symphony concerts is scheduled for Feb. 6 at the same time and place.

Wolff Once Again Produces Glowing Choral Concert Works

No matter how much personnel in the College of Marin's collegiate and community choruses changes from year to year, Dr. S. Drummond Wolff manages to produce a winning combination when they are joined for one or two big concerts a year.

Word of this must have spread, for last night people were standing six to eight deep outside the Fine Arts Theater to hear the nearly 200-voice chorus sing Brahms's ''A German Requiem'' and "Jubilate Deo" by Johan Helmich Roman, the Swedish contemporary of Handel.

Contributing much to the magnitude of the sonority was an orchestra of 23 musicians — including some of the top ones in Marin — for the Jubilate, with three trombones added for the Requiem. Two soloists, soprano Gwen Curatilo and baritone Daniel Elias, added highlights.

The Requiem with its intricate polyphonic writing, some in fugal form, was an ambitious undertaking that tested the ability of the singers to the limit, especially in the ''All Flesh Is as Grass," a powerful chorus in triple rhythm that is one of the greatest choruses written since Beethoven.

It is in climaxes of this kind that Wolff, a master of dramatic contrasts, excels, and the effect was electrifying, as it was again in the next to last chorus, "For the Trumpet Shall Sound."

For some reason, however, perhaps the sheer number of voices and instruments involved, the finespun pianissimos Wolff often produces were rarely achieved.

An exceptionally clear soprano section, though much smaller than the altos, sang in such unison that its dominance occasionally detracted from the balance. At times male voices were not up to par, as in the beginning of the "Behold All Flesh Is as Grass." Technical niceties, such as sharp attacks and releases, were well taken care of.

Since one of Miss Curatilo's assets is her ability to communicate feeling, one of the most moving moments in the requiem was her singing of the solo "Ye Now Are Sorrowful," inspired by the death of Brahms's mother. Elias, the other soloist, had a rich tonal quality but too much vibrato for my taste, and intonation was not always secure.

The "Jubilate Deo," which did indeed show Handel's influence, was interesting largely because Wolff discovered it in Sweden last year and transcribed, edited and orchestrated it for its premiere performance outside Sweden in last night's performance. One of its attractions was a pleasing duet sung by Miss Curatilo and Elias.

While the orchestra played an important musical role in both works, not just one of accompaniment, it seemed a little too prominent because of its location at the front of the stage on almost the same level as the chorus. On several occasions trumpets were piercing.

One of the most beautiful instrumental passages was the singing of the cellos and violas in the opening chorus of the requiem.

ART REVIEW

Traditional Art Dominates Show

By MARY LOU STRIBLING

The Marin Society of Artists' new members show is an annual event designed to introduce the work of members who have joined the organization during the past year. About 53 artists are represented in the exhibit on view through the end of the month at the Frances Young Gallery, Ross.

The walls are understandably overcrowded, making it difficult to fully appreciate the merits of individual offerings, and since the show is nonjuried, it would be unfair to evaluate it from the standpoint of professional competence. However, a few general observations may be significant.

Although there is a small number of abstractions and geometric compositions, representational art is clearly in the majority. For the most part, styles and materials follow traditional lines and there is little evidence of technical experimentation. Subject matter might be described as "safe," meaning that controversial or shocking material has been either deliberately or coincidentally avoided, and is focused primarily upon perennially popular floral arrangements, still lifes, figure studies, landscapes, and seascapes.

It might be noted here that work which fits within this general framework has also proved to be most "rentable," indicating that the art preferences of the public at large are inclined to remain conservative.

Among paintings I found personally appealing were the primitive landscapes by Girldine Fallon Merrill. Their naivete, crisp, lively business, and profusion of storytelling details have the charming nostalgia of Currier and Ives prints. John C. Pogue achieves a remarkable luminosity and sensuous wetness in "The Breaking Wave." Working with flat planes of color and geometric patterns, Gilbert Guerin creates interesting illusional effects in "Corporate Society."

The few graphics in the show are greatly overwhelmed by the more aggressive paintings around them, though "Suspension," a woodcut in tranquil blues, by Phyllis Taplitz, demonstrates the compelling strength of sheer simplicity.

Sculptors are evidently becoming a vanishing breed. A headless and armless pregnant nude by Anne Wienholt, is the only piece of sculpture on display. And where have all the craftsmen gone? It seems incredible that a community teeming with devotees of such arts as weaving, pottery, mosaics, jewelry, stained glass, stitchery, and macrame, could be represented by a skimpy display of four rings and two pots.

Free Trash Pickup Slated In Sausalito

Sausalito's free trash pickup for residents is this week not next week, City Clerk Miriam Ansell reported. Mrs. Ansell said city employees have told residents the pick-up, one of three held each year, would start Jan. 25.

She said residents are asked to place the trash at the curb in front of their homes and it will be collected on their regular garbage day.

By JEFF GREER

"Big Brother watching you" may be a bad thing, but neighbors watching each other's houses can be a good thing, Marin County police chiefs agree.

And, the chiefs say, an alert resident can be a special aid when he reports anything suspicious to police. That's the best way to halt the burglaries that are Marin's worst single crime category, the chiefs have told the Independent-Journal.

Novato Chief Allen V. Klemme told a chamber of commerce luncheon last week that he's happy with his department's public image, but he wishes more residents would call the department whenever they see anything suspicious.

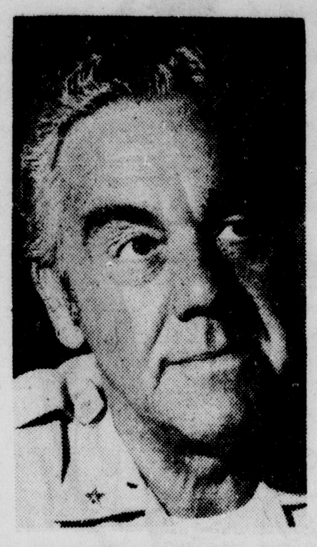
"Not one neighbor has called to report a suspicious circumstance" since he took the chief's job, Klemme told the businessman.

The trouble is not confined only to Novato. Klemme told the I-J that when he was with another Bay Area police force, he and officers prowled a three-block area in unmarked cars for a month, around the clock.

Although the neighborhood had been racked by burglaries, not one resident called about the unfamiliar vehicles, Klemme recalled.

The chief said he thinks there are two reasons why few residents call police. They don't think what they see or hear is important until it's too late, or they don't want to "get involved."

"Some neighbors who have called don't want to give their names, or get uptight over giving the police their age,'' Klemme explained.



RAYMOND BUCHIGNANI

"Communication is a big word; you know what I mean,'' Klemme said. "We'd like citizens to call, even when they feel there is nothing to the call.

"We don't mind making 39 dry runs" to check unfounded suspicions "just to hit paydirt on the 40th," he stressed. Klemme said even jotting down the license number of an unfamiliar, suspicious acting car in the neighborhood may help solve a crime.

Ross Police Chief John F. Harris supplied an example. He said a citizen reported suspicions of an unfamiliar car two weeks ago. The result: Recovery of a car stolen in San Francisco before its owner even knew it was missing.

Harris serves the second smallest municipality in Marin. He said some of its citizens show "apathy" but most supply tips helpful to police.

Sausalito Police Chief James D. Wright says his city's residents have given him "excellent cooperation over the past two years," partly as a result of several seminars with civic organizations.

Like the rest of Marin, Sausalito has the most trouble with daylight burglars in homes isolated from neighbors and far back from the streets. Police make frequent checks of any home whose occupants report plans to be absent on trips, Wright said.

Wright said some Bridgeway businessmen are reluctant to testify against panhandlers or shoplifters because they cannot spare time away from their shops.

San Anselmo Chief Raymond Buchignani branded burglary "the most irritating of all" the crimes his men must fight. He said the computerized statewide police communications network has helped recover burglars' loot, but that few thieves get caught in the act.

Buchignani doubted that Marin County has any professional burglary rings. He said most of the thieves are young narcotics addicts who support their habits by selling their stolen goods on San Francisco street corners "at 10 cents on the dollar" or peddle them to professional fences outside Marin.

The San Anselmo official said his men always check the neighborhood after each burglary. They have often discovered that nearby residents could have supplied clues that would have been vital at the time, but were of little use later.

San Rafael Chief Joseph J. Brusatori said his department through what it calls its "good neighbor policy," urges anyone going on a trip to alert police and then ask neighbors to keep an eye on the unoccupied home.

"Many of the calls turn out not to be crimes," Brusatori admitted. He cited the latest instance: A youth seen testing a house for unlocked windows was found to be a relative of the homeowner rather than a burglar.

"But not every burglar alarm that goes off is a crime, either," Brusatori noted. "Even if it's only every tenth call to the police that catches a burglar, it's well worth it."

SIDNEY STINSON

Undersheriff Sidney Stinson said deputies sometimes are frustrated by neighbors' apathy. One case a few years ago involved a moving van which pulled up in broad daylight outside a vacationing family's home in Southern Marin. A crew emptied the house of its contents. Neighbors who knew the family was on a trip watched but did not call police. The bystanders later told deputies they "didn't want to get involved," Stinson recalled.

Stinson pleaded for calls, even if the witnesses desired to remain anonymous. "We're not going to get them involved if they don't want to," he declared.

Another side of the coin is reported by a Larkspur housewife who did call the police when she saw strangers at a neighbors' house. Three burglers were arrested.

The woman spent most of three weeks in courtroom appearances. She said she felt, after it was over, that the convicted burglars might mark her house for avisit after they serve their sentences.

Naturalist Says Cove Plan Safe

A 102-unit apartment project on Strawberry Cove, contrary to fears by opponents of the project, will not affect wildlife in the cove.

This was the prediction Saturday of Elizabeth Terwilliger of Mill Valley, a naturalist invited by the Save Strawberry Cove Committee to its rally to protest the project.

Mrs. Terwilliger, addressing about 75 persons at the rally at the site of the proposed project, noted that the apartments will be entirely on existing dry land, thus will not disturb any plant life on which the wildlife depends for food. She said that the only proposed intrusion on the bay was a boardwalk for public use, and that the Greenbrae boardwalk had not disturbed wildlife.

Mrs. Terwilliger also noted that shorebirds feed peacefully right beside the runway at Hamilton Air Force Base, thus the far quieter apartments certainly would not disturb the wildlife.

The rally almost got off to a rocky start when the developer, Paul J. Broman of Peacock Gap, objected that the committee had planned the affair on the 6.5-acre parcel without even asking permission for its use. A deputy sheriff was on the scene, but a confrontation was avoided when the committee asked for, and got, permission to use the parcel for the rally.

Baby Recovers After Plunge

A 14-month-old San Rafael girl who had fallen 25 feet to a concrete driveway Friday was released from Marin General Hospital yesterday after treatment for head injuries.

Tabatha Lee Roberson, who lives with her mother at 260 Canal Street, apparently jumped at 11 p.m. from the arms of Dwaine D. Lange as he tried to open the front door of the home, police said.

Police said a blanket in which the infant was wrapped softened the fall and may have saved her life.

Sausalitan Jailed For Forgery; 'Enjoyed Every Minute Of It'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A pretty young blonde from Sausalito claims to have forged more than $50,000 worth of checks in four months and "enjoyed every minute" of it.

Janice Long, 20, jailed in San Francisco for forging checks at various Bank of America branches, said yesterday, "I know I'm going to have to pay for what I've done. But I enjoyed every minute. God, I couldn't stand being a housewife with 10 kids doing the suburb bit."

Miss Long said she had an accomplice who supplied her with checks punched with a victim's name and information from confidential bank files, including a copy of the signature.

She said she then practiced the signatures, visited several banks in a day and headed back to her $385-a-month hillside apartment in Sausalito.

Her operation ended when she aroused suspicions by attempting to cash a check of a woman in her 70s. The account had been with the bank since 1956, when Miss Long was 6.

In an interview with a reporter, she said she had quit school after 11th grade, but soon landed in a juvenile home for forging payroll checks.

She married at 18, but has been separated from her husband for almost two years.

"I just didn't care for him," she said. "He was a pimp. But I don't like working as a prostitute, mainly because there's no money in it. Too much hard work for the return," Miss Long said.

She said she was a hairstylist and wig maker, and had thought about going straight when she came to the Bay Area nine months ago. "But they wanted to pay me 70 bucks a week. No thanks."

Daughter In Search For Her Mother

The daughter of a missing 73-year-old Ross woman followed a small dog through the foggy hills near Phoenix Lake today hoping the animal would lead her to her mother.

Ross Police Chief John F. Harris said Margaret L. Jones of 22 Bridge Road went looking with the dog after the small German Shepherd last seen with Evelyn H. Jones, wandered home at 8 a.m. today. The elder Mrs. Jones disappeared Thursday.

Police said the dog was seen walking down Lagunitas Road from the direction of Phoenix Lake.

Police continued to search today between the town and the lake, Harris said, and the Sheriff's Marine Patrol was to drag Phoenix Lake this afternoon.

The chief said the Marin Municipal Water District has promised four or five men for the search and Hamilton Air Force Base is trying to recruit volunteer searchers.

Fog has prevented an aerial search of the area, the chief said.

When last seen, Mrs. Jones was wearing an orange sweater, blue skirt and tennis shoes. Police described her as 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighing 145 pounds and wearing glasses.

She was out for a walk when she disappeared, police said.

Policy Airing Due At Reed Board Meeting

The Reed School District board will meet tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Bel Aire School with representatives of the district's Certified Employees Council to discuss district personnel policies.

Interim Supt. Irwin Karp said the personnel matters include board policies on tenure, evaluation of teachers, probationary status and teacher assignment within the district. The meeting will be open to the public.

The board also will consider an extension of a contract with the county schools office for an administrative assistant for Karp. A previous contract, under which Stanley H. Friese served as interim superintendent for the district, expired Dec. 31.

Burglars Hit 3 Petaluma Firms

Petaluma Estates Mobile Home Park, 901 North McDowell Boulevard, reported two heaters valued at $160 were stolen from an office trailer. Huntington Brothers, a construction firm at the same site, said a two-way radio valued at $250 was stolen.

Tools valued at $950 were reported stolen from a workshop at Petaluma Redi-Mix Cement Co., Hopper and Jefferson streets

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

In Tourney Play, Overtricks Are Heart And Soul Of Play

Swindles are more important in tournaments than at rubber bridge. It isn't necessary to flimflam the opponents out of an overtrick at rubber bridge; the other players would resent the waste of time. But overtricks are the heart and soul of tournament play, and many an expert has won a championship by hornswoggling his opponents out of a 30-point overtrick when the contract was never in doubt. Today's hand, played by Los Angeles expert Edwin Kantar, is typical.

THREE NO-TRUMP

Imagine that you are playing the South hand at three no-trump in a tournament. Your object is to win as many tricks as possible. The opening lead gives you a club trick, and you are sure of four spades, four diamonds and a heart for a total of 10 tricks. How should you try for an 11th trick?

If you try a routine play in clubs, West will win the switch to hearts. Then you will have to take your 10 tricks while the taking is good.

See if you can work out a plausible swindle before you read on. Someday you may need a stunt of this kind to make your contract.

BEGINS EARLY

Kantar saw that his main chance for an 11th trick was in clubs. He also saw that a routine play in that suit would not work. He there fore appealed to West's normal greed.

Kantar won the first trick with the king of clubs! And then, at the second trick, Kantar calmly led the eight of clubs!

West looked at this card suspiciously. What was declarer doing? But it seemed clear that East had the ten and jack of clubs since South had used the king of clubs to beat the nine at the first trick.

FOUR EARLY TRICKS

Perhaps South wanted to give up four early tricks in the hope of arriving at a squeeze position. Or perhaps South had merely gone out of his mind. It happens now and then in bridge tournaments.

At any rate, West played low on South's eight of clubs, and Kantar had his 11th trick then and there. You may be sure he ran off the rest of his tricks without trying any further fancy stunts.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 8 4 3
♥ - J 7 5
♦ - 9 4
♣ - A Q 7 5 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Since youhave only seven points in high cards, the combined count can be only 25 points at most. This is very unlikely to produce a game, and there is no reason to disturb the part-score contract of 1 no-trump.

WEE PALS

ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Monday, Jan. 18, the 18th day of 1971.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Venus. The evening star is Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Capricorn.

American orator Daniel Webster was born Jan. 18, 1972.

On this day in history:

In 1943 Moscow announced the Nazi siege of Leningrad had been lifted. It had started in the autumn of 1941.

In 1966 the daughter of the late Indian Prime Minister Nehru, Indira Gandhi, was named the new prime minister of that country.

In 1968 the United States and Russia agreed on a draft of a nuclear non-proliferation treaty.

New Park-Rec Members Selected

The Novato City Council has appointed two new members to the city parks and recreation commission to succeed two commissioners who resigned.

Walter W. Vater of 719 Sun Lane was appointed to a one-year term, succeeding Faris Morse, and Donald A. Greenhalgh of 5458 Cambridge Street to a two-year term, succeeding Jack Holsclaw.

PUMPING STATION REVISIONS
DECEMBER, 1970
F.C.Z. #7 - 71-01

MARIN COUNTY FLOOD CONTROL AND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT
SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS INVITING SEALED PROPOSALS OR BIDS

Sealed Proposals will be received by, and shall be filed with, the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Marin, State of California, Room 15, Marin County Civic Center, San Rafael, California, until 2:00 P.M., February 3, 1971, for:

The installation for a ten horsepower pumping unit, relocation and modification of a control system, and related work in Santa Venetia, Marin County, California.

The work shall be done in accordance with official plans and specifications prepared in reference thereto which may be seen at the office of the Department of Public Works, County of Marin. Request for forms or information shall be addressed to the Department of Public Works, County of Marin, Civic Center, San Rafael, California.

Proposals shall be filed with George H. Gnoss, Clerk of the Board of Supervisors, Civic Center, San Rafael, California, at the room, time, and date specified above.

Proposals will be opened and read at 2:00 P.M., in Room No. 332, Marin County Civic Center, on the day specified above.

The award of the contract, if it be awarded, will be to the lowest responsible bidder whose proposal complies with all specified requirements. The award, if made, will be made within thirty (30) days after the opening of the proposals.

The Board of Supervisors of the Marin County Flood Control and Water Conservation District has made a determination of the prevailing rate of hourly wages applicable to the work to be performed. Copies of this determination are on file in the office of the County Clerk, Civic Center, Room 315, San Rafael, California, and are available to any interested party upon request.

Copies may be obtained from the Department of Public Works, Room 304, Civic Center.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Doctors Were Mystified When X-Ray Showed Strange Object

When an X-ray of the abdomen or chest is taken, the clothing is removed because metallic objects, such as buttons, coins, buckles or pins, show up on the films. Pills or tablets in the stomach or intestine might do the same. These objects usually are recognized by the roentgenologist, but occasionally their appearance and location confuse the diagnosis.

A 28-YEAR-OLD man developed back pain during a series of daily tennis matches. It was accompanied by "drawing feelings" in the left leg. An X-ray of the spine was essentially normal but a ½-inch oval shadow was seen within the kidney area. The man denied taking any medication and never had renal colic or kidney trouble.

When the X-ray was repeated a week later, the oval shadow appeared to be smaller and had moved to the right. The man was asked again about medicines and finally admitted taking a vitamin tablet at breakfast. It was not mentioned earlier because he did not consider vitamins as medication. He stopped taking the pill and a subsequent X-ray was clear. Apparently, the shadows represented vitamin tablets, each in a different stage of absorption in the stomach.

DR. JOSEPH M. Benforado of Madison, Wis., decided to experiment and X-rayed the abdomen after various medications were swallowed. A large number could be seen via the X-ray.

A 2½-year-old child was admitted to Tampa General Hospital because of bloody urine. X-ray showed that an opaque foreign body had pierced through the small intestine and was embedded in the right kidney. An operation was done and the foreign body proved to be a bobby pin that the child had swallowed. It was removed, and the urine was clear within 24 hours.

The authors searched the medical literature, and of seven reports of foreign bodies in the kidneys of children, six were bobby or hair pins. Most of these objects pass through the intestines without causing trouble, but exceptions occur.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

NEURITIC PAIN

REPLY

Methinks you have overlooked the cause. All the vitamins in the world will not help neuritis due to infection rather than vitamin deficiency. Too often, "neuritis" is a convenient catchall for any ill-defined pain that cannot be diagnosed accurately. True neuritis follows the exact distribution of the affected nerve.

BIOPSY EXPLAINED

W. K. writes: What is a biopsy and is it a painful procedure?

REPLY

A biopsy is the removal of a piece of tissue that is sent to the laboratory for microscopic study. In most instances the material is obtained by surgical incision or via a special needle (needle biopsy). An anesthetic is given to make it painless.

DRY SKIN AND HAIR

REPLY

The commonest cause of this combination of symptoms is a deficiency of thyroid secretion. Age may do the same, in that the hair tends to thin and the skin may get dry as the person grows older.

Indian Maiden's Skirt Too Long?

It's up to the women of Florida.

Secretary of State Richard Stone, whose various duties include being official custodian of the state seal, recently found the original Florida seal and he said the Indian girl on it definitely is clad in a miniskirt.

That seal was adopted more than a century ago —nobody recalls exactly when — and sometime since then, her skirt got longer.

"We'd like to hear from the women of Florida," Stone said. "my preference is definitely the mini, without any question, but it's up to the women."

Injuries Minor In 2-Car Crash

An 18-year-old Mill Valley man received minor injuries in a two-car accident at 7:25 p.m. Saturday on Highway 101 at the Strawberry overpass, California Highway Patrol reported yesterday.

Martin Matthew Nolan of 39 B Valley Road, was treated for multiple facial scrapes and cuts at Marin General Hospital, according to hospital officials.

Janet Marie Moulthrup, 16, of 133 Tamal Vista Drive, San Rafael, a passenger in the Nolan car, was examined and released with no apparent injuries, according to hospital officials.

Nolan was northbound when his car collided with another northbound car driven by Enrique Carlos Bocedi, 35, of San Francisco, CHP reported.

Open House For Barbershoppers

An "open house" audition for people who like to sing together will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Elks Club Carriage House in San Rafael by the Marin Chapter of the Society for Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

The barbershoppers are seeking singers for quartets and for their barbershop chorus, which president Thomas Knight hopes to expand from 40 to 100 voices.

No music reading ability is needed, Knight said.

The chorus meets each Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Elks Club for a two and one-half hour session with Ned Hardin, music instructor at Balboa High School in San Francisco, as director.

Behr Will Be Speaker To Jaycees

State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-Mill Valley, will speak at the annual distinguished service award meeting of the Novato Jaycees at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Cloud Five restaurant, Novato.

The dinner will be part of Jaycee Week in Novato which will also include a community prayer breakfast and a districtwide Jaycee meeting, reported president Robert Madgett.

The Jaycees' distinguished service award will be presented to the person chosen as the community's outstanding young man, and the winner will be entered in state competition.

The community prayer breakfast, first of its type in Novato, a' non-demoninational event, will be held at Hamilton Air Force Base at 7:30 a.m. next Saturday.

The district meeting, covering the area from Mill Valley to Willits, will be at 6 p.m. next Saturday at the Novato Community House.

Security System To Be Studied

The Novato Unified School District board will consider installing an electronic security system to prevent vandalism and thefts at school offices at 8 p.m. today at Novato High School lecture hall.

The board also is scheduled to receive a report on development of an ecology program.

Exotic Plans For Transit: Cryogenics

NEW YORK (UPI)—Various cities and the Federal Department of Transportation are working on far out new methods of rapid transit.

Los Angeles and the Federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration (FUMTA) are designing a $50 million, 16.3 mile link between the city's internatonal airport and the San Fernando Valley by means of an elevated air cushion vehicle railway moving at 150 miles an hour.

And for the new city of Columbia, Md., being built by Rouse Co., the Bendix Corp. of Detroit and FUMTA plan an automatic system with unmanned cars running on guideways controlled by electronic headway sensors.

Dr. Paul L. Richards, a University of California physicist, has proposed a rapid transit system employing cryogenic magnets enabling cars to move at 300 mph through the air about one-foot above the track. He said the Japanese National Railway hopes to develop such a system by 1980. The cars would move on ordinary wheels at speeds of up to 50 mph. Then the magnets would take over and lift them off the track. At cryogenic temperatures near absolute zero (460 below zero F.) the magnets would be superconductive and free of all electrical interference. The principle by which like poles of two magnets repel each other would create the suspension force.

In a recent article in Aerospace magazine, FUMTA Administrator Carlos Villarreal said the nation should spend $28 to $34 billion on new and rebuilt rapid transit systems over the next 15 years. But Villarreal's department told United Press International it does not have the answer to perhaps the most important question about rapid transit —how can the public be persuaded to return to public transportation and give up riding in private cars for everyday work?

"You can rest assured we're not goingto spend millions on a system without proof it's needed, though," a spokesman said. "And we're not really trying to replace the automobile."

Thus, proposals for Federal spending on urban rapid transit are running into some of the problems facing the supersonic air transport program. How do you determine the real need for it and whether the public will accept it before you build it? Villarreal's spokesman said that feasibility studies for far out rapid transit schemes fortunately need not be expensive in a big way. For example, only $350,000 has been allotted for feasibility studies for the Los Angeles air cushion railway.

But Grumman Corp. of Bethpage, N.Y. has a $3 million contract to design the prototype air cushion vehicle.

Garrett Airesearch of Torrance, Calif., has a $770,000 contract to design and build a linear induction motor for air cushion trains and wheeled trains capable of speeds up to 300 mph.

Transportation Secretary Volpe calls this "the most exciting new development in mass transport."

Social Studies To Be Viewed By Tam Board

The Tamalpais High School District board, meeting today at 7:30 p.m. at Redwood High School, will hear reports dealing with new social studies programs and "extra service" pay for district employees.

The social studies report, to be presented by the district's social studies department, will outline new trends which are changing traditional social studies programs.

The "extra service" compensation report outlines defines what are expected duties and what are extra duties for district employees.

Gas Tax Money Is Handed Out

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — More than $211,000 in motor vehicle license fees have been distributed to Marin and an additional $23,800 went to Southern Sonoma, state Controller Houston I. Flournoy has announced.

The funds were distributed as follows: Marin County, $111,316; Belvedere, $1,961; Corte Madera, $6,224; Cotati, $1,131; Fairfax, $5,638; Larkspur, $6,228; Mill Valley, $9,299; Novato, $21,985; Petaluma, $17,917; Rohnert Park, $4,752; Ross, $2,088; San Anselmo, $9,921; San Rafael, $27,551; Sausalito, $5,054; and Tiburon, $4,664.

The distribution covered the six month period which ended Nov. 30.

Problems On Growth Will Be Discussed

A community forum on problems caused by rapid growth will be held in Petaluma on Feb. 3 at 7:45 p.m. at Kenilworth Junior High School.

Representatives of the city council, Petaluma School District and Old Adobe School District will make short presentations on plans to cope with growth problems and will be available for questioning.

Oil Industry Plans Spill Compensation

PITTSBURGH — (BW) — Gulf Oil Corp. has announced a voluntary oil industry compensation assurance of up to $30 million per incident for oil spill damage claims.

The agreement, signed recently in New York by petroleum companies representing 80 per cent of the world's waterborne oil shipments, expands the scope of a 1969 pact among 80 per cent of the world's tanker owners providing $10 million in reimbursement to governments for oil spill clean up costs.

As a participant, Gulf's share of the new compensation fund, based on its percentage of waterborne oil shipments, is a maximum of about $1.23 million per incident.

"Speaking for my company, we believe the new agreement is one of the most significant and far-reaching environmental protection measures yet devised for the movement of oil by water on a worldwide basis," P. B. Binsted, president, Gulf Oil Co. — Transportation, declared.

"No Gulf tanker is permitted to discharge oil or oily wastes at sea — only into shore facilities where it can be treated properly. We recently developed, and are testing under voyage conditions, the 'skimcleen' technique for cleaning cargo tanks to reduce the danger of explosions.

"Our tankers, some of which are among the largest in the world, are equipped with the most modern navigation and safety systems. We are engaged in research efforts aimed at reducing further the possibility of spills and improving removal methods if they do occur.

"Nevertheless, we recognize our share of the responsibility for helping to insure prompt and effective action in the event of accidental spills and to recompense those who may have sustained damages as a result."

Binsted pointed out that under the new agreement, Contract Regarding an Interim Supplement to Tanker Liability for oil pollution (CRISTAL), Gulf and the other participating petroleum companies pledged to compensate claimants for oil spill damages beyond the liability of tanker owners — up to a total of $30 million per incident.

He noted that the 1969 arrangement among tanker owners, Tanker Owners Voluntary Agreement Concerning Liability for Oil Pollution (TOVALOP), $10 million per incident has been made available to governments to reimburse costs for oil spill clean up expenditures.

In addition to agreeing to the new claimants compensation arrangement, Binsted explained, the participating companies established the Institute for Marine Pollution compensation to administer the CRISTAL funds.

"We anticipate that, eventually, there will be international conventions dealing with tanker owner liability for oil spills and a supplementary fund supported by cargo interests," Binsted added.

Scientists In Agonizing Reappraisal

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UPI)—There is growing evidence that the world of science is taking a hard look at itself and its role in society.

"Some of it comes from the pressure of events that have gone ill," says Dr. David Rose, a professor of nuclear engineering.

For years, with the explosion of knowledge and technology, science and engineering went along doing their things with little thought of the long range consequences.

Bigger and better power generating facilities were built, manufacturing plants of every size and description prolferated across the land, larger and larger quantities of fertilizer and pesticides were thrown into farm operations, more and bigger cars were produced and put onto highways, and the highways were expanded and spread in a growing network to take care of the pressure of increased traffic.

Then more and more people began to notice that the air was no longer fit to breathe in some places, the water was becoming dirtier and dirtier, pollution of every sort was threatening wildlife and finally all life on the planet.

"It has always been easy to alter something," says Rose, who is something of a history buff along with his scientific endeavors. "But it's much harder to understand what these alterations mean."

And that's where science finds itself changing —taking a look at the changes that are proposed, the projects that are planned, to see if the project really is worth the effort and what it will mean, not merely in the accomplishment of a narrow goal but in a wider sense of total environmental effect.

Evidence of the change in viewpoint is a $1.5 million grant from the National Science Foundation in use here since last summer, for a year's research in a number of environmental areas, including a study of man's life style itself, and posing the question of whether man's institutions can be changed to meet the social as well as the technological needs of the people in an industrial society.

Guest Speaker

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, will be guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Marin County Council of Mayors and Councilmen at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 27 in the Blue Rock Inn, Larkspur.

Doctors Report Way That Relieves Itching, Pain Of Swollen Hemorrhoidal Tissues

First Applications Give Prompt, Temporary Relief in Many Cases

There's a most effective medication that in many cases gives prompt relief for hours from such hemorrhoidal discomfort and actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by the inflammation. The answer is doctor-tested Preparation H®.

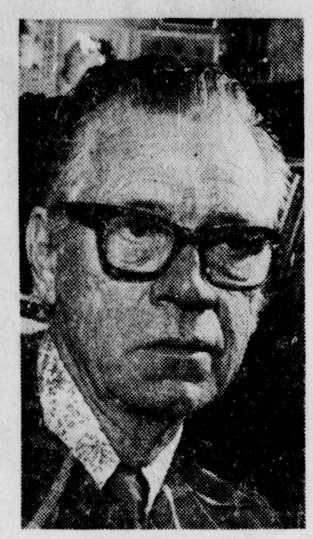
There's no other hemorrhoidal formula like Preparation H and it needs no prescription. Ointment or suppositories.

TEACHER OF WEEK

Gordon Lowe Beats The Band

"Y' wanna be there when the band starts playin' ... "

And when the band starts playing at Terra Linda High School, Gordon E. Lowe will be there — whether it's the 100-piece symphonic band (which also is the marching band during football season), the 50-piece freshman concert band, or the 20-piece stage band. He directs them all.



GORDON E. LOWE
Teacher of the week

He also directs the Terra Linda High School Orchestra, another 50-piece aggregation. And all are consistent winners in high school musical competitions. In fact, in the 10 years he's been music director at Terra Linda High, Lowe has entered his musicians in nine Northern California High School Music Festivals and captured first prizes in eight of them.

Obviously, Gordon E. Lowe is a man who likes what he's doing. Music and music teaching have been his life, ever since as a small boy in Colorado he traded a coaster wagon for a trumpet. "By the sixth grade, I knew I wanted to teach music," he once said.

He played trumpet in a traveling tent show during summer vacations while in high school, majored in music at Western State Teachers College in Gunnison, Colo., and entered teaching at Delta, Colo. For two years during World War II, he taught at the Navy School of Music in Washington, then went to University of Southern California to complete work on a master's degree, after which he became music teacher at Tulare High School. He stayed at Tulare until moving to Terra Linda.

Lowe enforces strict discipline among his high school musicians, and wins their respect and often their devotion by doing so. And they, in turn, win respect, praise and even devotion of parents and other Trojan boosters with their performances on stage and football gridiron.

Meeting Off

The regular meeting of the Marin County Housing Authority, scheduled for Wednesday, has been cancelled, according to Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director of the authority. He said the next regular meeting will be Feb. 2.

Terminal Discussion Scheduled

Site for a permanent ferry terminal in Sausalito will be discussed at a joint meeting of the Sausalito City Council and the transportation committee of the Golden Gate Bridge District at 8 p.m. tomorrow in city hall.

The planners acted on the Recommendation of Sausalito planning director H. Eric Borgwardt, who opposes the Litho Street location.

In the conditional use permit which the city council granted to the bridge district in July to permit operation of a ferry in Sausalito, the council asked for a permanent terminal located in North Sausalito and an additional downtown whistle stop.

The bridge district, which originally agreed to both conditions imposed by the city, now says the north terminal and downtown stop are not feasible.

Plans for the central facilities include a 300-car underground parking garage, a park area and tourist-oriented businesses.

Pollak Exhibit Set To Open In San Francisco

A two-month exhibition of the world famous color etchings and paintings by the late Max Pollak of Sausalito will open Saturday in the Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco.

Friedl Pollak, his widow, said it would be the largest display of the Czech-born artist's works ever assembled. Many of the etchings are from museum collections; others have been loaned from private collections. The exhibition will include one full room of the etchings, and the museum's sculpture gallery will be turned over to a display of his oils, from private collections and from Mrs. Pollak's own collection.

PRAISE FROM HIS BOSS

Reinecke Looking Ahead To '74

By GEORGE SKELTON

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke plans to run for governor in 1974 and hopes to have the support of Gov. Ronald Reagan — a man whose philosophy he agrees with completely.

Reagan says that's too far ahead to firm up pre-primary political alliances, but he speaks in laudatory terms of his lieutenant governor and describes him as sort of personal "corporate executive vice president."

Reagan says his relations with the present lieutenant governor are "smoother" than they were with Robert H. Finch, Reinecke's predecessor. But he credits this to a new structuring of the office and not the "personalities" of the two.

Without question, Reagan and Reinecke comprise the closest governor-lieutenant governor team in modern California history. Absent are the differences of ideology and political ambition that frequently have strained relations between governors and their standbys.

Reinecke, a good-looking 47-year-old former Republican congressman from the San Fernando Valley, was appointed by Reagan to succeed Finch two years ago this month when the latter became President Nixon's Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Reinecke, former head of a lawn sprinkler business, soon began talking privately about running for governor when Reagan steps down.

"I haven't changed my mind," he said in an interview. He hasn't "closed the door" to running for the Senate in 1974 either, but adds, "I'd prefer to stay here."

Reinecke's potential competition for the Republican gubernatorial nomination include State Controller Houston I. Flournoy, Attorney General Evelle J. Younger, Assembly minority leader Robert T. Monagan and Finch.

Reinecke says "I would hope" to have Reagan's support, but they haven't discussed it.

The lieutenant governor says, "I haven't found any disagreements" with Reagan, and he concurs with the governor's political philosophy, which he terms "a common sense, no nonsense kind of attitude about what is fair and right."

Reagan, in a separate interview, said he has learned "better uses" for the lieutenant governor's office since when Finch occupied it during what he terms the administration's "shakedown cruise."

"I have a totally new concept," Reagan says, "and have had for some time. You have a manpower there that should be utilized in the nuts and bolts running of government. My concept now of the lieutenant governor is that of a corporate executive vice president. He is at cabinet meetings and a part of the decision-making process of government."

When Finch was lieutenant governor, Reagan says, "he was away attending boards and commissions day after day and weeks would go by that we weren't even in contact with each other."

Reinecke serves on roughly two dozen boards and commissions, including the University of California Board of Regents and state college board of trustees.

He maintains the cure for unruly demonstrators —like the ones who heckled Reagan's recent inauguration —is "peer pressure. Let other kinds see what fools they make of themselves. I think the younger gernation itself is going to clean this thing up."

Reinecke regards himself as an ecologist and is working on several long-range projects designed to protect the environment.

They include the "far out" possibility of building a plastic chimney into the sky to flush out smog and constructing a wasteline along the bottom of the Sacramento river to carry sewage to a common delta processing facility.

He flatly opposes more oil drilling in the Santa Barbara Channel until spillage safeties are perfected. And he believes automobile antismog regulations possibly should be toughened.

"Either Detroit learns to live with tough emission standards or they get another engine," he says.

'Moby Dick'

The best way to appreciate a new Mercedes-Benz is to test drive an old Mercedes-Benz.

Motor's conclusion about a veteran of 110,000 miles: "Apart from some loss of edge at the top end this one felt quiet, flexible and free of rattles and the oil pressure needle was always hard on the stop."

So before you buy a new Mercedes-Benz, we invite you to test drive an old Mercedes-Benz.

Finding a car to test is really no problem. A neighbor or a friend may own one. (Your dealer probably has several on hand.) But we urge you to be selective. Pick one with a substantial accumulation of miles.

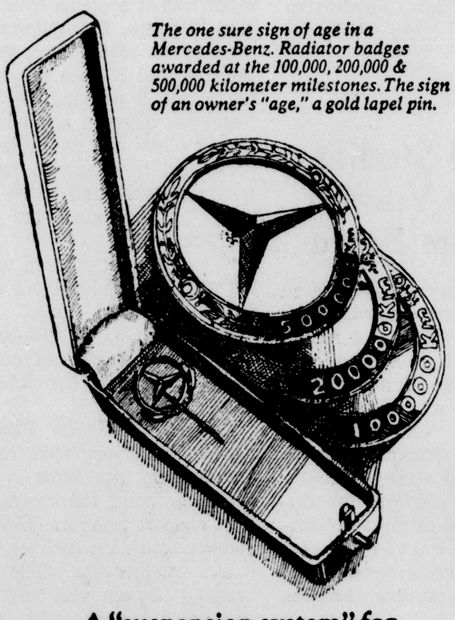
We award them to a Mercedes-Benz after 100,000, 200,000 and 500,000 kilometers. (The European equivalent of 62,500, 125,000 and 312,000 miles.)



The one sure sign of age in a Mercedes-Benz. Radiator badges awarded at the 100,000, 200,000 & 500,000 kilometer milestones. The sign of an owner's "age," a gold lapel pin.

A "suspension system" for the exhaust system

Take your test car down a potholed road and listen for audible protests of age.

A journalist from Motor recently put an eight-year-old Mercedes-Benz roadster to the test. "What impressed me most," he concluded, "was the solidity of the body—not a squeak or rattle to be heard."

We're flattered. But not surprised. Because we view every part of a Mercedes-Benz as a potential rattle.

Instead of bolting body and frame together, we fuse it with 8,000 or more welds.

Window glass rides in a channel that's buttressed in three directions.

An intriguing contest

Notice how new and tight the engine, drivetrain and suspension feel.

Recently in the Road & Track series "After The New Wears Off," the engineering editor summed up 35,000 miles in his Mercedes-Benz by saying simply, "The car is more impressive than when new."

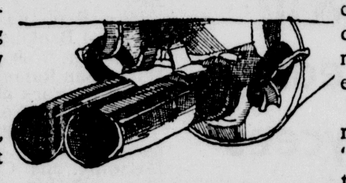
To keep our "new" from wearing off, we engineer the running gear to last as long as the body. A lengthy but intriguing contest indeed.

To make sure it will, vital mechanisms must pass thousands of tests.

We consume more than 40,000 gallons of fuel a month testing every engine before installation. Some for as long as five hours.

After nine successive applications at 135 mph in a "destruction" test, disc brakes turn fiery red. They must endure this torture fifty different times—and suffer no damage.

Even seemingly unimportant items like dashboard knobs must prove their longevity. So they are sliced in half and analyzed by infrared spectography.



Rubber "doughnuts" suspend tailpipes and mufflers under tension, rubber bumpers isolate them from the body. The exhaust system may never rattle.

A revolutionary old car

Today an old Mercedes-Benz bristles with features that still seem revolutionary compared to the '71 cars of other makers.

The reason is simple. Our engineering decisions are made by engineers. Not cost accountants. When they find a way to make an improvement, they make it. Without waiting until it can be made as cheaply as what it replaces.

Take an old Mercedes-Benz through some curves. Unless it's a pre-1930 model, you'll discover the nimble reflexes that come from fully independent suspension. An innovation yet to be discovered by domestic sedans.

Look at the model nameplate. If you spot an "E," the car has something no American car has, an einspritzsystem (German for fuel injection). Developed for Mercedes-Benz grand prix cars, it provides a substantial increase in power with no sacrifice in economy.

Apply the brakes. Mercedes-Benz believes the brakes should be the most powerful part of any car. So we introduced disc brakes in 1961. Put them on all four wheels in 1968. No domestic sedan today offers four disc brakes, even as an option.

Starting from the inside

To keep the outside looking new, we start protecting it from the inside.

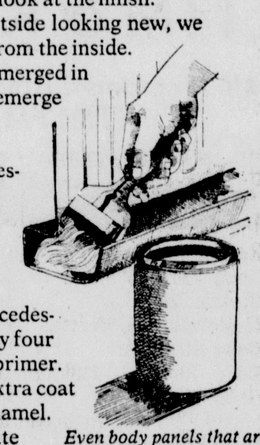
But that's not enough for Mercedes-Benz. The inside of body panels that were welded airtight were painted before welding.

Outside, a Mercedes-Benz is protected by four coats of paint and primer. The front gets an extra coat of chip-resistant enamel.



Even body panels that are welded airtight can corrode inside. So before we weld, we spray them with zinc oxide. And paint vital areas by hand.

We even insulate the side trim from the body with a strip of rubber. And sheath the clips that attach it with plastic grommets, so that metal can never bite through paint and start rust.

The "average" Mercedes-Benz: $7,700

Building automobiles you can appreciate when they're "old" cars has made our new cars more expensive than most.

There are ten Mercedes-Benz models priced from $5,350 to $8,259—without options. And six limited editions, largely handcrafted, from $12,718 to $29,617*.

In the meantime, be sure and test drive an "old" Mercedes-Benz. And, just for comparison, an old anything else.

After all, you live most of your life with an old car. So you should know what your next car will be like after the "new" wears off.

Not Classy, But It Still Spells Super Win For Colts

ARNIE SECOND

Shaw Wins The Crosby

Palmer, who wants a tourney title so bad he can taste it, almost pulled it off at Bing Crosby's annual clambake during the weekend. But it was a case of close, but no cigar.

Shaw, who admits Arnie was his golfing idol when he first came on the tour in 1963, was responsible for Palmer's latest disappointment.

Shaw, who hadn't won a tourney himself since mid-1969, scrambled home with a two-under-par 70 Sunday to beat Palmer by two strokes and win the Crosby.

The 41-year-old Palmer hasn't won since the Danny Thomas Diplomat Classic at the end of 1969. He came very close to winning the Crosby when he eagled the par-five second and birdied the fourth Sunday in unusual summer-like weather at Pebble Beach. But his luck and putting touch deserted him after that as he came home with a one-under 71 for a 280 score.

Shaw, who won only $33,004 last year, picked up a check for $27,000 for winning the Crosby and added to the $1,265 he won at the Los Angeles Open in the year's first tourney, he now almost has matched his 1970 earnings in just two weeks.

"It's nice to win again," said the soon to be 29-year-old who won the Doral and Avco classics two years ago. "I really needed this title (Crosby) because I can't think of anything worse than having to play on Mondays again."

Shaw was referring to qualifying play, which is held on Monday of each tourney week. He's gone that route before. In fact, the only year since 1967 that he didn't have to play in qualifying rounds was 1970 after he had gained exemption status for his 1969 play.

In describing his Crosby victory, Shaw said he played his most consistent golf in a long time, and that made the difference.

"I felt I played quite deliberately," said Shaw. "When I stepped up to the ball I was ready to play."

He was, too. Tom shared the first and second round leads and then went ahead of Palmer and the field by a stroke in the third, a round in which he didn't have a single bogey. In the final, he had had four birdies on the front side and the rest of the holes he parred until he got to 17.

By then, Shaw was four strokes ahead of Palmer, who was putting out on 18, and let up "just a little." He bogied that par-three hole by missing a 15-foot putt and then also bogied the par-five 18th when he missed from two feet.

"I couldn't believe Pebble was going to be that good to me," he quipped, "So I had to give something back."

Palmer was the only man to make a run at Shaw in the final round. Arnie went ahead of Shaw by a stroke with his eagle at two and bird at four but then ran into putting troubles.

"I was getting them up," said golf's most popular player. "I lost it (the tourney) on those

O'Brien's Field Goal Does Job

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Editor

MIAMI (UPI) —The Baltimore Colts didn't exactly do it the classy way Brooks Robinson and the Baltimore Orioles did—but they'll take it anyway.

They fumbled five times, they threw three pass interceptions, they flubbed an extra point, and three of 'em even collided trying to stop a punt from going into the end zone—nothing like the super way Robinson scooped up hot grounders for baseball's Orioles.

But the Colts are laughing all the way to the bank today to deposit their $15,000 checks—thanks to a 22-year-old long-haired rookie named Jim O'Brien, who redeemed all mistakes with a 32-yard field goal for a 16-13 win over the Dallas Cowboys.

"My mother's an astrologer and she told me we were gonna win," said O'Brien, who's not only an Aquarius himself (and isn't this the "Age of Aquarius?) but also (sorry, Cowboys) a born Texan.

While O'Brien's tie-breaking boot, in the final nine seconds, was the simple reason for the Colts' victory in Super Bowl V Sunday, the football pundits came up with several other reasons today why the Colts were able to gain revenge for their 1969 Super Bowl upset by the New York Jets.

"Our defense did it," explained Colt Coach Don McCafferty.

"The big play was in the third period," said Cowboys' Coach Tom Landry. "That was when Duane Thomas fumbled on the Colt goal line. If he had scored, we would have had a 20-6 lead and the Colts would have had to do a lot of catching up. After that, it was nothing but errors for us."

"Earl Morral did a fine job," explained Colt quarterback Johnny Unitas, who went out with a rib injury in the second period and then watched Morrall lead the Colts in dominating the second half.

"But a lot of fans were finding the key in the pass tossed by Cowboy quarterback Craig Morton with a minute to go that bounced off the hands of intended receiver Dan Reeves and was picked off by Colt Mike Curtis, who ran it back to the Cowboy 28 to set up O'Brien's field goal.

It turns out that pass, on a third-and-34 situation deep in Dallas territory, was one of the few plays all day called by Morton—rather than by Landry, who sends in plays from the sidelines by shuttling his tight ends.

"Morton made the right call," Landry insisted.

"He called it because we were in our 'two minute drill'." There wasn't time to shuttle players. But he made the right call because we were tring to win right then; we weren't planning on running out the clock and trying to win in overtime.

Morton had a 12-for-26 day, and whether he should have attempted a pass in that situation is something Cowboy fans probably will argue all summer.

But as Landry also pointed out, the Cowboys "had chances earlier and didn't score touchdowns." That was what McCafferty meant when he said the Colts' defense won the game.

In the first period, the Cowboys had a first down on the Colt nine and had to settle for Mike Clark's three-pointer.

SUPER VINDICATION

Earl Morrall Makes Up For Game Two Years Ago

MIAMI (UPI) — For Earl Morrall, Super Bowl V was a vindication he never really hoped for. For John Unitas, it was maybe his last chance at winning the big one of all, but he had no complaint about Morrall taking his place.

"You called a helluva fine ball game. You deserved it. Congratulations," the 37-year-old Unitas told Morrall in the victorious Colt dressing room after the 16-13 Baltimore triumph over Dallas in the Super bowl Sunday.

The victory was sweet for Morrall, 36, who got most of the blame for Baltimore's loss to the New York Jets in Super Bowl III two years ago. That day, he had started and Unitas relieved him — but couldn't pull the game out.

"Yes, I feel it personally. Coming back this time and being a winner, well, the satisfaction is great. It's just great," he said.

"I'm happy for Earl," said Unitas. "He did a fine job. I could have thrown, but there was quite a bit of pain.

"Earl was down in the dumps after our other Super Bowl. It was great he could come back," said Unitas.

"Thank God I've got six months to rest," he added.

Coach Don McCafferty gave the defense the lion's share of credit for the victory over the Cowboys.

"Our defense was outstanding all day long," he said. "with all the opportunities we gave Dallas, the defense did a wonderful job of keeping them from getting more points."

"It was fantastic, just fantastic, the whole thing," he said.

McCafferty said he made the decision for the touchdown with time running out at the end of the first half, Dallas ahead 13-6 and the Colts on the two yard line on fourth down.

"I figured, you get three points for a field goal or you get seven and go in at the half with the score tied, and that would have been a big lift. I made the decision and I was wrong — but if we had made the touchdown, I'd have been a helluva hero," said the Colt coach.

McCafferty said that when he saw the field goal coming up in the closing minute of the game with the score tied and the world championship riding on the outcome of rookie Jim O'Brien's field goal try, "I told Earl, 'you make sure and talk to O'Brien when he comes out there.' Earl does a good job of talking to these younger guys."

O'Brien said "Earl told me, 'just kick it through.' That's what I tried to do — do my usual thing. I concentrated on keeping my head down and I knew it was a good hit. I looked up and there it was flying right through."

'Too Many Mistakes,' Moans Craig Morton

"We beat ourselves—the fumble and two interceptions killed us," agreed Dallas Coach Tom Landry.

The interception by Rich Volk for Baltimore's tying touchdown in the fourth quarter and the interception by Mike Curtis, setting up a Jim O'Brien field goal giving the Colts their 16-13 Super Bowl win, were the difference and Landry pointed to still another Dallas mistake as the game breaker. Running back Duane Thomas fumbled the ball on the one yard line early in the third quarter and it was recovered by Jim Duncan for the Colts.

"Thomas' fumble undoubtedly was the big play of the game," Landry said. "If he scores its 20-6 and they have a lot of catching to do."

Curtis' interception came on a pass from Morton to running back Dan Reeves that brushed Reeves' hands and landed in the arms of Baltimore's burly linebacker. Earlier, Baltimore's John Mackey scored on a 75-yard touchdown pass that bounced off the fingertips of the Cowboys' Mel Renfro.

"What hurt most was giving up 10 points on two tipped plays" said Reeves, a player coach "This was the biggest game we ever played. I just wish we could have won it."

Another costly Dallas mistake came when Renfro allowed a short O'Brien field goal to roll dead on the one-yard line,

"I can't second guess myself, I thought the momentum would take it into the end zone," Renfro said.

Landry, who has been calling nearly all the Cowboys' plays from the sidelines for the last two months, said Morton called the pass that backfired into Curtis' interception. He said time was quickly expiring and, "We were in our two minute drill."

But he backed up Morton's decision to pass and try to win instead of forcing a sudden death overtime.

Two More Join Seal Injury List

Each game seems to further dwindle the skimpy roster of the pro hockey team from Oakland. Latest to join the growing injury list are forward Gary Croteau and defenseman Wayne Muloin as the Seals dropped a 3-1 decision to theVancouver Canucks before 3,927 Sunday night at the Coliseum-Arena.

That leaves the Seals with only four healthy defensemen Doug Roberts, Bert Marshall, Ron Stackhouse and Dick Mattiussi — to go against the Pittsburgh Penguins at the Coliseum-Arena Wednesday night. However, Muloin may be ready to then.

Danny Johnson, Ray Cullen and Rosaire Paiement scored goals in separate periods for Vancouver to break a six-game winless string. The Canucks boast a 3-1 record against the Seals in their first season in the National Hockey League.

Norm Ferguson rifled a 12-footer into the nets with seven minutes remaining for his fifth goal to narrow the Vancouver lead to 2-1. But four minutes later, Paiement rocketed a 20-footer by Seals goalie Gary Smith.

Twenty-three penalties were whistled in the rough game, including a five-minute penalty for slashing to Barry Wilkins of the Canucks with one second left in the opening period. Wilkins grazed Ernie Hicke's head with a stick but Hicke returned to action.

Dennis Hextall of the Seals was called for five penalties.

Pro Bowl Players Get Ready

The contest matches the best in the National and American football conferences.

Six men who played in the Super Bowl at Miami will arrive later this week. They are Mike Curtis, Jerry Logan and Bubba Smith of the Baltimore Colts and Bob Lilly, John Niland and Mel Renfro of the Dallas Cowboys.

The NFC all-stars will work out at UCLA while the AFC team is scheduled to drill at University of Southern California's Bovard Field.

By DAVID EINSTEIN

The College of Marin Tars had tasted defeat only once all season prior to Saturday night's confrontation with Contra Costa. So the Comet basketballers generously gave them a banquet.

With fearful abandon and gross arrogance, the San Pablo team electrified 500 home town rooters and disenchanted about 50 Marin fans by demolishing the Tars, 91-61. Center Floyd Allen, who is listed at 6-foot-9 but appears to tower over Marin's Roosevelt Green (6-foot-6), and Ollie Ellison, who plays basketball as though his life depended on it, led the attack as the Comets, eighth ranked in California, tore up the fourth ranked Tars. Both teams now have 3-1 Camino Norte Conference records.

The explanation for this catastrophic loss, the Tars' second against 18 wins, is twofold. First, the Kentfield team would have had to play its best game of the year to win, and instead it played its worst. In racing terms, they got off to a slow start, stumbled in the turn, faded in the stretch and did not finish.

Second, and it might have made the difference even if Marin had played well, was that Contra Costa played magnificently.

Forcing the Tars to play their fast-breaking style of game, they ran up leads at various times of 8-0, 30-13, and finally hit a 30-point spread at 82-52.

Defensively, they shut Joe Smith down to just 16 points, and thwarted the rest of the Tars completely.

Allen was a central figure at both ends of the court. He handled Green with unbelievable ease, holding Marin's big inside weapon to just 10, while scoring a game-high 27 himself. Some of them came on jump shots, some on hooks, some on tip-ins. He apparently likes variety.

But equally as impressive as the mammoth Allen was Ellison, a bearded warrior who snatched 18 rebounds, to keep his place among the state leaders in that category. He also found time to score 20 points.

Another Week Before Tam, Redwood Cagers Collide

Tamalpais and Redwood high schools, which lead the Marin County Athletic League basketball race with three wins and no losses apiece, should remain atop the standings in this, the second full week of league action.

The Giants of Larkspur and the Indians of Mill Valley do not meet each other until next Tuesday, in the second to last game of the first round robin. Meantime, Redwood gets San Rafael tomorrow and Drake on Friday, while Tam plays Terra Linda and San Rafael.

The San Rafael Redwood game, at Redwood, will start at 4 p.m. All other games tomorrow — Terra Linda at Tam, Drake at Novato and San Marin at Marin Catholic — begin at 7 p.m.

In Friday's games, all beginning at 8 o'clock, Tam is at San Rafael, Redwood is at home against Drake, Terra Linda hosts San Marin and Marin Catholic is at Novato.

Graham, Priest First In Pro-Am

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—Lou Graham, given a big hand by Father John Durkin, an Air Force chaplain stationed at Scott Air Force Base in Illinois, won $3,200 in the pro-am competition of the Bing Crosby golf tournament Sunday.

Graham shot a one-under-par 287 on his own ball to tie for 11th place in the pro competition but Durkin, playing to a 17 handicap, helped the team chalk up a 34-under-par 254 score that won the pro-am competition by a stroke over the team of pro Jack Burke Jr. and George Coleman of Palm Beach, Fla.

Two strokes farther back at 257 came the team of pro Tony Clecak and amateur E. Grant Fitts of Dallas.

Warriors Confident After Win

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Proving they can win with one of their stars out of the lineup, the San Francisco Warriors today entered the second-half of the NBA season with a confident attitude.

With All Star Jerry Lucas sidelined with the flu, the Warriors put on one of their top defensive shows of the season Saturday night to down the New York Knicks 102-93. A total of 11,681 persons, biggest "home" crowd of the season, watched the game at the Oakland Coliseum-Arena.

So instead of moving to St. Louis next season, Warriors owner Franklin Mieuli ought to investigate Oakland.

Spidery center Nate Thurmond keyed a tenacious defense for the Warriors that limited the defending world champions to only 23 field goals in the last three quarters. That averages out to less than 16 points a quarter from the floor.

Thurmond completely outplayed New York's Willis Reed, scoring 22 points and grabbing a game-high 27 rebounds.

The Warriors outscored the Knicks 16-5 at the start of the fourth quarter for a 93-75 advantage which New York never was able to overcome. New York also committed 15 turnovers to 14 for the Warriors.

"The win makes me feel good," said coach Al Attles who has led the Warriors to a 26-23 record in the Pacific Division, one game behind frontrunner Los Angeles.

"If we can play a game like this with a big man like Lucas out, it makes me hope that we can still keep playing well even if one of our important players gets hurt."

Forward Joe Ellis came off the bench against the Knicks and scored 22 points and snagged 11 rebounds to help the Warriors. Fritz Williams of San Francisco topped all scorers with 23 points.

The Warriors will have a new, but familiar, face in the lineup Tuesday night against the Cincinnati Royals at the Oakland Coliseum-Arena. He's former Warrior Bill Turner who was signed to a contract over the weekend.

Turner became a free agent at the start of the season when he was cut by the Royals. Turner had been traded to Cincinnati along with Jim King in October 1969 for Lucas.

Palmer bogied both of those holes and also nine and 13. His birdy four on 18 only served to close the gap a little on Shaw.

Palmer admitted his disappointment but said he will keep on playing until he wins again. He is determined because he thinks his play has improved of late.

"I feel my game overall is better than it was," he said, "especially my irons. I still have to improve my play around the greens, though. That's where you have to make it to win."

Palmer won $15,400 for his trouble, while Bob Murphy, who finished third at 282, four strokes behind Shaw, picked up a check for $9,570.

Bob Lunn, winner of last week's Los Angeles Open, finished far down the list at 288, 1970 player of the year Billy Casper was at 290, PGA Champ Dave Stockton was at 291, Jack Nicklaus had a 292 in his first tourney of the year and U.S. Open champ Tony Jacklin finished at 296.

Lee Trevino, 1970's leading money winner, pulled out of the final round because of illness in his family. He was far down the list any way and left word he will pass up Phoenix this week.

CROSBY WINNER — Tom Shaw addressed the press yesterday after firing a final round 70 to win the 30th Bing Crosby Pro-Am golf tournament at Pebble Beach. Shaw's 54-hole total of 278 gave him a two stroke margin over Arnold Palmer. (UPI Telephoto)

Club Presidents Team For Victory

Sylvia Asay and Sharon Safina, respectively the presidents of the Marin County 600 and 500 Clubs, combined yesterday to win the clubs' doubles bowling tournament at Country Club Lanes in San Rafael. Their handicap score for three games was 1256, 12 pins better than the second team of Kathy Harvey and Kathy Ross.

Lee Jacobs and Pat Piver finished third with 1229, followed by Betty Conti and Norma Pedroli at 1221.

Bea Hoffman won the high game scratch trophy with a 223 game.

Nothing New For Curry, Adderley

MIAMI K(UPI)—Bill Curry and Herb Adderley are the big money winners of the Super Bowl. Each has taken away $37,500 from three appearances.

Adderley was with the Green Bay Packers for victories over Kansas City and Oakland in the first two world championship games, each worth $15,000 to the winning players. Sunday, he was at cornerback for the Dallas Cowboys and picked up $7,500 as a loser.

Curry, the Baltimore center, also played on the Green Bay team that won the first Super Bowl in 1967, and on the Baltimore team that lost to the New York Jets here two years ago.

Matson, Young Are Tops

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Men whose names have almost become legendary in track and field showed they still were not ready to be relegated to the history of the sport and the record books in the 12th annual Sunkist Invitational meet.

Their names are Randy Matson, George Young and Bob Seagren.

Matson was voted field athlete of the meet and outstanding athlete of the meet Saturday night for equalling the indoor shot put mark of 67 feet, 10 inches.

Making a comeback after two years away from distance running, Young easily captured the two-mile event in 8:42.2. Although not close to his indoor mark which he shares with Kerry Pearce of Australia, Young beat an impressive field that included Pearce, Arnie Kualhem of Norway, Frank Shorter and Rex Maddaford of New Zealand.

Seagren, who has toyed with the idea of retirement, won the pole vault at 17 feet, 5 1-4 inches and barely missed at the indoor record height of 17-8.

"I'm in good shape," said Young, voted track athlete of the meet.

"The meet had a lot of world class competitors. It gave me the inspiration necessary to run week after week. I hadn't stepped on a track for nearly two years and a lot of people told me I was over the hill."

Matson, who also considered retiring after winning the gold medal in the Mexico City Olympics, said, "I did better than I expected. I am in better shape than I hace been ever before at this time of the year."

Matson said he always had trouble with the indoor shot and was gratified at tying Neal Steinhauer's 1967 mark.

Laver $10,000 Richer; King Wins Her Tourney

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Rod Laver added another $10,000 to his winnings Saturday night by drubbing Roy Emerson, 6-2, 6-3, 7-5 in thefourth match of the $210,000 Tennis Championship Classic.

Laver, who will meet Arthur Ashe at New York's Madison Square Garden in the fifth match Thursday, has won $40,000 in 14 days of tournament action.

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) —Billie Jean King of Long Beach disposed of Rosemary Casals of San Francisco 6-1, 6-2 Sunday night to take the $4,300 first prize in the Billie Jean King Invitational.

It was the second stop of a 16-tournament women's pro tennis tour, which offers more than $100,000 in prize money.

Hockey

DETROIT (UPI) — Pride and some nagging injuries apparently will keep Gordie Howe of the Detroit Red Wings from making a record 22nd appearance in Tuesday's National Hockey League All-Star Game in Boston.

"I'm not playing this year," Howe said Sunday, "I don't deserve it. I don't want to fool anybody. Besides, if I went I'd just sit anyway."

Howe, who holds just about all the records there are for the annual mid-season game, was picked as an extra. He has 14 goals and 12 assists in 33 games for Detroit this season.

BOSTON (UPI) —Veteran Boston Bruin wing Eddie Westfall was added to the National Hockey League's East Division All-Star squad Sunday night, replacing injured teammate John McKenzie.

League officials made the announcement shortly after McKenzie suffered a shoulder separation that is expected to idle him for at least two weeks.

Wicks Leads UCLA Past Cal Bears

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Ansley Truitt was honored before the game, then Sidney Wicks provided all the rest of the heroics.

As a result, Truitt, California's junior center from San Francisco, owns a plaque from Sport Magazine while the UCLA Bruins, No. 1 in the country, remained undefeated with 13 straight victories and tied for first in the Pacific-8 Conference with Southern California at 4-0.

UCLA took advantage of 22 Cal turnovers to drub the Bears 94-76 Saturday in a regionally televised game. Wicks, a 6-8 senior and All America from Los Angeles, hit a season-high 33 points, snagged 17 rebounds and made five assists.

"Sidney is the best individual player in the conference . . . perhaps in the country," said coach John Wooden of his Bruin ace. "He's likely to be drafted No. 1."

The 6-9½ Truitt, honored as college athlete of the month "for outstanding contributions toward a better world through personal involvement," kept the Bears in the game in the first half with his rebounding and scoring. But he was used sparingly after picking up his fourth personal foul 3½ minutes into the second half and finished with 14 points.

Truitt has been active in recent summers helping to develop athletic skills among youths in ghetto areas.

The loss was the sixth in 14 games for Cal and dropped them to 1-3 in the Pac-8.

USC, meanwhile, also remained unbeaten at 14-0 by fast-breaking its way to a 71-51 win over Stanford to hand the Indians 4-10 their fourth straight defeat without a win in the conference. The second-ranked Trojans were paced by guards Paul Westphal and Dennis Layton, each with 14 points. Claude Terry hit 17 for the injury plagued Indians.

UCLA and USC now both head for the Midwest for a couple of intersectional games before playing each other Feb. 6 at USC in the first of two meetings this season.

In other games involving Pac-8 teams, the Washington Huskies warmed up in 55-below weather at Fairbanks, Alaska, by downing the University of Alaska twice over the weekend, including a 90-62 decision Saturday night. Washington State and the two Oregon teams were idle over the weekend.

In the West Coast Athletic Conference, the University of San Francisco continued to pull surprises by beating Pepperdine 72-69 on the Waves' home court to remain tied with Pacific and Loyola at 3-1 for first place.

Elsewhere in the WCAC, Loyola broke a 28-28 halftime tie by tallying 54 second-half points to down Santa Clara 82-61, Pacific toyed with Nevada-Reno 95-61 and Sam Hill scored 20 of his 27 points in the second half to help St. Mary's get by Nevada-Las Vegas 88-83 at Moraga.

Santa Clara, St. Mary's and Nevada-Las Vegas are all deadlocked at 2-2 in the WCAC with Pepperdine 1-3 and Nevada-Reno 0-4 bringing up the rear.

In limited action this week, USF plays at California and Stanford entertains Utah on Saturday night. Oregon and Oregon State head north for games with Washington and Washington State on Saturday and next Monday.

USC is idle this week but UCLA plays Friday night at Loyola of Chicago and on Saturday at Notre Dame.

In the WCAC, UOP travels to Santa Clara and tries to make it two in a row over the Broncos on Satuday in the only league game. Also on Saturday, St. Mary's plays Hayward State, Loyola travels to San Diego State and Nevada-Las Vegas entertains Southwest Louisiana.

Baltimore Had Poise In A Game Of Errors

By GEORGE BLANDA
as told to
U. P. INTERNATIONAL

MIAMI (UPI) — Neither team deserved to win. But in the end, it was the team with the most poise — and that was the Colts.

Both teams played so badly for a game of this caliber. They are supposedly the two best teams in football but they made 10 to 14 errors between them.

From a professional's standpoint, it was a badly played football game. It was exciting for the fans, though, and I know how it is — you get so emotionally high for one like this, you're prone to make mistakes.

How about that kid Jim O'Brien? He's just a rookie, too. But he made the greatest kick of his life. I know how it is, the pressure on you. There he is — standing before 80,000 people in the stands and 70 million watching on TV. Then they call a time out and give him two more minutes to think about it.

O'Brien nearly became the goat. I thought he was a fraction slow, like I thought he was when his extra point was blocked.

But like I've always said, it's not how many you make kicking, it's the ones you make in the crucial situations which are important.

By the way, that extra point missed determined the strategy of the game for Baltimore. It probably dictated the Colts going for a touchdown and missing it at the end of the first half instead of trying for the field goal.

I predicted the team which would make the most mistakes would lose but it didn't.

The Baltimore defense was the difference. That Bubba Smith was great. I've always said defense wins crucial games. Baltimore's defense proved that today. With all the mistakes the Colts offense made, the defense hung on with poise and made the big plays near the end — making Duane Thomas fumble at the one and recovering the interceptions.

The game was decided by the Colts' defense — it gave them 10 points — plus Mr. O'Brien and Earl Morrall.

Morall was fantastic. Earl coming into the game to me, was the turning point. He seemed to give the whole team the thing they needed to bring them through. Unitas kind of surprised me the way he was throwing into a crowd.

From a pro's viewpoint, the lack of throwing ability by the Cowboys let the Baltimore defense come up and control the running game. That was basically the ball game.

I would hate to second guess the Cowboys but that Craig Morton passed late in the game with third and long yardage, it sure was a key turning point. Mike Curtis intercepted and the Colts went in to victory with the field goal.

It might have been different if Coach Tom Landry had called for the Cowboys to put out of there and sent the game into overtime. Anything could have happened the way these teams were making mistakes. I won't say anymore about Oakland, which I still think is as good as any team in football but I want to knock the people who have said Baltimore had an "easy ride" in the American Conference.

Just remember, the Colts had to play superb football, coming from behind in several games, to win it all today.

After I think about it, I take it back. The Colts, with that defense, deserved to win.

In the second, they settled for another boot after having a first down on the Baltimore six. So when the Colts scored on a weird play—John Mackey scoring on a 75 yard pass play from Unitas when the ball bounced off the hands of defender Mel Renfro—the Colts were tied up, 6-6.

Mark Washington blocked O'Brien's extra point when the eventual hero got it away a little slow. And the Cowboys went ahead again, 13-6, when Jethro Pugh's fumble recovery set up a seven-yard scoring run by Thomas on a swing pass from Morton.

The Colts didn't match that until the fourth period when Rich Volk's interception of a Morton aerial set up a two-yard plunge by Tom Nowatzke. This time O'Brien converted and the score stayed 13-13 until the last-minute dramatics.

For the first time in history, a loser, linebacker Chuck Howley of the Cowboys, got the "Outstanding Player" award, worth a new car.

"It's nice," admitted Howley, "but I wish we had won the game."

It was a great personal comeback for Morrall, the "goat" of that 19-6 game when Joe Namath grabbed all the headlines. Morrall hit 7-for-15 and 147 yards and, thanks to that, the Colts outgained the Cowboys, 329 yards to 217.

Counting the $15,000 winner's share here, each Colt earned $25,000 in post-season money. Each Cowboy got $7,500 here and a total of $18,500.

Duster Coupe

They've certainly had time enough to learn by now. That with compacts, it's not just the low price but how much value comes through for the low price that really counts. And when you compare our Duster to their Vega you'll see what "Coming Through" is all about. Because Duster not only has more room, more trunk, bigger tires and brakes, and more power than Vega; it's still as easy on gas as it is on your budget. The big difference between Duster and Vega? Come through our place and see for yourself. It's not the price.

PAA

Record sales mean record resale value.

People are going for Duster in record numbers. Sales are up 58% for first quarter—'71 model year. And if you think we're loading the dice, last year they were 181% ahead of comparable sales the year before. Which is a big reason why Plymouth's small cars are leaders in their field in resale value.

Check us for our price, you'll see.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Recovery Seen For Dillingham

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Dillingham Corp., which I purchased 18 months ago at 26½, is now trading at about 12. Since this stock has not recovered with the market, should I sell or is there a chance it will regain strength? — C. G.

A. Dillingham shares have moved up 32 per cent since bottoming out at 8⅞ in August. By comparison, the market, as measured by Standard & Poor's 425 Industrials, bottomed in May and in the ensuing 8 months has risen 34 per cent. The 12 cents a share earned in the third quarter of 1970 was not sufficient to offset earlier deficits; and for the nine months Dillingham reported a deficit of 5 cents a share.

For the full year a good gain in operating revenues and a modest profit will probably be reported. Improvement has already been noted in some of the conditions which contributed to the red ink. Stepped-up construction activity already has brought to Dillingham $86 million in new contract awards.

The company is currently working on 200 construction contracts with a total value of $800 million. The gradual recovery in the business climate as well as the more favorable interest rates now available on mortgages should be beneficial. Shares should be held for recovery.

Q. Since I'm pushing eighty, I've recently curbed my appetite for risk. About the only risk I take now is purchasing a state lottery ticket. I'm well covered by insurance, savings and blue chip stocks and am interested in a small investment in Westcoast Production. How do you size up this company? — E. K.

A. Westcoast Production, with $21 million or $5.33 per share in working capital and 40 per cent owned by Westcoast Transmission, although risky, is an interesting vehicle for participating in the Canadian oil/gas industry.

The Stanmore-Richdale lands, where Westcoast has proved-up sizeable reserves, will benedit from the Alberta Conservation Board's decision to add this area to Trans Canada Pipe Lines' natural gas supply source. Wildcat activities on company's shared Graham Island Arctic holdings, which will begin this year, could benefit shareholders.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL

If You Worked For 2 Employers, Tax Refund MayBe Forthcoming

If you had more than one employer in 1970, and your total earnings were over $7,800 your employers may have deducted more than $374.40 from your paychecks for F.I.C.A. taxes. The maximum that you are required to pay for F.I.C.A. taxes is $374.40, that is, 4.8 per cent of $7,800.

Any overdeduction by two or more employers of F.I.C.A. tax can be claimed as a credit against your income tax on line 62, page 2, part VII, of form 1040.

The W-2 slips your employers give you show the amount of F.I.C.A. tax withheld, as well as the amount of income tax withheld.

If you worked for more than one employer in California during 1970, you may have had more than $74 deducted from your paychecks for Unemployment Disability Insurance Tax.

If so, you should file a claim for refund on form DE 1964 if:

1. You worked for two or more employers, and
2. Deductions for disability insurance were made from your wages, and
3. Such deductions totaled more than $74.

Do not use form DE 1964 if refunds are due you because:

1. Disability insurance deductions of more than the required maximum were deducted from your pay by only one employer. Claim your refund from that employer.
2. You worked for a business which had a change of ownership during the year. The combined deductions made by both owners should not total more than $74. If more than $74 was deducted from your pay by the two employers, claim your refund direct from the last employer.

Disability insurance deductions are shown on your check stubs or deduction slips (not on your forms W-2). Some voluntary plans require deductions of less than the required maximum. You can claim only the deductions actually made.

Most Federal, State and local government agencies and religious or nonprofit organizations are not subject to the insurance law. Do not include these wages in your claim unless deductions were actually made.

Do not deduct the amount of this claim from your State income tax.

Do not include in your claim:

1. Deductions made from wages paid to your wife or dependents. A separate claim must be filed by each individual.
2. Deductions made from your wages for Federal Old Age Benefits or Federal Withholding (Income Tax).
3. Deductions made from wages earned in states other than California unless such wages were reported to the State of California.
4. Seamen's wages that come under the jurisdiction of states other than California.

You must claim this refund if you are to receive it. The claim must be filed before June 30, 1971.

Claims are filed with the California Department of Employment, Attention Accounting Section, 1025 P Street, Sacramento, California, 95814.

Claims must be filed on form DE 1964.

EMBARCADERO'S FLAGSHIP

The slender, sculptured design of the 45-story Security Pacific Bank Building makes the new skyscraper the "flagship" of the City's $200 million Embarcadero Center redevelopment project. The $28 million office tower will house Security Pacific's main San Francisco office and its Northern California headquarters.

Stocks Firm, Trading Active On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks were firm in active trading with about an hour of trading to go Monday.

Near 2:30 p.m., the Dow Jones industrial average was up 2.88 at 848.58. Standard & Poor's index of 500 stocks showed a gain of 0.45 at 93.48. Of the 1,654 issues crossing the tape, 869 pointed higher, while 510 retreated.

A four-hour volume of 11,510,000 shares compared with 13,860,000 shares traded Friday at a comparable period.

Among the big board's most active issues were General Mills, which traded an early block of 151,800 shares at 32⅛ up ⅛ in a cross-transaction for institutional investors.

Also heavily traded were American Telephone, Gulf Oil, and Chase Manhattan Mortgage & Realty.

$845 Million Sale

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Interior Department has announced that a Dec. 15 sale of oil and gas drilling rights off the Louisiana coast brought in $845.8 million —a figure second only to the $900 million collected last year for drilling rights on Alaska's North Slope.

More Papers Raise Prices

The survey also showed 146 papers raised their prices to 15 cents a copy, an increase of 127 over 1969. The ANPA said 1,606 newspapers still charge 10 cents a copy and only 51 charge a nickel or less a copy.

The survey covered street sale prices in dailies in the United States, Canada, the Bahamas, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

UAL Asks Raise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — United Air Lines, which lost $40 million last year, has asked the government to let it raise coach fares by $2 in 22 market areas involving flights of less than 500 miles.
